REYKJAVIK, June 11 (Tuesday).—After a careful study of weather reports from all available sources the Swedish seaplane Sverige hopped off early this morning for Ivigtut.

The Sverige landed in the harbor of Reykjavik at 7:48 P. M. Iceland time (8:48 P. M. Greenwich time and 3:48 P. M. New York Daylight Saving time), with Captain Albin Ahrenberg, Lieutenant Axel Floden and Radio Operator Robert Ljunglund aboard.

They left Westman Island (Vesugan Isle) at 8:10 P. M. Greenwich time, making the flight here in 38 minutes.

At 7:45 P. M. local time glimpses were caught of the machine above the town, and, after having flown in a circle above the roof tops, the plane landed in the port and followed the harbor master's boat to the anchorage buoy.

All the quay side and vessels were crowded with spectators and when the plane approached the outer mole cheers rang out in the clear, calm Northern Summer evening. As the Sverige approached the town, Captain Ahrenberg's sturdy, characteristic silhouette was visible above the wings. He stood with his pipe in his mouth.

Welcomed by the Mayor.

At the quay they were met by Mayor Knud Zimsen, who welcomed them in a short speech in which he mentioned Norse deeds of 1,000 years ago over the same route the airmen have chosen.

Lieutenant Floden replied and then Captain Ahrenberg delivered the gift sent here from the inhabitants of Bergen.

The airmen were escorted by the Town Council to the Hotel Iceland amid groups of residents singing the Swedish national song.

In a brief interview tonight Captain Ahrenberg said:

"At the start from Bergen we had good weather reports from the Atlantic, and in the beginning they seemed to be good. We had obtained bearings already from the Faroe Islands to the steamer Iceland, lying in the Port of Reykjavik.

"Midway between Bergen and the Faroe Islands we had a strong wind following us, but in a few hours it veered to a head wind strong against us, stronger than we cared for. We then took the course toward the east of Iceland, in order to avoid, if possible, this counter-wind, but when this appeared vain we took the course direct to Reykjavik.

Anxious Hours Over Sea.

"We had calculated it would take us two hours from the Faroe Islands until we could see Iceland, but three hours had gone after leaving the Faroes; the gasoline supplies shrunk more and more, and it was an exciting time for us. Four hours went by and still land was sighted. We had long observed a cloud which we did not think had any connection with the land, but suddenly we discovered at the edge of the cloud something black, which turned out to be a moutain rock. It was the glacier Oerefajoekull.

"It took us five hours from the Faroes to Iceland. Reykjavik we could not reach. What mattered now was to find a landing place. At first we thought of the lagoon by Ingolfshoefdi, but finally we preferred the lake by Shaptaroe. We made a reconnaissance above it and saw that the water was so shallow a landing meant certain wreckage. Out in the sea the swell was rather high; at the sight of which we could not help thinking of the mail boat row of wrecks on the whole southeast coast of Iceland.

"We did not feel inclined to increase their number. But our gasoline supplies had shrunk into next to nothing and there was no way out but to land on the sea.

"To our good luck the Norwegian steamer Magnhild was discharging there. We landed successfull, in

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—What will Mayor Walker do for neckties, may have been the problem of Captain Ahrenberg when his plane, bearing a present of Summer foulards from Stockholm to New York's Chief Executive, was forced down in a desolate part of Iceland last night.

If the flight should be halted the ties will be useless, for Eskimos don't wear them—not the new and expensive ones, at any rate.

An American flag, a present from the United States Film Company to its New York headquarters, is also aboard.

CHASE BANK IN DEAL WITH NATIONAL PARK

$1,600,000,000 Merger Being Negotiated, but Officials Withhold Comment.

WOULD BE SECOND LARGEST

Capital of the Two Institutions Would Total $200,000,000, Deposits $1,200,000,000.

A new banking merger, involving the Chase National Bank and the National Park Bank, is being negotiated. If successful, it would link resources of nearly $1,600,000,000, capital funds of more than $200,000,000 and deposits in excess of $1,200,000,000. Conversations have already taken place with a view to bringing the two institutions together, and last night it was understood that nothing had thus far developed to block the ultimate joining of the two. Officials of neither would comment, except to say that no agreement had yet been reached.

Completion of the merger would place the Chase Bank about on a parity from standpoint of resources with the Guaranty Trust Company, which recently absorbed the National Bank of Commerce, although the Guaranty, in accordance with a plan announced last week for increasing its capital funds to $200,000,000, will rank as the largest in the country from the standpoint of capital funds. The new merger proposed would place the Chase only a step behind the National City Bank, now rated as the nation's largest financial institution, with total resources of $2,000,000,000.

Since the era of bank consolidations began in Wall Street a few years ago the Chase has taken a leading part. Its most recent acquisition was that of the American Express Company, accomplished by an exchange of stock involving the increasing of the Chase's capital from $61,000,000, which was the figure as of March 27, the date of the last bank call, to $80,000,000. At the same time the par value of the stock was reduced from $100 to $20 a share and the old shares split up, one for five.

Park Bank Total $256,818,241.

The National Park Bank, known as one of the most conservative banks in the strictly commercial banking field, reported total resources of $256,818,241, as of March 27, capital of $10,000,000 and surplus and undivided profits of $26,400,974, comparing with total resources of $1,316,188,226, as of March 27, with capital of $61,500,000, since increased to $80,000,000, surplus of $61,000,000 and undivided profits of $18,927,918. The Park bank has deposits of $168,968,963 and the Chase of $1,042,005,157.

The bank recently split up its shares, reducing the par value from

CRIMINAL CHARGES IN CITY TRUST CASE WILL GO TO CROPSEY

He Expects Complaints Will Be Presented Against Several in a Few Days.

SEES MOSES AND AIDES

DISCUSS DI PAOLA'S STATUS

Criminal charges—the first to be made since the City Trust Company was closed by the Banking Department on Feb. 11—will be presented to Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey this week, probably today or tomorrow. Justice Cropsey was named by Governor Roosevelt to sit as a committing magistrate in cases arising out of the Moreland act investigation of the failure and its relation to the State Banking Department.

Justice Cropsey held his first conference with Moreland Commissioner Robert Moses in his chambers in Brooklyn late yesterday afternoon. Mr. Moses and his aides, Walter H. Pollak and G. Frank Dougherty, discussed the procedure to be followed and left to prepare criminal informations which will be the basis for prosecution.

How many will be involved in criminal procedure before the investigation is over is not known, but Justice Cropsey left no doubt that more than one person would be called upon to answer for violations of the law. He said he expected to receive the first of these complaints "in a couple of days."

Expects Complaints Soon.

When formal complaint is presented to him, as a committing magistrate, he will issue warrants for the accused persons and direct them to appear before him. Then, upon the basis of the evidence presented, he will decide if a crime has been committed and hold the accused for further action.

If the crime is a felony the accused will be held for the grand jury; if misdemeanor is charged the accused will be held for special sessions. In each instance Justice Cropsey may fix bail. As the City Trust Company had branches in both Manhattan and Brooklyn, Justice Cropsey will sit in whichever borough the alleged crime was committed, he said. He is doing this because, by law, a person must be tried in the county in which the crime is committed, and the cases will be presented to the grand jury and prosecuted by the District Attorneys of the respective counties.

Justice Cropsey does not intend to hold regular sessions as a committing magistrate, but will issue the warrants and convene his court at such times as the information may be laid before him by the Moreland Commission. Thus he will not be called upon to be in constant attendance upon the Moreland Commission hearings.

His right to sit as a committing magistrate comes by reason of the power invested in him as a Supreme Court Justice. Although as a magistrate his powers are no broader than those of any other magistrate, in his dual capacity his power is somewhat wider. He may, for example, cite a witness for contempt of court for refusing to answer questions in the Moreland hearings. This action will be by virtue of his office as a Supreme Court Justice.

Di Paola's Case Discussed.

He was asked if he had been requested to cite Anthony Di Paola, treasurer of the City Trust, for contempt for his refusal to answer a question as to his personal wealth at the hearing last Friday. Justice Cropsey said that he had not been asked to issue such a citation, but

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—Talkies received the first consideration of the new Cabinet today when Premier Ramsay MacDonald employed a talking film for the first time in history to introduce the Ministers of a British Government to the public.

As a prologue to the first formal Cabinet meeting, its members gathered before a microphone on the lawn of 10 Downing Street. The Chancellor of the Exchequer was the first to step forward.

"Here is my old friend, Philip Snowden," announced Mr. MacDonald.

Smiling and walking very confidently, J. H. Thomas, Lord Privy Seal, who is to have charge of the government's employment program, next stride into the Klieg lights. The Prime Minister's introduction was:

"Mr. Thomas has broad shoulders. He is going to have a big burden put on them. He is going to look after unemployment and I am sure the whole nation wishes him the heartiest success."

The last one to face the microphone was Miss Margaret Bondfield, the new Minister of Labor.

"Last, but most unique, is our old friend Margaret Bondfield," said the Premier. "She is a double-first—the first woman admitted to the Privy Council and she is now the Right Hon. Margaret Bondfield; she is also the first woman to have taken a seat in the Cabinet, and I am sure, in the name of the whole country, we greet her in the new position she has been called upon to fill."

The Parliamentary "actors" caused considerable merriment, and the press praises Premier MacDonald's sense of the value of publicity in politics.

HOOVER IS EAGER TO GREET M'DONALD

NAVAL CUT HIS CHIEF AIM

British Cabinet Discusses the Proposed Trip, Which All England Strongly Backs.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN,
Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A cordial welcome from President Hoover is assured to Ramsay MacDonald, the new Prime Minister of Great Britain, if he comes to the United States, which, according to London reports, he will probably do in July. That was made plain at the White House today.

The welcome will be especially cordial because the administration is aware from informal information that the chief purpose of the head of the new Labor Cabinet will be to reach an accord with this government for the reduction of naval armaments, a matter near to the President's heart.

The administration did not know in advance of newspaper publication that Mr. MacDonald contemplated a visit to America, but it had known for months before the recent British elections, however, that Mr. MacDonald was of the opinion that the naval armament problem, as it affects the United States and Britain, could be adjusted fairly, quickly and satisfactorily if the British Prime Minister could meet the President face to face and frankly discuss a method of adjustment.

Newspapers His Informants.

George Akerson, secretary to the President, said this evening that the only information Mr. Hoover had had of the expected visit of the British Prime Minister came from the newspapers. Nothing had been received officially on the subject, nor had the White House been advised of Mr. MacDonald's coming by any one who had communication from him, it was said.

Senator Borah, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, is credited with having had word from Mr. MacDonald that he was considering coming to Washington.

Information which came to Washington from Mr. MacDonald immediately after the triumph of his party in the British elections on May 30, and which was mentioned in a Washington dispatch printed in THE NEW YORK TIMES on June 2, to the effect that if a Labor Government was formed it would cooperate with President Hoover in his effort to bring about further naval armaments reduction, is also reported to have been confirmed to Senator Borah.

It is now possible to say that the Washington Government has been aware since last Autumn that if the then Conservative Ministry was continued the British Government would be willing to meet Mr. Hoover half way in his desire to bring about a curtailment of the naval building programs of the two governments, if not an actual reduction of existing naval strength.

Assurances along that line were given to the Coolidge Administration by one of its officials who had visited London in the Summer and early Fall of 1928.

Baldwin Also Planned Visit.

In an informal conference with this official Mr. Baldwin, then Prime Minister, indicated clearly that as soon as the political situation in the United Kingdom cleared and the Conservative Cabinet was continued the British Government would be glad to enter into negotiations with the United States for a further curtailment of fleets.

Mr. Baldwin said to the official that he believed the problem could best be adjusted by a visit of the British Prime Minister to Washington for the purpose of having personal negotiations with the President and other officials.

Mr. Baldwin was confident, he indicated, that he was "eye to eye" with the position of the Coolidge Ad-

PITTENGER SEEKS INQUIRY

E. J. White, Who Fired Fatal Shots at Auto With Family, Held for Manslaughter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The fatal shooting Saturday night of Henry Virkula, a merchant, who was fired upon by two dry agents as he drove along a public highway near the international border to his home in Big Falls, Minn., with his wife and two children, provoked a brief but lively speech in the House today by Representative Schafer, a wet Republican, of Wisconsin.

"This is another example of the failure of the prohibition law," Representative Schafer said. "This shows that the law is being enforced by murderers and law-breakers."

Also aroused by the shooting, which occurred in his district at a spot about fifteen miles south of the Canadian line, Representative Pittenger of Minnesota today sent a letter to Attorney General Mitchell demanding an immediate investigation, and recommended punishment of the dry patrol officers if the facts warranted.

Calls Killings a Scandal.

Recalling the number of such shootings by dry officers, Mr. Pittenger told the Attorney General that the cases "have reached the proportions of a national scandal," and that every one of them should be looked into thoroughly with a view to the punishment of guilty persons.

While reading a newspaper account of the killing, Mr. Schafer said to the House that the officers had fired upon the Virkula car before it had gone ten feet after their command to halt, that they had fired before Virkula had been given an opportunity to halt the machine, that twenty-six bullet holes were in the car, and that officers of the dry patrol had been ordered not to shoot except in self-defense. In addition, he said, no liquor was found in the car.

"I rise to ask," Mr. Schafer continued, "that the departments charged with law enforcement make every effort to put those murderers where they belong. When that is done, word will go out over the nation that a man can take his family over the public highways for an automobile ride on a Sunday afternoon without fear of being shot at and killed by inefficient officers who think that the prohibition law is the only law of the land and that it is paramount to the laws protecting human life."

Not a word was uttered by dry s on the floor when Mr. Schafer delivered his speech. On past occasions, when wets have assailed dry law officers for such shootings, dry s have attempted to defend the prohibition enforcers, and less than two months ago applause greeted a description of the killing of a youth by a Washington policeman.

Dry Officer Faces Charge.

Special to The New York Times.

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., June 10.—A coroner's jury today held on a second degree manslaughter charge Emmet J. White, border patrolman and prohibition inspector, who on Saturday night killed a citizen of Big Falls, Minn., who was driving home with his wife and two children.

The jury found that Henry Virkula, the victim, came to his death from wounds inflicted by a "riot" gun discharged by the inspector. That weapon is known in gangster circles as a sawed-off shotgun.

White was arraigned before Judge J. H. Brown and asked a continuance for one week. His plea was granted and the inspector was released in $1,500 bail.

Until the inquest opened White had been held in the Koochiching County jail on a complaint signed by Sheriff Hugh Reidy, the county officials fearing mob violence against the prisoner. Citizens of the town gathered in groups about the jail and discussed the advisability of going armed when motoring to protect themselves against similar attacks.

With border patrolmen armed with .45 caliber pistols and repeating shotguns on the highways, some tourists

FIGHTING FUND PLANNED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Harmony and hope dominated the dinner given tonight in honor of Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee, at which John J. Raskob, the national chairman; Mr. Shouse, Senator Tydings of Maryland and Representative Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, chairmen of the Senatorial and Congressional committees, outlined plans to maintain a fighting national organization in preparation for the 1930 and 1932 campaigns.

More than 300 men and women met in one of the most notable gatherings of Democratic members of Congress in Washington in years. Democrats of Southern States which rejected former Governor Alfred E. Smith in the last election were well represented, and their spokesmen pictured a united party eager to form a constructive policy.

Raskob Says Committee Stands.

Mr. Raskob, who was the first speaker, formally announced that he would continue as national chairman, saying at the conclusion of his prepared speech:

"These are the thoughts I had in mind when I became chairman. I hope that what I have said tonight will set at rest all doubt about my continuing as chairman."

This was applauded and the diners in their enthusiasm rose to their feet en masse. Mr. Raskob said there would be a national organization with an advisory committee, that ex-Senator Gerry of Rhode Island would remain as chairman of it, and that former Governor Nellie Ross of Wyoming would be a member of the committee. He added that all the other present officers of the Democratic National Committee would continue to function.

Prolonged Cheering for Smith.

A reference to former Governor Alfred E. Smith evoked a tumult of applause. It came as Representative Byrns began a sentence with the words: "Our leader in the last campaign——." He was interrupted by cheering that lasted for several minutes.

The question of candidates, however, was mentioned by Mr. Shouse, who declared that Chairman Raskob would act unselfishly for the upbuilding of the party "without reference to the candidacy of any man."

Senator Overman of North Carolina praised the endeavors of Governor Smith in the last campaign.

"No cold shivers run down my spinal column when mention is made of our leader in 1928," he said. "I'm here to fight for success in the next campaign. The Democratic party was not born to die, but will live as long as man love justice."

Fully 95 per cent of the Democratic leaders in Congress were in the Mayflower banquet room. Senators Simmons of North Carolina and Heflin of Alabama, opponents of Mr. Smith, were the only conspicuous absentees.

All other Democratic Senators were present or had sent letters approving the purpose of the dinner. Those unable to be present because of previous engagements were Senators Harris and George of Georgia, Trammell of Florida, Glass and Swanson of Virginia, Smith and Blease of South Carolina, Stephens of Mississippi and Black of Alabama.

Lives Lost in Tornadoes In Two Western States

KINGSTON, Miss., June 10 (AP).—Two persons were killed, farm homes were demolished and live stock destroyed in a tornado which struck here about 6:30 o'clock tonight.

ALL FARM RELIEF AT STAKE

Shift of Two Votes Will Decide if Bill Returns to Conference.

BORAH APPEALS FOR PLAN

RECESS PLANS ARE UPSET

Democrats Object to Fixing at This Time a Date for Vote on Tariff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Although the Senate has agreed to vote at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on the conference report on the farm relief bill, the issue is so tightly drawn tonight that neither the export debenture plan advocates nor those opposed that program were willing to predict certain victory. It seemed assured that only one or two votes would decide the question.

Adoption of the report, in which the conferees urge elimination of the debenture provision, will dispose of agricultural legislation, at least for this session. Rejection will threw the farm bill back into conference with unpredictable results. Both sides were working hard tonight to achieve success tomorrow.

Farm leaders in the Democratic-Republican insurgent coalition approached the test with an air of confidence, borne out partly by the readiness with which Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, acquiesced in the agreement to vote tomorrow. On the other hand, conservative Republicans, among them Senators Moses and Fess, hoped they would win by the "skin of their teeth."

Object to Action on Recess.

Democrats, apparently believing they controlled the farm relief and tariff situation with the aid of the Republican insurgents, threw plans for a long recess into disorder when, after a conference, they announced objection to fixing at this time any date to vote on the tariff bill in the Autumn.

Nevertheless, if the farm bill conference report is adopted, Senator Watson, Republican floor leader, will propose an agreement to recess at least for a time. If the report is rejected, Mr. Watson presumably will ask for a short recess while the Finance Committee muddles over the tariff bill and the farm conferees again take the bill under consideration.

The debenture forces were stiffened today when Senator Borah, a supporter, called attention in the Senate to Republican party campaign pledges on farm relief and demanded economic equality for agriculture.

The Senator, who was chiefly responsible for President Hoover's summoning the special session of Congress, remarked that the Republicans were pledged to do everything possible to help the farmer, and that the candidate on the Republican ticket had dedicated himself to finding a solution."

Mr. Borah, who has been criticized in the Northwest for his stand on the debenture issue, spoke scathingly of newspapers that had criticized Senators supporting that plan. This led to a sharp clash with Senator Allen of Kansas, Republican publicity chief in the 1928 Presidential campaign and an administration supporter.

When Mr. Allen quoted mid-Western newspapers as charging that a coalition of Republicans and Democrats has pressed the debenture plan as a political embarrassment, Mr. Borah said this was a "cowardly insinuation," to which Senator Capper agreed.

Two Votes Likely to Decide.

So close is the debenture issue that noses are being most carefully counted, and the position of each Senator ascertained. In a recent vote the Senate retained the debenture plan by a vote of 47 to 44, and now a shift of only two votes is necessary to change the result. Efforts were being made tonight to persuade Senators Trammell and Fletcher of Florida and Cousens of Michigan to vote for the conference report.

It was stated that Senators King and Walsh of Massachusetts, who either voted against the debenture amendment or were paired against it, would now vote against the report, thus lining up with supporters of the proposal. Senator Wagner

HOOVER HAILS OUR NATIONAL PROGRESS

Structure Is Termed the Most Important in Beautification of the Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—President Hoover laid the cornerstone of the new Department of Commerce Building today with the trowel used by George Washington in similar exercises at the National Capitol 126 years ago.

The President contrasted the growth of the government since then, and described the ideals of the Department of Commerce, of which he was once the head, as the seeking "by cooperation and not compulsion" to maintain and give "the impulse of progress to commerce and industry in a nation whose successful economic life underlies advancement in every other field."

The new structure not only will be the largest of the group of government buildings now being erected here, but is looked upon as the largest office building in the world. The President expressed his pleasure in having helped to plan the structure.

Secretary of Commerce Lamont presided, and other speakers were Senator Smoot, George H. Cortelyou of New York, the first Secretary of Commerce, and Representative Richard N. Elliott, Chairman of the House Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Text of the President's Address.

President Hoover said:

On an occasion which so peculiarly marks the progress of this great national institution, it is a particular pleasure to welcome those men who, as former Secretaries of Commerce, have contributed to its upbuilding, and I may perhaps, be pardoned for an especial pride on this occasion, having served for seven years in the department and having had some part in the design and initiation of this building. Those who have presided over this department truly appreciate the significance and the inspiration of this occasion. It marks the emergence of the Department of Commerce into full maturity and service.

Setting the cornerstone of any great public building in the city of Washington is also a milestone of progress, not only of the capital but of the nation as a whole. This building will be not only the largest single public structure in the city but in actual floor space it is said to be the largest office building in the world. It represents the most important structure in the new program for better accommodation of our government and the beautification of our national capital.

By The Associated Press.

BREWSTER, N. Y., June 10.—Silverware valued at $10,000 was recovered here by State police today in an abandoned automobile a few hours after it was stolen from the Millbrook (N. Y.) home of Thomas W. Lamont, partne in the J. P. Morgan banking house.

The automobile, a coupe, had been slightly damaged in a collision with another car on a bridge near Brewster. State police said they learned that two men who had occupied the coupe ran away after the collision.

When the automobile was towed to a Brewster garage, State police opened the rear compartment and found 302 pieces of silver, a set of burglar tools, and a rope.

A short time later State police at

Millbrook were notified by Mrs. Lamont that she was awakened early today by the sound of some one moving about the house. She said that she feared to leave her room, but did look out of her window and saw two men, one of them carrying a large bag, running across the lawn to the State highway near by.

Police said they found in the abandoned automobile screwdrivers, carving knife, a razor, two pairs of rubber gloves, a flash light and a number of pieces of flatware.

State troopers at White Plains said tonight that one of the men who abandoned the automobile had been partially identified.

Mr. Lamont is en route home from Paris, where he has been an alternate United States representative to the reparations conference.

Brooklyn Matador Kills Two Bulls in Spain; Seville Throng Carries Franklin in Triumph

By The Associated Press.

SEVILLE, Spain, June 10.—Sidney Franklin of Brooklyn, N. Y., who went into the bullfighting profession after a visit to Mexico, scored a triumph in the principal arena here yesterday, killing two bulls.

The spectators gave him a tremendous ovation, carrying him on their shoulders out of the bull ring and shouting, "Viva el Americano." ("Long live the American.")

Franklin went to Mexico to study Mayan history and art but its became so interested in bullfighting that he gave up his work and began a study of the art of the matador, in which he achieved much skill.

When in New York recently Franklin said he planned to return from Spain to the United States and try to introduce bullfighting in this country.

In the average corrida, or afternoon, of bullfighting, six or eight bulls are killed, and the affair becomes a contest between the two or three espadas or star bullfighters who may be performing. Since the report mentions that Franklin killed two bulls, it is probable that three espadas were contesting, with six bulls producing the afternoon's sport. The contest consists in the style and grace with which the espada does his part.

The work which Franklin was called upon to do in each contest he accomplished with his own cuadrilla or team of several helpers—picadores, banderilleros, and peons. When the bull is first introduced into the ring, the peons play him for an instant, after which the espada tests the creature's mettle for another moments. In this the heavy capa is used, a cape not to be confused with the muleta, the dark red flag-like cape which the espada uses in the final episode, the muerte.

A bugle sounds the beginning of the next episode, in which the picadores take part. Follows the planting of the darts or banderilleros, and the final triumph of the espada.

who opposed the plan, will vote for the report, it is said.

Senator Shipstead, the Farmer-Labor member, who has been ill in a Baltimore hospital, but was gained for the plan, will be present tomorrow, it is said, to support it.

The Democrats in their conference agreed to vote on the farm bill at any time; and on the National origins question before the end of the week. But when Senator Nye, proponent of National origins repeal, later sought an agreement for a vote, Senator Heflin, a Democrat, refused to consent.

Objection by the Democrats to fixing a date to vote on the tariff, in the Fall, was encountered. Heretofore, they said they would be willing, provided they were allowed an opportunity to present amendments. As a result of their opposition, Congress may take a recess of not more than a month and then perhaps adjourn every three days, until the Finance Committee finishes with the tariff bill.

States Democratic Position.

The attitude of the Democrats was set forth in this statement from Senator Robinson:

"The conference discussed at length the business of the Senate, including farm relief, national origins and tariff. The unanimous opinion of those present appears to be that a vote should be had in the early future on the motion to agree to the conference report on the farm bill and the question relating to national origins.

"We will consent to any arrangement the majority makes, pending the hearings on the tariff bill, but no agreement will be entered into now to fix a date for a vote on the tariff bill.

"Our desire is to proceed in the Senate in such a manner as will dispose of all questions brought forward during the extra session in an orderly way, and we believe that this disposition should be made during the present session. There is no purpose to delay action on any of the subjects referred to, but we feel that they should be considered with as promptly as practicable.

"So far as the chairman of the conference now knows, a vote may be reached tomorrow on the farm bill conference report, and before the end of the week on the national origins issue."

Senator Robinson also expressed the opinion that no proposals would be entertained to limit debate on the tariff bill until it was reported from the Finance Committee. He said that no attempt was made in the conference to bind Democrats upon the debenture question.

Borah Says Party Is on Trial.

Mr. Borah's speech was a determined demand that the farmer receive comparative protection with that accorded to industry. Time and again, in his remarks, he reminded the Republicans that their party is on trial with the agriculturists, who were "very near to beggary," when it came to finding a brief.

He said that 6,500,000 farmers in the United States represented a population of 30,000,000, and their average income was $726 as compared to $1,400-$1,500 for an industrial worker.

"The American farmer is on the lowest rung of the income ladder," he said. "These conditions should move Congress to give the most candid consideration and unbiased thought."

The farmer, he argued, paid one-tenth of his income for taxes before the war, but now he pays one-third. He said freight rates had risen 60 per cent in the post-war period, and that $2,500,000,000 of agricultural imports arrived annually, although the farmer was prepared to raise these crops.

"I must assist," he continued, "that with such conditions, no man will hesitate to support relief which, it can be demonstrated, will bring relief. I will not assume that any man has his mind closed."

Although Mr. Borah did not mention President Hoover's name, it seemed clear that he had the President in mind in these words.

Recalls Kansas City Pledges.

Passing on to the Kansas City convention of "just about a year ago," Senator Borah said that while sections of the press charged that the debenture plan had never been mentioned in the campaign, yet the Republican party had pledged itself to "aid in every possible way."

"We pledged ourselves to do everything possible to aid the farmer," he said. "We pledged ourselves to do everything to place the farmer on a basis of economic equality. We who advocate the debenture, think we can show it is one of the essentials to that program. If it is essential, we must not repudiate it because it was not specifically mentioned in the campaign."

Senator Allen commented that the debenture plan was not included in the platform. Mr. Borah conceded as much, but reiterated the pledge to do everything necessary for the farmer. He said also a great farm organization—the National Grange—had backed the plan.

"Why didn't you put it in the platform; you didn't expect to fool these people?" retorted Senator Allen.

"Running through the minds" of both the Republican and Democratic conventions was the matter of farm relief, Senator Borah stated, reading from the respective platforms.

"Both parties were pledged to put the farmer on a basis of equality with industry," he continued. "Let no one quibble about that. The real question of the campaign was which party was more likely to carry the pledge into effect. We are pledged to find a solution and the candidate on the Republican ticket recognized that and dedicated himself to finding a solution."

Sees Test of Tariff System.

Contending that the farmers' plight now is worse than a year ago, Mr. Borah said that while he believed in the protective tariff system, it was now being "tested" to ascertain whether it would be adjusted to all, "or only a few."

Farmers, he declared, were not seeking "a gratuity" but merely equality, even though some newspapers had charged them with "asking for something from the Treasury."

"After the debenture vote," he continued, "there was an editorial onslaught upon those who voted for the debenture. I treated myself to the pleasure of reading about 100 of these editorials. After you had waded through the mass of common ordinary Billingsgate personal attacks, and vituperation, two facts emerged."

These facts, he said, were that the editorial writers opposed the debenture plan and any special tariff for agriculture, or as Senator Borah said, "adequate duties on farm products."

A little later Senator Allen asked Mr. Borah to name specific editorials.

"I have read more than 200 editorials," Mr. Allen said. "Those from the mid-West seemed unanimous in saying we made a mistake in the Senate to endanger farm legislation by the debenture. Many were surprised it had been introduced. Some were from the Senator's State, but I do not accuse h[illegible] tency. The general opinion was that the Democrats, joined by the non-partisanists, managed a coalition to defeat farm legislation." Mr. Borah commented that Senator Allen had right in thinking the editorials unanimous—"to read them, you would think they had all been written by the same man."

Senator Copeland broke in to ask Mr. Allen if he thought the sole purpose of the Democrats, as stated in the editorials, was to embarrass the President for defeat of farm legislation. Mr. Allen replied that the question was "rather for scientific determination than public discussion."

"And the Senator," Senator Caraway interjected, shaking his finger at Mr. Allen, "is ready to trade any proposition to be with the President."

Borah Retorts to Allen.

Looking angrily at Mr. Allen, Mr. Borah charged:

"If the Senator questions the integrity of those who voted for the debenture, we will debate that for a time."

Mr. Allen said he was concerned to know if Mr. Borah was doing an injustice to the editorial profession by "reading into the editorials something he wished to read into them."

"The Senator," Mr. Borah answered, "said a few moments ago that Democrats and a certain contingent on this side of the aisle seemed [illegible] to have a desire to put the debenture in this bill to embarrass the political situation. So far as I am concerned, that was a cowardly insinuation."

"I concur that the statement was a cowardly insinuation," Mr. Copeland interjected.

During an interchange with Senator Edge Mr. Borah said the "curse of the farm bill" was that it did so little for American agriculture. He said an idea had been promulgated in the last fifteen days that farm relief would raise the cost of living.

He criticised Secretary of the Navy Adams for his Boston speech against debenture proponents.

"I believe the debenture the only immediate and effective relief for the farmer," Mr. Borah concluded. "If you give it up, you put the farmer outside of the protective system. Then when the tariff bill comes over here you will be asked to give up duties for adequate protection for agriculture. Under the House bill any benefit to the farmer is far outweighed by other duties removed."

The agreement to vote on the farm relief conference report at 4 P. M. today was proposed by Senator McNary and was consented to unanimously.

New Line Has Space for Only 20 on Its First Flight to Los Angeles July 7.

About 1,000 persons have applied for passage on the planes that will open the air-rail service between New York and Los Angeles on July 7 by the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., and only twenty can be accepted, the air line and the Pennsylvania Railroad announced yesterday. Applications are still coming in from all parts of the country.

Tickets including both rail and plane passage cost about $350. Thus the line is forced to turn away more than $300,000 in business at its inception.

The names of the first passengers have not yet been announced. The fortunate twenty will leave New York in the evening of July 7 on the "Airway Limited" of the Pennsylvania Railroad and transfer the next morning to two-motored Ford planes at Port Columbus, the new combined airport and railroad station just outside of Columbus, Ohio. They will fly that day across Ohio, Indiana, Missouri and Kansas and into Oklahoma, where at Waynoka they board sleepers on a Santa Fe limited train for the night.

The next morning at Clovis, N. M., they will again board air transports, and arrive that evening at Los Angeles in time for dinner.

When the westbound passengers take off from Columbus another group will be starting on the first trip from Los Angeles.

The companies have been working nearly two years on plans for the service, and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, chairman of the technical committee of the air company, has made many flights across the country laying out the course to be flown.

COMPROMISE MADE ON REAPPORTIONING

All Conferees Sign New Plan to Start Census April 1, 1930, Under Civil Service.

ACT AFTER HOUSE REBUFF

Bill Reconstituted by Vote of 149 to 132, Now Said to Have Clear Road to Passage.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The census and reapportionment bill, a subject of long-drawn-out controversy in Congress, cleared another hurdle today. After the House refused to accept the report of the conference committee and had recommitted the bill, by a vote of 160 to 136, to the joint committee, a new compromise was worked out.

Under its terms the Census Bureau will begin its enumeration of the population on April 1, 1930, instead of in November, 1929, as provided by the Senate, or on May 1, 1930, as originally proposed by the House, and its special agents, numbering about 500, will be appointed by certification for the Civil Service Committee.

The new conference report bears the signatures of all the conferees and the leaders appear to be confident that it will be adopted by both Houses in its present form.

Representative McLeod, Republican, of Michigan, a member of the conference committee, said that the compromise report cleared away the last obstacle to reapportionment, and that final approval of the bill in the next few days was certain.

For a few moments today House leaders were fearful that the bill was again endangered. There were many Republican absentees. The conference report on the bill, prepared on Saturday, was brought up and, after a brief but stormy debate, was rejected.

Representative Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi, sponsored the protest against the report when he proposed a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to the conference committee to change the date of enumeration to May 1, 1930.

Mr. Rankin obtained the support of all the opponents of reapportionment for his motion, as well as many that Democratic members who had previously voted for the bill.

His motion came as a surprise to many of the supporters of the bill. At the roll-call 133 members, most of them in favor of the bill, were off the floor. The Tammany delegation, all in favor of the bill, had not yet returned from its week-end in New York City.

Rejection of the November, 1929, date was based on the assumption that it would be impossible to take a census at that time of year.

"How are you going to take a census in Maine in the Winter time, when the snow in that State is three feet deep?" Mr. Rankin asked in urging support for the motion to recommit.

Representative Cole, Republican, of Iowa, which State would lose membership under the bill, also opposed the November date.

Representative Lozier, Democrat, of Missouri, told the House that if the farm census were taken in the Winter, when many farm residents were at work in urban factories, from twenty-six to thirty House members would be shifted from rural to city districts.

Adoption of the civil service provision for the special agents was a concession to the Senate to assure an agreement of its conferees to the change in the date.

STIMSON'S PARROT HERE FROM MANILA

After making a 12,000-mile sea voyage to New York from Manila via San Francisco and the Panama Canal, the pet parrot that was left behind by Henry L. Stimson, then Governor General of the Philippines, arrived here safely yesterday on the President Wilson of the Dollar Line.

Captain E. F. Anderson, master of the vessel, said the bird, called "Old Soak," had grieved so much over its owner that it was decided in Manila to send the parrot to Washington.

The parrot spoke a few words of "pidgin" English on the voyage and used expressions such as "Can do," "Me no likee," "Allee same fool," "Plenty dollar, plenty rum," "Too much talkee no good" and others the bird had picked up at Manila and Singapore. "Old Soak" had to be given a few dried chilies daily in his food to keep him from getting low spirited.

Representatives of the United States Treasury Department, who went down the bay to meet the President Wilson, had been requested to see that the Secretary of State's parrot was properly taken care of, and arrangements had been made to send it through to Washington by the Congressional Limited.

Captain Anderson said the bird had been visited at every port on the six weeks' voyage from Manila to New York and had refused such delicacies as bananas and pineapples in his quests to shake its claw. It picked up the Hindustanee word "chalo," which means "go," without any tedious preliminaries and repeated it frequently with the proper emphasis when crowded too much by sightseers at the ports.

700 at Dinner for General Dyer.

Seven hundred men and women honored Brigadier General George R. Dyer at a dinner last night at the Commodore on the fortieth anniversary of his entry into the New York National Guard. He enlisted in Company K of the Seventh Infantry Regiment on June 10, 1889, and now commands the Eighty-seventh Infantry Brigade. The speakers were Major General John F. O'Ryan, Justice Frederick Kernochan and Colonel Francis Hoppin.

OIL STATES OPPOSE HOOVER'S PROGRAM

REQUA URGES COOPERATION

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., June 10.—The national oil conservation conference now in session here is far from being unanimous for the Hoover plan for the conservation of the great oil resources of the country.

That the Hoover proposal, which contemplates an interstate compact for the elimination of physical and economic waste in the oil industry, is facing difficulty was indicated on all sides this afternoon when Representatives of Colorado, Wyoming and Louisiana made it plain they were not for the plan as now proposed. Oklahoma and Texas were non-committal. California and Pennsylvania, it is understood, are for the plan.

Colorado, led by its Democratic Governor Adams, was, with the possible exception of Louisiana, the most outspoken. Colorado took the position that the Hoover restriction order of March 12 was in effect a suspension of the operation of the oil leasing act of 1920, that it operated against the so-called public lands States only and was, in the opinion of the delegation, illegal.

Texas and Oklahoma, of the "Big Three," California being the third, took the position that the question was one of such magnitude as to require Federal rather than State legislation to make conservation effective. Unless Congress first acted, these States contended, the Legislatures of the oil States would hesitate before taking action. The delegations from these States said they came to Colorado Springs without authority to pledge the executive or legislative authorities of their Commonwealths.

Mark Requa Urges Action.

Mark L. Requa, chairman of the conference and intimate friend of the President, urged the representatives of the oil-producing States and of the oil corporations here to get together on a plan to end war by controlling drilling. If the oil interests themselves would not cooperate to bring about conservation of this vital national resource, he would, he declared, urge rigid government coercive regulation of the industry.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, who is here as the representative of President Hoover, previously addressed the conference, declaring that the solution of the nation's oil problem rested primarily with the States.

A simple compact of the oil States, ratified by Congress, would in his opinion go a long way toward making conservation an actual thing in the United States.

"The oil industry," said Secretary Wilbur, "faces a difficult and complicated situation which can only be met by an earnest study of all of the factors involved and by a spirit of cooperation.

"Primarily, the responsibility for the handling of this oil problem lies with the industry and with the governments of the States. Only a small proportion of the producing lands are in the public domain, although a large potential supply is in those areas should be safeguarded.

"The position of the Federal Government is not to interfere with the rights and duties of the local State governments, but to lend such aid as it can and to participate in the solution of the problems. This administration has no desire to concentrate the forces of government in Washington. It has every desire to cooperate with the States.

"The suggestion has been made that some form of cooperation between the States and the National Government would be the most effective method of eliminating waste and conserving our limited supply, and that by such action we could avoid all price-fixing operations.

"The enforcement of the conservation laws of the major producing States by the enactment of identical conservation legislation and the uniformity of enforcement of same kept constantly in joint commission. This could be created by a simple compact of the States ratified by Congress."

Mr. Requa asserted that President Hoover's withdrawal of government oil lands from entry was not only proof of the President's views of the oil problem, but was the act of a statesman and a demonstration of the President's grasp of the economic basis of the problem. The act of the President, he added, was "timely, wise, patriotic and necessary."

"It must not be overlooked," Mr. Requa said, "that this problem of petroleum that is local to the States and national to the United States is international as well. We are, in short, confronted with a problem in the complete solution of which international cooperation and conservation alone will supply the ultimate answer in the years to come."

The failure of the oil industry and the States to grasp the opportunity to make possible conservation of the country's resources would merit forceful regulation by the Federal government, he insisted.

E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, pledged that association to any practical plan which might be adopted by the conference for oil conservation.

"President Hoover," said Mr. Reeser, "understands this oil problem. In initiating this conference, he challenged the industry and the government to join forces in working out the problem in a broad comprehensive way."

Leaders of Industry for Plan.

Between 300 and 400 oil men are attending the conference, including R. C. Holmes, president of the Texas Company; K. R. Kingsley, president of the Standard Oil Company of California; G. Leigh Jones, president of the Shell Company; W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the board of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company; C. F. Meyers, president of the Standard Oil Company of New York. These named, present as delegates of the American Petroleum Institute, are all said to be for the Hoover plan.

A caucus of the Colorado delegation produced a statement, which was read to the conference, in which the Hoover order of March 12 was scored as destructive of States rights and as unlawful. Furthermore, declared the Colorado delegation, the Presidential order was not an aid to conservation as the administration asserted.

"We believe," the Colorado statement said, "the order violates the policy of law observance so earnestly and commendably advocated by President Hoover."

Former Attorney General Crane of Texas, who spoke for Governor Moody, said that Congress and not the oil producing States should take the initiative in seeking to put into law a workable oil conservation policy. Oklahoma took the same position, and so did Kansas. Governor Reed of that State saying that "only the Federal Government can handle so vast and vital a problem as the oil proposition is."

W. Scott Haywood of Louisiana warned the convention that Governor Long of that State would fight any movement for a compact of States which failed to safeguard the interests of the independents, the royalty owners and the people of Louisiana. He urged Federal regulation and stabilization of oil prices if foreign oil was to come in duty free.

Move Against Hoover Order Fails.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., June 10 (AP).—An initial attempt at the Oil Conservation Conference here to obtain action on a resolution favoring rescinding of President Hoover's order of March 12 barring further prospecting on public lands, fell short tonight when Chairman Mrak L. Requa ruled a resolution to that effect out of order.

GERMANY SEEKS AIR STATUS

Asks Admission to Commission in Session in Paris.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, June 10.—Germany's application for membership was one of the most important questions scheduled for consideration by the International Commission for Air Navigation which began a ten-day session this morning at the French Foreign Ministry. Forty nations, including sixteen non-members, were represented at the opening session.

The United States, as a non-member, sent a delegation headed by William P. MacCracken, Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics.

Questions of immigration and customs control at Continental air ports were taken up today and the Americans, not being concerned, took no part in the discussion, according to Mr. MacCracken.

years ago. It has cannot but recall the growth of this city and of our country which that period so uniquely represents. When President Washington laid that cornerstone, this particular spot was but a swamp traversed by little more than a cow-path which led from the beginnings of the Capitol to the beginnings of the White House.

Even when, seven years later, the administrative bureaus of the government were moved from New York and Philadelphia and set up in Washington, they consisted, in entire personnel of officials and clerical force, of less than 150 persons.

Since that time the administrative functions of the government have been expanded year by year until they now require twenty times as many officials for each million of people as were required then. While there may be complaints over the expansion in other directions, this department cannot be a subject of them, for it is devoted solely to aid and foster the development of higher standards of living and comfort of our people.

The beginnings of the idea to create a Department of Commerce are perhaps obscure. There was no provision in the Constitution for any Cabinet officer, department or bureau. A nation struggling for liberty and freedom naturally gave more thought to provision for fundamental freedom by formulation of law for its protection than to the administration of those laws, but, necessarily, administration quickly followed.

Hamilton's Vision Fulfilled.

In advising upon the divisions into which administrative work should be assigned, it is said that Alexander Hamilton proposed the creation of six departments—State, Treasury, War, Justice, Postoffice and Trade. But, out of economy, the last-named department was not created. It was not until 114 years later that that function which he then described emerged as the Department of Commerce.

As Secretary of the Treasury, however, Hamilton's vision well comprehended the necessities of Federal Government activity in support of commerce and industry. Of the bureaus which are now included in the Department of Commerce, those of patents, census, lighthouses and navigation were established by him in the Treasury.

During the hundred years before the founding of the department, other bureaus were created and finally brought together into a homogeneous organization, with full Cabinet representation, under President Roosevelt, and with Mr. Cortelyou as its first Secretary.

The twenty-six years since its foundation have shown an extraordinary expansion and change until the department has evolved into its present impressive size and helpfulness. And its ideals are clear: that by cooperation, and not by compulsion, it should seek to assist in maintaining and giving the impulse of progress to commerce and industry in a nation whose successful economic life underlies advancement in every other field.

Lamont Sketches National Changes.

Secretary Lamont, in his address, said that in the building will be housed the greatest fact-finding institution in the country. The department, now 26 years old, is entirely cooperative in its functions, he explained, and its duty is to broaden and benefit commerce and trade.

Since the department was founded, Mr. Lamont continued, the population has increased 60 per cent and manufactures 40 per cent. In 1909 there was one automobile to every 2,500 persons and now there is one for every five. Telephones have increased from 2,500,000 to 19,000,000.

"This changed situation is not regarded by our business men with thoughtless pride," he said. "We are not heedlessly boastful at the conquest of new markets abroad. Rather, our mood is one of sober responsibility; we feel that we are not merely possessed of an opportunity, but are charged with a duty so wisely to administer this trusteeship of wealth that we shall further enrich not ourselves alone but every place and country that is reached by the fertilising and vivifying influence of our trade."

Mr. Cortelyou recalled the modest beginning of the Department of Commerce on July 1, 1903, when it was established in the old Willard building at 513 Fourteenth Street, Northwest.

"In my successors," Mr. Cortelyou said, "the department has had a long line of distinguished Secretaries. It enjoys the rare distinction of having given to the country a President. It was Mr. Hoover's record as Secretary of Commerce that confirmed the people in the belief they had been entertained of his fitness to assume the great responsibilities of the Presidency—a belief amply justified by the event. The department, as well as the country, it is fortunate in having as Chief Executive one who so thoroughly understands its needs and its problems."

Representative Elliott, who as chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds has had an important part in planning the government buildings, told the history of the legislation involved and of the money which the government proposes to expend here and in other parts of the country.

Mr. Elliott pointed out that the nation has undertaken "the most stupendous building program ever adopted by this or any other government," a unique program in that for the first time it is definite and businesslike. The total sum authorized for the capital is $115,000,000; for the nation at large, $248,000,000, the total of $363,000,000 to be expended at the rate of $35,000,000 annually.

Representative Elliott paid a tribute to the late Senator Bert M. Fernald, who cooperated with him by piloting the public building program through the Senate.

"When I assumed the position as chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House of Representatives," Mr. Elliott said, "I was met with a calendar containing more than 900 public building bills asking for buildings in almost every city and hamlet in the country and calling for an expenditure of more than $300,000,000.

"I knew the old pork-barrel method of handling public building legislation had fallen into disrepute, and that a new method would have to be devised to handle this work. After careful study of the situation and consultation with many members of the House and Senate, I conceived the plan we have adopted and succeeded in getting the approval of the same by President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon.

"After a red-hot fight in the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House I finally succeeded in getting the bill reported to the House with some amendments and after another hard fight in the House it went to the Senate, where it was viewed with alarm by some and contempt by others and allowed to die at the end of the Sixty-eighth Congress.

"I re-introduced the bill at the beginning of the Sixty-ninth Congress and it was passed promptly by the House by a vote of about three-fourths of the membership of that body. It went again to the Senate where I succeeded in getting the late Senator Bert M. Fernald of Maine, chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to take an interest in it and who succeeded after a very hard fight in getting the Senate to pass the bill, which it did with some misgivings.

"The Sixty-ninth and Seventieth Congresses will go down in history as having done more to provide sufficient and adequate public buildings to house the employees of our government and promote the efficiency of the public service than all of the other Congresses combined. The individual members of the committees on Public Buildings and Grounds of the House and Senate are also entitled to recognition here today."

Smoot Praises Department.

Senator Smoot said that in innumerable ways the Commerce Department aids American industry through scientific investigation, patient and exhaustive research, and the consequent establishment of standards.

"As we lay today the cornerstone of this building," the Senator continued, "let us hope that, in a measure, we are helping to lay also a foundation for the progressive betterment of economic life in this country. To that ideal we shall dedicate this structure.

"But I feel that we must go further than the dedication of any edifice of stone and steel, however majestic and pleasing that may be. We must dedicate ourselves by service, the service of America—an America mighty in material achievement, pulsating with power, noble in impulse, lofty in aspiration, swift in movement and beautiful in aspect—adding to the sum of human happiness, courage and dynamic faith."

In the cornerstone was placed a box containing the Bible, the Constitution, the flag, a medallion of President Hoover, a miniature of the trowel used by President Washington in laying the cornerstone of the Capitol, copies of The Washington Star, Times, News, Post and Herald, a copy of THE NEW YORK TIMES of May 15, 1929 (rag paper edition), and copies of the addresses delivered at the laying of the cornerstone by President Hoover, Secretary Lamont, Senator Smoot, Representative Elliott and Mr. Cortelyou.

Building Covers Eight Acres.

The new building stands on Fifteenth Street, south of Pennsylvania Avenue, at the base of the so-called "Pennsylvania Avenue triangle." It will cost $17,500,000. While it has a classic base, in detail and general freedom the design resembles more the buildings done by San Macheli during the Italian Renaissance. It will occupy three complete city squares. Its length, 1,050 feet, exceeds that of the Capitol by 300 feet, although its breadth, 250 feet, is twenty-five feet less. It is also longer than the British Houses of Parliament by 110 feet, though not so wide.

The area occupied is about 345,000 square feet, nearly eight acres. The building will rise seven stories above a complete basement and a subbasement for the heating and power plant.

The setting of the structure is one of natural beauty. From its southwest corner at Fifteenth and B Streets, Northwest, it looks southward over the grounds to the Washington Monument and westward over the park lying south of the White House. The view northward will be over B Street and a triangular park toward Pennsylvania Avenue.

Smart . . . last year . . . this year . . . next year

It is not usual to expect continued smartness in a car . . . but then the Lincoln is not a usual car. The foremost coachmakers contribute their best craftsmanship to give it a type of beauty rather finer than need be, perhaps—but beauty that cannot be finished by passing modes and fancies. And in the chassis there is engineering that makes for years of silent, carefree performance — keeping a Lincoln modern in what it does, much as its unchanging style keeps it modern in appearance.

A few thousand miles of use, a year or so of age, are really very little in the life of such a car as the Lincoln. Lincolns of previous years care with some service—Lincolns in everything the name implies—are sometimes sold by dealers at most attractive rates. Authorized Lincoln dealers are always glad to demonstrate them to you, without the slightest obligation. Drop in today.

PROJECT TO TAKE 5 YEARS

Estimate Board Likely to Make an Additional Appropriation for Preliminary Expenses.

Construction of a vehicular tunnel under the Narrows of New York Bay between Ninety-seventh Street, Brooklyn, and Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island, to be completed in five years at an estimated cost of $78,000,000, was recommended to the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate yesterday in a joint report of the Board of Transportation and the Department of Plant and Structures.

The report was made in obedience to a resolution adopted by the Board of Estimate on March 11, when surveys of location and estimates of probable cost of the project, as well as of the Triborough Bridge, were ordered, and Controller Berry was authorized to issue corporate stock and serial bonds to meet construction charges. Later, the Municipal Assembly passed a bill empowering the city to collect tolls on both the bridge and the tunnel, thus making it legal, in the opinion of the city's law department, to finance the projects with long-term bonds without recourse to special State legislation.

The Narrows tunnel project will come before the formal session of the Estimate Board on Thursday, when an additional appropriation may be made for preliminary expenses.

Reject Bay Ridge Location.

The engineers of the Board of Transportation and the Department of Plant and Structures, in considering the location of the Narrows tube, found unsuitable the location between Bay Ridge, Brooklyn, and St. George, Staten Island, where two shafts have already been constructed at each shore. This location for a vehicular tunnel, they reported, would necessitate a ventilation shaft in the middle of the bay as well as two additional land shafts and would add $25,000,000 to the cost of construction. The bore of the present shafts, the report indicated, would have to be enlarged to permit vehicular traffic or else such traffic would have to be restricted to small vehicles. The cost of operation, it declared, would be greater than in the location recommended, because the tunnel, stretching about two miles, would be twice as long.

"The engineers regard the Bay Ridge-St. George location as superior for railroad freight and passenger purposes," the report added, "as it offers convenient and accessible connections with the railroads on each side of the harbor."

The tunnel recommended in the joint report will be a mile long and will consist of twin tubes. Its westbound portal in Brooklyn is to be located on the westerly side of Third Avenue, near Eighty-eighth Street, from which point the approach would pass under Third Avenue to Ninety-sixth Street, Marine Avenue and Ninety-seventh Street and Shore Road Park. This tunnel would turn north under the Staten Island shore near Fort Wadsworth and thence under private property and intersecting streets to a portal between St. Johns Avenue and Hylan Boulevard, near Bay Street.

The entrance in Staten Island to the eastbound tunnel to Brooklyn would be located in the block between St. Johns Avenue and Hylan Boulevard close to the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway and would proceed thence under private property and intersecting streets and along the northerly boundary of Fort Wadsworth under the Narrows and along and under Fifth Avenue to an exit portal at about Eighty-third Street in Brooklyn.

4,700 Feet Under Water.

The length of the tunnel under water would be 4,700 feet. The distance between the portals of the westbound tunnel would be 11,110 feet and between those of the eastbound tube 12,800 feet. There would be 2,000 feet of open approach in Staten Island, but only 500 feet of such approach in Brooklyn.

The report bases the cost estimate of $78,000,000 on a 3 per cent grade for exit approaches and suggests that it may be reduced by $4,000,000 if further engineering study indicates that a 3½ per cent grade would be practicable. The engineers believe that to obtain maximum bidding for construction the contracts should be prepared either for the shield-driven or the trench method of construction, the latter being from $5,000,000 to $9,000,000 cheaper.

In the report is stressed the accessibility of the proposed Brooklyn portal to many important traffic arteries leading to the Manhattan Bridge, Prospect Park, Flatbush, Jamaica and points on Long Island, as well as to beach resorts in Brooklyn and The Rockaways. The Staten Island entrances and exits are described as accessible to Hylan Boulevard, which extends the entire length of the island, leading to the Tottenville Bridge to Perth Amboy. The portals are also accessible to Tompkins Avenue and Clove Road, connecting across the island with the Port Richmond-Elizabeth Bridge and the proposed bridge over Kill van Kull to Bayonne. The report suggests a large plaza in Staten Island, bounded by St. John's Avenue, Hylan Boulevard, Bay Street and the Staten Island rapid transit line to provide space for collection of tolls.

The top of the tunnel, according to the report, will be ninety-three feet below tidewater in the centre of the Narrows. This location will require the approval of the War Department. The general engineering features to be embodied in the tunnel, the report declared, will be similar to those adopted in the construction of the Holland tunnel under the Hudson.

NARROWS TUBE AS PLANNED BY EXPERTS.

The map shows the location recommended by city engineers for the twin tunnels, and the location between Bay Ridge and St. George which they rejected for this tunnel but favored for a railroad tube.

TOLLS AUTHORIZED FOR 38TH ST. TUBE

HUDSON SPAN ISSUE SOLVED

Tentative Agreement Made With Port Authority for City to Build Tunnel Approach.

Several of the city's major projects for traffic relief were expedited yesterday when the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate held its final meeting before the Summer recess.

These included advancement of the plan for the Midtown Vehicular Tunnel under Manhattan and the East River, to connect Manhattan with Brooklyn and Queens; the New York approaches to the Hudson River Bridge linking the Fort Washington section with Fort Lee, N. J.; the vehicular tunnel under the Narrows, connecting Staten Island with Brooklyn, and the elevated express highway skirting the river front between Canal and West Seventy-second Streets.

Action on a resolution introduced by Mayor Walker paved the way for financing the construction of the vehicular crosstown tunnel under Thirty-eighth Street, as recommended by the engineering firm of Day & Zimmermann, at an estimated cost of $86,000,000. The purpose of the resolution, which will be formally ratified by the Board of Estimate on Thursday, was to amend the existing local law so as to declare this project a revenue producing enterprise, in the same class with the Triborough Bridge and the Narrows vehicular tube. By legalizing the collection of tolls, thus making the Midtown Tunnel a revenue-producing project, the Controller is empowered, at the direction of the Board of Estimate, to issue corporate stock (city bonds) to defray the cost of construction. The corporate stock issue eventually will be amortized by the toll revenues collected from tunnel traffic.

Bridge Traffic Tunnel Advanced.

The Committee of the Whole also reached a tentative agreement, which will be formally ratified on Thursday, with the Port of New York Authority, concerning the New York approaches to the Hudson River bridge. Acting upon the advice of Corporation Counsel Arthur J. W. Hilly that such an expedient would be legal, the board agreed to recommend that the city advance from its street improvement fund $300,000 to begin the construction of a traffic tunnel from the New York City plaza of the bridge eastward to Amsterdam Avenue, to relieve the surface approaches in carrying traffic to and from the big Hudson River span.

This land tunnel will afford access to and from the new bridge from the Washington Bridge over the Harlem and the Harlem River Speedway. Its completed cost is estimated at $3,000,000. The land tunnel will extend from the proposed bridge plaza at Fort Washington Avenue, between West 178th and 179th Streets, and will run to Amsterdam Avenue, passing under Broadway and Wadsworth, St. Nicholas and Audubon Avenues, thus avoiding interference with north and south bound traffic on these thoroughfares and diffusing bridge traffic well inland from the river-front.

Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for the Port Authority, pledged that if the city would finance the construction of the land tunnel approach, the Port Authority would bind itself to carry the interest and amortization charges from bridge toll revenues after the bridge traffic has reached a volume of 10,000,000 vehicles a year. Meetings will be held simultaneously on Thursday by the Board of Estimate and the Port of New York Authority and mutually binding covenants to that effect will be exchanged.

This will clear the way for the immediate building of the tunnel in conjunction with the other features of the Manhattan approaches. It removes the main obstacle that has held up solution of the approach problem for the last six weeks and construction is expected to be begun in October.

The Port Authority, pleading lack of funds, did not want to build the land tunnel approach until after its revenues had been swelled by a minimum bridge traffic of 10,000,000 vehicles a year. The city authorities, however, fearing that the surface approaches would prove inadequate at an early day, insisted that the tunnel should be built in conjunction with the surface approach system. The compromise plan, now adopted, whereby the city finances the job as a street enterprise and the Port Authority carries the interest and amortization charges, was the suggestion of Mayor Walker.

Highway Agreement Pending.

Advancement of construction work upon the elevated express highway will depend upon an agreement being reached between Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan and the engineers of the Dock Department. Work upon the first section, extending from Canal to West Twenty-second Street, is already under way, but the letting of a contract for the second section, between Twenty-second and Forty-second Streets cannot proceed until it is determined at what point on the river front the city will build the proposed new 1,000-foot piers for the accommodation of the huge foreign steamships now being built. The Dock Department wants these piers in the neighborhood of Twenty-ninth Street, which would involve rerouting the express elevated highway near that point. Mr. Miller contends that the piers should be in the vicinity of Forty-eighth Street, where they would not interfere with the present line of the highway.

"We cannot go forward with another section of the highway," said Mayor Walker, "until there is an agreement with the Dock Department that the city's right to extend its river piers will be protected, if we ever get that right from the War Department."

The resolution for construction of the second section went over, but will remain on the calendar pending an agreement.

WALKER BUST IS GIVEN TO BROOKLYN MUSEUM

Mayor Gets 'Most Complete Surprise' of Life at Testimonial Luncheon.

A bronze bust of Mayor Walker was presented to the Brooklyn Museum yesterday at a luncheon given to the Mayor at the Unity Club, Bedford Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn. The presentation was a surprise to the Mayor, who came to the luncheon thinking it part of the celebration of the opening of the new traffic light system on Pitkin Avenue. Aaron D. Jacoby, director of the Brooklyn Hebrew Orphan Asylum, made the presentation. The bust was accepted by Dr. William Henry Fox, director of the museum.

Supreme Court Justice Mitchell May presided. At the speakers' table were Dr. Enrico Glicenstein, sculptor of the bust; John H. McCooey, Borough President Byrne, Deputy Registrar Hyman Shorenstein and Alderman Walter R. Hart.

Dr. Glicenstein molded the bust at City Hall during a series of sittings last June. In the Fall it was unveiled at a ceremony in the community centre of the Congregation B'nai Jeshurun in West Eighty-eighth Street, New York. Since then it has reposed in the studio of the sculptor at 65 West Sixty-fifth Street, New York. A group of the Mayor's friends, headed by Justice May, County Judge Algernon L. Nova, Deputy Register Shorenstein and Mr. Jacoby, decided to buy the bust and present it to the Brooklyn Museum. Yesterday's luncheon celebrated this presentation and developed into a testimonial to the Mayor.

Justice May introduced Mr. Jacoby, who made the presentation address.

"We are here to do honor not only to James J. Walker, Mayor of New York City," he said, "but to pay our tribute to Jimmy Walker, the 'real-est' New Yorker in New York, neighbor, friend and public servant." The 250 guests arose and applauded as the bust was unveiled and illuminated, immediately behind the Mayor's head. It was draped with flags of the city and nation.

Mayor Walker, in replying, said: "This is the most complete surprise in all my life. I am confounded and confused and more at a loss than ever before in my career. The glowing terms of these tributes make me feel humble, but if they accomplish nothing else they will keep my eyes forever upward. It is indeed the first time since inauguration day in 1926 that I really realize that I really am Mayor of New York. This occasion, in the parlance of the day, is the 'pay-off' for all my life."

PAPAL ENVOY VISITS PORTES GIL'S OFFICE

Ruiz and Diaz Are Said to Have Called to Arrange Details of Parleys on Religious Law.

PRESIDENT ABSENT AT TIME

Father Walsh of Georgetown University Is in Mexico, but Denies Acting for the Church.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—Contrary to expectations the Catholic rapprochement parleys did not begin today and Archbishop Ruiz y Flores, the Papal delegate, and Mgr. Pascual Diaz, Bishop of Tabasco, have not yet met President Portes Gil.

The prelates visited the National Palace where they were received this morning by Fernando Torreblanca, the President's secretary. Secrecy is maintained regarding the visit, but it is reported that it was for the purpose of arranging the first official interview. An official, however, said that no date had been set. After the call the prelates were whisked off to an unannounced destination.

At the time the Catholic envoys were at the National Palace, it is understood that Ambassador Morrow was with the President at his official residence at Chapultepec Palace. Mr. Morrow has had nothing to say for publication since his return from the United States.

Archbishop Ruiz and Bishop Diaz spent a long time in prayer yesterday at the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Mexico's patroness, in the suburb of Guadalupe, according to afternoon press reports today. Reports emphasize that this is the first known visit to any church of such high dignitaries since the crisis was precipitated in August, 1926, by the new religious laws.

Ruiz Denies Report as to Walsh.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A report published locally today that the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University and head of its Foreign Service School, who has been in Mexico City for several weeks, was there "as representative of the Vatican, engaged in negotiations with Mexican officials looking to a settlement of the religious controversy," was categorically denied today by Archbishop Ruiz, Apostolic Delegate in Mexico, who has just arrived at the Mexican capital to undertake such negotiations with President Portes Gil, and by Father Walsh.

Color was lent to the reports because it is well known here that Father Walsh holds close and cordial relations with Pius XI. He dealt with the Soviet authorities in Russia as a member of the staff of the American Relief Mission, and his work in that relation attracted so much notice at the Vatican that he was placed in charge of the Papal Relief Mission in Russia.

Father Walsh was in Russia when the troubles started that led to the prosecution of Archbishops Butchkevitch and Cieplak, as a result of which the former, Mgr. Butchkevitch, was put to death on a charge of treason. Mgr. Cieplak also was condemned to death, but his sentence, largely as a result of the good offices of Father Walsh, was commuted to imprisonment for ten years.

The present Pope frequently has called Father Walsh into consultation with respect to questions in Russia and the Far East relating to church affairs generally and relief work.

Doubt was expressed in church circles here today that Dr. Walsh had any official status on his present trip to Mexico. It was suggested that negotiations about to be instituted by Archbishop Ruiz looking to the re-establishment of the Catholic ecclesiastical organization in Mexico would be complicated by the interposition of any other agent.

Ruiz Telephones Denial.

Archbishop Ruiz made his denial in an interview in Mexico City and then telephoned it to representatives here for publication in the United States. Friends of Dr. Walsh here said he was in Mexico City on private business, but they did not understand that he had had anything to do with the pending settlement of the religious controversy.

In his interview, as made public here, Archbishop Ruiz said:

"The news item published in the press of this morning to the effect that an American priest had been appointed representative of the Vatican in negotiations between the Catholic Church and the government of Mexico, is without foundation in fact.

"I was appointed Apostolic Delegate to Mexico by the Holy See on the 18th day of May and, following the instructions of the Holy See, I consulted with the other Mexican Bishops, my colleagues. As a result I was given full representation of the Catholic Church in Mexico, with authority to confer with President Portes Gil regarding the status of the Church under the laws of Mexico. I am now in Mexico City for this purpose, having accepted an invitation extended to me through the Ambassador of Mexico in Washington."

Walsh Also Denies Reports.

Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the School of Foreign Service of Georgetown University, issued this statement tonight:

"I have talked over long distance telephone this afternoon with Dr. Walsh, who is in Mexico City and who has asked me to transmit to the press his denial of the reports. He dictated, word for word, the following statement:

"'I have been informed of a report in American newspapers to the effect that I have been named to the official capacity of envoy in the present negotiations between Church and State in Mexico. May I request that you deny this as entirely inaccurate and unauthorized. The only person named for that purpose by the Holy See being Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, the apostolic delegate.

"'As the existing differences lie entirely between the Mexican Government and the Catholic Church in Mexico the Holy See has very properly appointed a Mexican prelate of high standing to bring to a successful termination the negotiations which resulted from the constructive and praiseworthy statement made by the President of the republic on May 6.

"'Dr. Walsh informed me that he is in Mexico on private business.'"

Landslides Drive 30,000 Away From Hautes-Alpes in 20 Years

BRIANCON, France, June 10 (AP).—A government survey for the purpose of discovering why this wealthy department of the Hautes-Alpes has lost 30,000 inhabitants in twenty years has returned findings which might be summed up in the word "erosion."

The commission discovered that an average of 1,500 persons yearly were losing their property through landslides which barred the routes to the market centres and ruined the land for cultivation. One small town of 120 inhabitants, Molines-en-Chamsaur, was entirely wiped out in a day by a slowly moving hillside. The inhabitants escaped without loss of life, but lost all their property.

The clay subsoil and the excessive number of trees which were cut during the war is said to be responsible for the latest disasters.

POLA NEGRI FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

MONTE CARLO, June 10 (AP).—Pola Negri and her husband, Prince Serge Mdivani, seem to have come definitely to the parting of the ways.

Friends say that the trouble which has culminated in her suit for divorce started three months ago when they came to France. The Prince wanted to go to Monte Carlo and she didn't. The Prince said she absolutely forbade him to go, but he went anyway and when he returned their argument ended in her decision for a divorce.

She announced it to her closest friends two months ago, but the papers were filed only last week, when she was in England and the Prince at The Hague.

"Pola is a marvelous girl," the Prince said, "but life isn't always easy with a movie star. We have parted, but we are still good friends."

Pola Negri, born Appollonia Chalupez in Bromberg, Poland, entered a Warsaw dramatic school at 16, made her début in a play of Sudermann and took the leading rôle after a few years in Max Reinhardt's production, "Sumurun."

She made a change to the movies under Ernest Lubitsch, playing in "Passion" opposite Emil Jannings, and had such a great success that she came to America. Meanwhile, she had married Count Dombski, a Polish nobleman, but divorced him in a year's time.

In Hollywood she was reported as engaged to Charles Chaplin, but in May, 1927, married Serge Mdivani in her château in the village of Serraincourt in France. There have been several rumors of a rift in the the actress's domestic life during the last two years.

NO VOTE FOR ARMY URGED.

Mexican Party Considers Making It a Campaign Plank.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—A proposal to deny soldiers the right to vote will be taken up by the Anti-Reelectionist party at its convention scheduled to take place in Mexico City early in July. If the proposal is accepted by the convention, it will become a plank in the party's platform.

The proposition was suggested at a meeting just concluded here of the party's directors.

The proposal is considered one of the most important matters any political party in Mexico has ever considered. If it is put into effect it is believed it will remove politics from the army and perhaps that all future Presidents of Mexico would be civilians.

Other proposed planks are abolition of the death penalty and granting women suffrage.

Clemency for 28 Women Asked.

MEXICO CITY, June 10 (AP).—Friends and relatives of twenty women sent to the Islands of Tres Marias on May 1 for alleged attempts to aid the religious rebels have petitioned President Portes Gil to reconsider the sentences and grant clemency as was done in several cases recently. The petitions will be heard this week. The women were the first of their sex ever to be sent to the islands.

Named Swedish Finance Minister.

STOCKHOLM, June 10 (AP).—Peter Adolf Dahl has been named Minister of Finance, succeeding Dr. Nils Wohlin, who resigned last week under criticism from the Left groups in the Riksdag. Mr. Dahl has had considerable banking experience, and has been a member of the First Chamber or Senate since 1911. Dr. Wohlin was chiefly attacked by the radicals for planning the sale of the Bank of Agriculture, which the government had virtually taken over. Under pressure from the Left, the government finally decided to put more public capital into the bank.

ROUTE OF SWEDISH FLIERS.

Captain Ahrenberg and Companions Reached Reykjavik, Iceland, Early Last Evening and Planned Early Start for Greenland.

GREENLAND HOLDS DANGER FOR FLIERS

BASE PREPARED AT IVIGTUT

First Hangar in Greenland Awaits Ahrenberg—Bonfires to Guide Him.

By HELGE BANGSTED,

All Rights Reserved.

IVIGTUT, Greenland, June 10.—The Swedish Atlantic fliers are the first aviators to make a commercial transatlantic flight. The only logical route for such a service is by way of Iceland and Greenland, because if planes are to carry mail or freight they need bases at least within 800 miles of each other.

Iceland already has a good base for seaplanes at Reykjavik, created by the German Lufthansa and the Iceland Airmail Corporation. For the last two years the Lufthansa has had two planes at Reykjavik for airmail service.

Greenland, however, is quite another question. Here one is still beyond the fringes of civilization. Here there are no bases and everything must be transported, from airplane motors to matches, before anything can be started.

I was asked by Captain Ahrenberg to take charge of the preparations at the Greenland base at Ivigtut, which was used by the American world fliers in 1924 as a base, and so with Wilhelm Petersen, Danish Royal Air Service pilot, I left Copenhagen May 17 for Greenland, where I have spent much of my life.

Ivigtut, situated on the west coast, is Greenland's greatest mining town. Here is the only cryolith mine in the world, and the greater part of the product of the mine is shipped every year to a salt manufacturing company in Philadelphia.

I arrived here by steamer after a stormy voyage through pack ice that drifted up from the Greenland east coast, and have been very busy making everything ready for the fliers, who for the first time in history will cross the great inland ice cap of Greenland by plane.

There is no experience by which we can appraise this flight. The plane may be forced down by ice forming on the wings, and the fliers may encounter terrible arctic cyclones. The inland ice is the home of the storms, and it is impossible to forecast what will happen. Navigation over this icy wonder of nature is a struggle with instruments only and no landmarks for guides.

At the head of Arsukfjord, near Isblink, on the top of a high mountain I have made preparations for huge bonfires, which will throw up a thick, black smoke as a guide to the aviators when they are flying across the inland ice. This smoke should be visible for a distance of 150 to 200 kilometers. At Ivigtut I found a suitable hangar in which the plane can be protected from the weather.

Director Jagd has turned a building over to us, which we have transformed into a service station and repair shop, and where we have put all the spare parts for the motor and plane. This is the first hangar in Greenland.

Now that the first Greenland flying base is completed I have nothing to do but await the arrival of the plane.

TENTATIVE RECEPTION ARRANGED FOR SVERIGE

Plane Will Be Fitted With Wheels Here for Extended Tour About the Country.

Police Commissioner Whalen, as chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests, conferred yesterday with the Consul General of Sweden in New York, Olof H. Lamm, on plans for the reception here of Captain Albin Ahrenberg and his companions.

According to the tentative plan Captain Ahrenberg will land the seaplane Sverige on the waters of the harbor at the Statue of Liberty, where the police boat Macom, with the Commissioner and members of the committee aboard, will await them. After the plane alights it will be closely guarded by police boats and the fliers will go aboard the Macom. Following a brief cruise about the harbor they will be taken ashore at Pier A and escorted to the City Hall, where Mayor Walker will receive them.

If the hour of their arrival is late the reception at the City Hall will be postponed until the next day.

Preparations have already been made by the Junkers Corporation of America to take care of the plane and fit it with wheels for land flying at the seaplane base of the American Aeronautical Corporation on Manhasset Bay at Port Washington, L. I.

While the final decision will rest with Captain Ahrenberg, every facility has been provided for him to make an extended tour of the country in the Sverige before he and his companions set out on their return flight to Sweden.

The plane has about 1,000 letters aboard, and these will be turned over to the postoffice authorities here as soon as the plane comes down. Captain Ahrenberg expects to carry an equally large load of mail on his return flight.

SWEDISH FLIERS REACH REYKJAVIK

spite of the rather high sea. We were aided by the Magnhild's crew, and later on they treated us to food, coffee and other good things.

"In the beginning we could catch no answer to our radio requests for fuel from Reykjavik, but at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning the Iceland patrol boat Odinn arrived.

"Later the Odinn took our machine in tow and ourselves on board, where we were treated to meals following each other at short intervals.

"We saw that our machine had taken no damage after having been towed at ten knots speed from Skaptaros to Westman Island. We have had a splendid experience of its stability. When we boarded her at Westman Island harbor the whole machine was coated with salt.

"We had a mishap three hours before we reached the South of Iceland, when a waste pipe dropped, which caused the engines to make a horrible noise.

After this short report of the voyage, Captain Ahrenberg mentioned the welcome he had received in Reykjavik. "We have not made ourselves worthy of such a hearty welcome," he said. "It would have been a different thing if we had been on the way back."

Replying to a question as to when he expected to be here on the way back, Captain Ahrenberg said the first or second week of July.

The interview was given in one of the hotel rooms of Hotel Iceland, while Captain Ahrenberg was shaving and preparing for the dinner which waited him below.

On his tunic was a thin golden chain holding a medallion with his name engraved. "This is my mascot," he said.

Telling about his start from the Westman Island, he said:

"It was the most difficult start of my life."

Tell of Loss of Fuel.

The Sverige had landed safely at Skaptaros last night beside the cargo boat Magnhild, which was discharging there. The airmen said they needed no assistance and were only awaiting the arrival of gasoline.

The plane was taken in tow at 8 o'clock this morning by the Icelandic patrol boat Odinn, which took her to Westman Island, where the cruiser Fylla supplied gasoline. The airmen made the trip to Westman on the Odinn.

Ahrenberg and Flodén sent the following message from the Odinn:

"Owing to a strong counter-wind during the voyage from the Faroe Islands to Iceland more fuel was used than we had calculated on. The fuel tanks were filled at Bergen for a fourteen-hour flight, with an economical rotation [velocity [engine speed], but this turned out to be insufficient owing to disturbances to the ignition system, probably caused by the use of a percussion needle to avoid excessive vibration in the machine at high speed.

"The gasoline therefore disappeared at a disquieting rate, and as we estimated we should not be able to reach Reykjavik we preferred landing at Skaptaros, in Meddaland Bay, on the south coast of Iceland. The bay is protected from westerly winds.

"The sea was calm there, and we descended near the Norwegian steamer Magnhild, whose master, Captain Amundsen, kindly assisted us.

"We are now being towed to Westman Island by the Icelandic patrol boat Odinn, whose master, Captain Jon P. Jonsson, has kindly rendered us all possible aid. At Westman Island we shall fill the gasoline tanks and continue our voyage."

Pleased to Go on After Banquet.

At Westman Island the airmen went ashore and were guests of the sheriff. There they received an invitation to attend a banquet tonight in Reykjavik, given by M. Fenger, the Swedish Consul General, and Dr. Johannesson, president of the Aeronautical Company of Iceland.

The fliers accepted and announced their intention of flying on to Greenland immediately after the dinner.

An unfavorable weather report had been received this morning from Helge Bangsted in Greenland, but the Meteorological Institute here forecast favorable weather this evening.

The passenger steamer Esja put in at the Sverige base at Skaptaros early this morning and sent the following message to Reykjavik:

"All arranged with the airmen, everything was ready on our arrival at Skaptaros at 4 o'clock. Lack of gasoline was the only cause of the forced landing. The machine was anchored a short distance from the coast, but the airmen went on board the cargo boat Magnhild. The weather outlook is favorable."

CAPTAIN EXPLAINS LANDING.

Headwinds Caused Use of More Fuel Than Was Estimated.

By CAPTAIN ALBIN AHRENBERG,

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
All rights reserved.

ABOARD THE SVERIGE AT SKAPTAROS, Iceland, June 10.—On account of a very fierce wind against us, causing us to run short of fuel, we were forced to descend in the open sea beside the Norwegian steamer Magnhild, outside of Skaptaros, in Meddaland Bay, on the south coast of Iceland, at near midnight Greenwich Time last night.

We are awaiting fuel from Reykjavik, and expect to proceed about noon today.

Sigurd Malm, Captain Ahrenberg's mechanic, who served in this country on the Kungsholm on its last trip, bringing a landing gear and a new motor for the plane, expressed confidence yesterday in the happy outcome of the flight.

"If they do not meet too strong head winds or fog above the proposed landing places, I am sure they will make it," Mr. Malm said, speaking in Swedish, for he does not know a word of English.

A BANK WITHOUT GRILLES OR CAGES

IN designing the interior of the Plaza Trust Company we deliberately discarded the orthodox and borrowed a few old English ideas. To these we added a touch of modern art. All business is transacted across tables of beautifully grained walnut which promote an atmosphere of informality and friendliness.

Should you wish to consult the major executives, from the President down, their time is always yours for a thorough discussion of your problems.

We render all the services which come under the head of general banking, including a foreign department, safe deposit department, personal and corporate trust departments and a thrift department. Our Mrs. Wixson and Mr. Pearsall are always available to meet new depositors and explain our facilities.

DUTCH WARSHIP SENT TO CURACAO

PAPERS LASH GOVERNMENT

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, June 10.—The Dutch destroyer Kortenaer was ordered tonight to rush to the island of Curaçao in the Dutch West Indies following the invasion Saturday night of Willemstad, its capital, by a band of armed Venezuelans. The full crew and a party of marines are aboard the Kortenaer, while the training ship Hertog Hendrik is prepared to follow if necessary.

Two non-commissioned officers were killed and several wounded at Willemstad during the raid, in which the attackers seized the arsenal and carried off all the arms and ammunation. Governor Frutier and the Captain commanding the garrison were captured and taken aboard the American-owned steamer Maracaibo, which had also been seized by the raiders and her captain ordered to carry them back to Venezuela. Later the prisoners were allowed to return to Curaçao after landing the raiders safely in Venezuelan territory.

Dispatches from the Governor reaching here tonight assert that order has been restored without further disturbances.

Dutch newspapers are indignant, however, that no man-of-war has been kept in the West Indies and that the forces there are quite insufficient to cope with an emergency.

Jonkheer Beelaerts van Blokland, Foreign Minister, attaches little importance to the raid and does not hold the Venezuelan Government responsible.

Press Lashes Government.

THE HAGUE, June 10 (AP).—Lashed by criticism in the home press, the Netherlands Government took steps today to reinforce its Caribbean possessions. The destroyer Kortenaer was dispatched this evening from the naval station at Nieuwediep for the Hook of Holland, where she will take aboard tomorrow a detachment of landing troops and then proceed under full stream for Curaçao.

The government was charged with "unbelievable carelessness" by Dutch newspapers for permitting situation to exist in which such an attack as the Willemstad raid could gain initial headway.

The Telegraaf and the Handelsblad are the warmest critics. They point out that the traffic in Willemstad Harbor is greater even than in Amsterdam's and that the maintenance of order is essential to its international trade. They declare that the government neglected to provide adequate protection for the island despite recommendations of naval experts and former Governors of Curaçao. The Governor, they asserted, should always have warships at his disposal.

The quick development of the neighboring island of Aruba, where the Royal Dutch, the Mexican Eagle and the Standard Oil have great interests, also necessitated the maintenance of order and the protection of property, the Handelsblad said.

The Hague correspondent of the Handelsblad wrote that he understood from responsible quarters that the Netherlands Government would concern itself not so much with the responsibility of the Venezuelan Government for the raid itself as its responsibility to punish adequately the perpetrators.

The Venezuelan Chargé d'Affaires was still without official news tonight. He described General Urbina, reputed to be the leader of the raiders, as a bandit and murderer whose extradition was requested a few months ago from Colombia.

The Nieu Rotterdamsche Courant was informed that the raiders seized the entire stock of arms and ammunition in Curaçao. Its informant declared that those familiar with the situation affirmed that it had been known here for some time that trouble was brewing from the Venezuelan side. He attributed the plight of Willemstad to excessive economy, since a detachment of military police had replaced the previous garrison of 200 soldiers and the warships had been withdrawn.

Details of the Raid.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WILLEMSTAD, Dutch West Indies, June 10.—At 10 P. M. Saturday about 150 Venezuelan revolutionists came ashore from the American passenger vessel Maracaibo, which had arrived the same evening from the city of Maracaibo. They made a simultaneous raid on all the police stations, disarming the police, who are not a civil but a military organization.

They then attacked the home of the Governor of Curacao and manacled him with the commander of the troops and fifty-four police. After this they took possession of the entire island, terrorized the population and killed five and wounded fifteen.

At 3 o'clock Sunday morning they forced the Governor, the commander and fifteen police aboard the Maracaibo, compelled the opening of the pontoon bridge and proceeded to sea.

The revolutionists were well armed with carbines and pistols and had plenty of ammunition. They had machine guns aboard the vessel and were proceeding to the city of Maracaibo to act with other revolutionists there. They have possession of the Venezuelan seaport of La Vela and the interior town of Coro.

The rebels had aboard the Maracaibo a Venezuelan heartied and irons, to be shot in Coro for attempted assassination of their candidate for President in the recent election.

At 6 o'clock Sunday night the Maracaibo returned from La Vela with all aboard unharmed. The officers stated that 200 rebels had boarded her at 10:30 Saturday night and ordered the captain to sea. An effort was made to stall for time, but the Governor of Curacao was forced to sign an order for the ship's sailing under a threat to dynamite the Royal Dutch Shell refinery.

The Maracaibo left here at 3:20 A. M. Sunday and anchored a mile off La Vela, the crew being forced to land the rebels in the ship's lifeboats. Two of the Americans in the crew were captured by a Federal launch and left behind. The rebels destroyed the wireless antenna here.

There are rumors that American and other warships are coming here and to Venezuela. The life of Samuel B. Rose, the only American business man here, was threatened last night and he will file a protest with the American Consul.

There are many Venezuelan syndicalizers here, 2,000 Venezuelans being employed at the Dutch Shell refinery. Representative citizens consider that the unprecedented attack may bring international complications.

The Maracaibo sailed at 1 this afternoon on her regular trip to La Guayra, twenty-four hours behind schedule. No passengers were accepted other than those booked on Saturday who were driven ashore by the rebels.

Believed to Be Start of Revolt.

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The attack by Venezuelan irregulars on Curacao was the initial step in an effort at starting a revolution in Venezuela, according to fragmentary reports received by the State Department today.

Reports received today said the band had landed at La Vela, in the State of Falcon, Venezuela, 200 miles west of Caracas, and had now become a problem for the Venezuelan Government to deal with. Hundreds of Venezuelans live in the islands off the coast of that country, and it is believed the recent change of administration encouraged the revolutionary move.

Last month President Gomez, long the Dictator of Venezuela, voluntarily retired from office on account of old age and was succeeded by Dr. Juan Bautise Peres. Since the dictatorship lapsed there have been rumors of impending trouble, and the drive that is now being made is considered more or less an inevitable sequel to a long period of iron control such as that exercised by General Gomez.

Should widespread disorder develop, the United States would send vessels to the area from its special service squadron which patrols Central Americans waters, but no request has been received from American consular officials in Venezuela, and in the absence of such a request neither the State nor Navy Department made any move today.

De Nogales Predicts Revolt.

Impending revolution and civil strife in Venezuela even greater than the late disturbances in Nicaragua were predicted yesterday by General Rafael de Nogales, Venezuelan exile and soldier of fortune, now in New York. General de Nogales regarded the attack on the city of Willemstad as one of the first blows of the revolutionary element.

"Venezuela is a veritable powder barrel," said the General, "in which thousands of laboring men are living under the ignominious yoke of a despotic government, under the dictatorship of the late President of Venezuela, Juan Vincente Gomez. Gomez, during his many years in control, has opened Venezuela to the advantage of the foreign commercial powers at great cost to the people of the country and the true owners of the natural resources.

"The raid at Curacao was evidently carried out by a band of Venezuelans working in the Dutch oil refineries there, who object to the policy of allowing a foreign power to reap the profits of producing Venezuelan raw materials. The same situation exists in the diamond-cutting industry. All that the dissatisfied elements need is sufficient arms and funds. They would have abundant popular support in a rebellion."

In the event of immediate strife as a result of the Curacao raid, General de Nogales said that he would go at once to Venezuela and take up arms with the forces of rebellion. He has had a career of adventure which has taken him to wars and revolts in all parts of the world.

It was learned here yesterday that the steamer Maracaibo is owned by the Red D Steamship Line of New York and is engaged in the coastal trade in Venezuela. She is under command of Captain H. E. Morris and carries a crew of thirty-five to forty.

TOKIO ENDS DISPUTE OVER PACT PHRASE

Kellogg Treaty Is Submitted to Emperor and Council Is Likely to Approve It.

WOULD ADD INTERPRETATION

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, June 10.—Premier Tanaka submitted the Kellogg anti-war treaty to the Emperor today for ratification and the Emperor, as the Constitution directs, will refer the document to the Privy Council for examination. The action indicates that the long controversy over the phrase "in the name of their respective peoples" has been settled. It is expected that the Council, in recommending ratification, will add certain words making clear that the phrase does not affect the treaty-making power, which the Constitution vests in the Emperor.

The precise wording of the phrase has been a matter of great delicacy and probably the dispute has struck foreign publics and governments as superfluous, but once the question had been raised it was impossible for the Council to ignore it, for it was urged that the phrase might be construed as a reflection on the imperial prerogative.

The Council's final decision, which, it is taken for granted, has already been agreed upon, is governed by two factors—the desire to include Japan in the pact and reluctance to upset the present government. The first rules out a formal reservation which would require acceptance by the other signatories and possibly open a long new correspondence.

The second precludes a wording which would imply censure of the government or of Count Uchida, who signed the pact at Paris and whose resignation from the Privy Council, which has been talked of, would be construed as an admission of culpability involving Baron Tanaka as Foreign Minister. The Council's formula will, therefore, be an interpretation of the one specific phrase and not reservation.

With the treaty safely out of the way, the long-discussed Cabinet reconstruction can be effected. Besides strengthening the Cabinet in the light of two years' experience, Baron Tanaka's main object is to bring Takejiryo Tokonami and his twenty-seven followers definitely within the government ranks, thus enabling him to face the next session with a homogeneous majority. M. Tokonami, former Minister of Home Affairs, headed a group which seceded from the Opposition ranks in 1928 to back the government.

Three Ministerial posts are available for Cabinet newcomers. One is the Foreign Office post now held by the Premier himself. The second is the new Ministry of Overseas Affairs, also held by Baron Tanaka, which has been created to handle the increase of business connected with Korea, the Japanese colonies and leased and mandated territories, emigration to Brazil and the supervision of such enterprises as the Oriental Development Company and the South Manchurian Railway. The third is the Home Ministry, which the present occupant, K. Mochizuki, is ready to vacate. M. Tokonami is eligible for any post from the Foreign Ministry downward.

Rumors that Baron Tanaka intends to appoint a Foreign Minister appear regularly, but he keeps his own counsel. Apparently he enjoys the work and since the disputes with China have been adjusted there appears to be less reason than ever for his relinquishing it. It is believed that the Home Ministry should provide Tokonami with an office of adequate dignity and importance.

The most difficult problem now facing any Japanese Government is financial recovery. The gold reserves abroad which Japan uses for the service of her foreign debts are almost depleted, the yen exchange keeps going down, and financial conditions in New York do not favor the raising of credits, either for renewal of loans or the restoration of an effective gold standard.

The government has shirked the problem, it is contended, and its "positive policy" involving fresh expenditure has negatived the fundamental improvement of financial conditions. The facts have forced a virtual abandonment of the "positive policy," and Baron Tanaka wished to show that a reconstructed Seiyukaim Government party Cabinet would be as able to deal with the financial situation as any alternative group that could be formed.

The Premier has proved a stronger statesman than his critics expected and though the press, which acts as permanent opposition, universally criticizes him, he is firmer in the saddle today than when he started.

AMERICAN AIR LINES HELD UP IN CHINA

PILOTS LEAVE FOR HOME

Access As Their Planes Was Denied to Curtiss Men—Stimson Line to Fly This Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, June 10.—Friction between Nanking's Ministry of Communications and Ministry of Railways, which has grown out of rivalry as to which is to control the various departments relating to communications, has resulted in retarding somewhat developments looking toward an early opening of air mail and passenger lines as specified in the government's recent contract with the Aviation Exploration Company, one of the Curtiss subsidiaries. Curtiss officials here, however, detect a rather widespread impression that Chinese-inspired opposition to this contract endangered the ultimate fulfillment of the agreement.

It is recalled that under the terms of the contract the American company agreed to begin operation of air lines on three trunk services connecting Nanking with Canton, Hankow, Shanghai and Peking, service to start within six months. The Americans further agreed to furnish airplanes and all other equipment as well as pilots, mechanics and other personnel, also to open schools to train Chinese, who would take over the piloting of the lines, as well as the entire service as soon as they were able.

The contracts provided rates at so much for each air mile flown, the rate ranging from $2.50 to $4.50, depending on the plane's load, and a guarantee of 3,000 flying miles daily.

Ministry Signed Contract.

The contract was signed by the Aviation Exploration Company and the specially created Chinese National Aviation Company, with Dr. Sun Fo, the Minister of Railways, as president. Dr. Sun Fo signed the contract with the authority of the Nationalist Government's State Council.

The American company agreed that if the lines were operated at a loss to take the Nanking Government company's gold-dollar promissory notes for moneys due up to $2,000,000.

Aside from this formal contract it is said that Major William Robertson, head of the Curtiss-Robertson organization, who, with Dr. Roland Riggs, signed on behalf of the Americans, informally agreed to advance Dr. Sun Fo's company $1,000,000 for immediate expenses of building hangars, locating landing fields and other incidental needs in order to get under way.

The terms of this loan had not been settled when Major Robertson returned to New York this headquarters are in St. Louis) late in April, leaving two pilots to survey the proposed air routes.

Major Robertson brought four planes to China and all were placed in the hands of Dr. Sun Fo's organization and kept in a hangar at the outskirts of Shanghai. One of the planes in a test flight at Nanking was taken up by an inexperienced Chinese pilot, crashed in landing and was demolished. The others are intact.

Pilots Barred From Planes.

Soon after Major Robertson left, the Chinese in control of the airfield here refused to permit the American pilots ready access to their own planes, and Nanking's permission to survey the routes, while never refused, also never was granted, and within a month the pilots were disgusted and sailed for home, leaving the mechanics in charge of the planes and another man in charge of the newly opened offices here. In the meantime the Ministry of Communications bought four Stimson-Detroiter planes, which arrived a fortnight ago and announced last week the opening of a Nanking-Shanghai-Hankow air line beginning June 1, but it has not started yet, although it is expected that the first plane will take the air this week.

At this Ministry's instigation Chinese aviators throughout the country raised an alleged patriotic uproar against the Robertson contract, which they declared, turns the control of Chinese airways over to foreigners.

They assert they fought a revolution to regain China's railways, customs, postoffices, &c., from foreign control and that now the first thing the Nationalist Government does is to hand the newly organized airways over to foreigners.

Propaganda Part of Tactics.

This sort of propaganda is said to be inspired by the Communications Ministery as the best way to block the Railway Ministry's program and to get in the first line. The only differences between their operation of Stimson-Detroiters with foreign pilots and the Robertson agreement is that the Nanking Ministry owns the Stimson planes while under the other contract the Americans own the equipment but work as employes of the Chinese as long as the Chinese need them.

As far as can be learned here the $1,000,000 advance is still forthcoming, pending agreement on the terms and collateral. As far as is ascertainable neither Mr. Robertson nor Mr. Riggs ever was prevented from visiting the airdrome, although Chinese troops guarding the field one afternoon surrounded an airplane when it landed with a man and a woman passenger and Pilot Capertown and, with drawn pistols, ordered them all off the field and refused to permit Americans to fly again that day.

Women Apply to Be Pilots.

NANKING, June 10 (AP).—On the crumbling tomb of Hung-Wu, founder of the Ming Dynasty in this city in 1368 A. D., there hangs today a huge banner in red, yellow and black, bearing this inscription:

"Daily air mail and passenger service will start from here to Shanghai, Hankow and Nanking. Fare one way, $35 American. By order, Ministry of Communications."

The place has been selected for the landing field of the Stimson Aircraft Corporation of Wayne, Mich.

As if further to emphasize the contrast between the old and the new the government has been confronted with the unlooked for applications of eleven young women who wished to be trained as pilots of the speedy six-passenger machines that are to be used on the new line. Two of these exponents of advanced feminism disguised themselves as men in order to have a better chance of realizing their ambitions.

Word has been received that the chief pilots at the opening of the service will be Jerome Machle, flying instructor at Selfridge Field, near Detroit, in the oWrld War, and W. R. Henderson, former flight officer with the Royal Flying Corps. Machle recently took part in a similar project, having helped establish the first government air mail service in Mexico.

Peru Awards Its Highest Honor to Moore; Grants Envoy Order for Aid in Tacna Accord

LIMA, Peru, June 10 (AP).—The highest honor in the power of Peru to bestow was approved today for United States Ambassador Alexander P. Moore of Pittsburgh for his work toward solution of the old quarrel with Chile over the provinces of Tacna and Arica. The President and Ministers of the Council voted to award him the "Order of the Sun."

This order was founded by the Argentine liberator of Peru, General José de San Martin, who in 1821 came to lead the fight against the Spanish Viceroy. The first officers and knights of this order were the founders of Peruvian democracy. The President of the republic heads the order.

It was not known tonight whether the decoration of Mr. Moore would be made immediately or included in the list of decorations to be given on July 28, the anniversary of Peruvian Independence.

Ambassador Moore emerged from a trip into the Peruvian jungle today just in time to learn of the honor voted him. He said that he believed that when the world learned the beauties of the Peruvian and Amazon River jungles they would become a tourist paradise.

"This nation needs another Christopher Columbus," he said, to emphasize his belief in its unexploited resources. "I would be very happy if I were able to find such a new Columbus."

PRELATES DISCUSS FAITH AND SCIENCE

Bishop Barnes Holds Miracles No Aid—Archbishop of York Sees Peril in Purely Scientific Training

LONDON, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Two pronouncements on the relations of science and religion were made over the week-end by Church of England leaders.

Preaching in Westminster Abbey, the Right Rev. Ernest William Barnes, Modernist Bishop of Birmingham, said it was certain the vast majority of living churchmen who felt the influence of the scientific method could find miracles no aid to faith.

"The faith of the educated Christian," he said, "is a faith in the ultimate triumph of the spirit, and religion for him is his endeavor as an individual to share in the victory. Many Modernist clergymen regard themselves under no obligation to defend the miraculous story of the New Testament. Such controversy, they felt, is best ignored in order that the main work of religious revival may be done. Any young man enthusiastic for all the knowledge of our age on nteday without dissimulation or hypocrisy become an Anglican clergyman."

The Most Rev. William Temple, Archbishop of York, speaking at Oldham, declared the perils of an unscientific education were as nothing compared to the perils of a purely scientific education.

"Let us keep our sense of proportion," he said, "remembering that the most important thing for human beings to know about is humanity. Many men and women of great ability in our universities talk like little children in the nursery when one speaks to them about human problems because their minds have never become accustomed to working on those themes."

CARDINAL ATTENDS JUBILEE.

St. Joseph's Home in Peekskill Celebrates Fiftieth Anniversary.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., June 10.—The golden jubilee of St. Joseph's Home, established in 1879, was celebrated in the convent chapel here today with Cardinal Hayes presiding at a solemn mass of thanksgiving. He was attended by about thirty clergymen.

The St. Joseph's Boys' Band, cadets and Girl Scouts met the Cardinal and escorted him to the convent grounds, where he was welcomed by several hundred children. At the conclusion of the mass the Cardinal, accompanied by the clergy, nuns and invited guests, visited the new novitiate, which he blessed.

AMERICA FIGURES NOW IN HARBIN RAID

Our Consulate Seals Said to Have Been on Papers Seized From Soviet Quarters.

RUSSIANS CALL IT "PLANT"

Japanese Documents Also Declared to Have Been Found—Nanking Considers Break With Moscow.

SHANGHAI, June 10 (AP).—Dispatches from Harbin given out today by the Japanese Toho News Agency say that America and Japan are likely to become involved in consequence of the Chinese raid made on the Soviet Consulate in Harbin on May 27.

The advices said that among the seizures made by the Chinese were Japanese official envelopes and papers bearing stamps and seals of the American and Japanese Consulates. The belief in Harbin, the dispatches declare, was that these seals were used for effecting communications among Communists or for use in connection with passports or correspondence between the American and Japanese Consulates and their home governments.

The Soviet officials declared that these alleged stamps and seals were "planted" by the Chinese before the raid.

The Toho News Agency is widely considered as a semi-official news agency.

Japanese press dispatches from Nanking regarding the raid on the consulate at Harbin quote a spokesman for the Chinese Foreign Office as follows:

"Regardless of what attitude Soviet Russia takes, China cannot allow matters to drift as long as the Soviet consulates at Harbin and elsewhere continue Bolshevist propaganda and other activities aimed to cause unrest in Chinese territory.

"Therefore the Chinese Government, upon examining the seized documents, intends either to sever Chinese-Russian relations or to restore them to normal, subject to definite assurances from Soviet Russia to China.

"Taking into consideration the remarkable change in Anglo-Russian relations and of other international states of affairs, China does not intend to bring pressure on Russia at this juncture, nor has China any ambition to use this opportunity to take over the Chinese Eastern Railway, although she is determined to demand that Russia confine her activities within international law and justice."

Chang Objected to Red Meeting.

NANKING, June 10 (AP).—Chinese sources believed to be close to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs state that Chang Hsueh-liang, head of the Government of Manchuria, has informed Nanking that he ordered the raid on the Soviet Consulate in Harbin because he considered a meeting there inimical to the peace of Manchuria.

Chang's message stated that during the week including May 27 the Nanking Government had forbidden public meetings out of respect for Dr. Sun Yat-sen, who was reburied outside of Nanking, and also to prevent reactionary elements from creating a disturbance during the mourning week.

Washington Mistakes Affair.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The chief of police at Harbin has reported to the American Consulate there, according to a message received by the State Department today through the American Legation at Peking, that in the recent raids on the Soviet Consulate two American Consular seal dies were found.

No details were given in the report to the State Department but officials said no action was contemplated in the nature of representations. While it was recognized that the dies could be used on forged documents, officials declined to speculate on the significance that might be attached to their discovery and indicated that the matter would be looked upon merely as an incident.

Woman Cleared in Murder Case.

Miss May Harding, former friend of Jacob Furman, haberdasher, who was shot to death Saturday morning in his home at 1,304 Stebbins Avenue, the Bronx, was questioned by the police yesterday in connection with the shooting and was released immediately thereafter. She was the thirteenth woman examined. "Miss Harding was not under arrest," Police Inspector Duane of the Bronx explained. "We merely asked her what she knew about Furman. She accounted for all her movements on Saturday. The last time she saw Furman was in February, 1928."

SOVIET GAINS SEEN IN VOLGA REGION

Warm Supporters Estimated at 75 to 90 Per Cent of People —Less Than 5 Foes.

MISCONCEPTIONS IN MOSCOW

By WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 10.—"Seventy-five per cent of the population of the Volga provinces firmly supports the Soviet régime," according to a Soviet official in the city of Saratof. Twenty per cent is lukewarm and doubtless would welcome a change in policy, perhaps even a change of régime, if unaccompanied by violent disturbances. Five per cent definitely is hostile, but dares not act, save by stealth."

Such observation as ten days of rapid travel through the region admits amply confirms his boast. Personally, I believe the Soviet has nearer 90 per cent of loyal supporters than 75, but the official naturally was influenced by living in an urban community where a number of small traders and private business interests are being hard hit by the Kremlin's socialization policy.

On the other hand, I think he is wrong in saying only 20 per cent would welcome a change of policy. The Kremlin's insistence upon rapid industrialisation, which involves investment of every available cent in means of future production but has not yet brought about much lowering in the price of manufactured goods, puts a heavy burden upon the peasants, who suffer further from the low price of food products arbitrarily fixed to enable the urban workers to get cheap food.

Five per cent hostility can safely be discounted, unless economic conditions grow seriously worse through crop failure or some other unforeseen event. Indeed, I am greatly inclined to wonder whether the alleged hostility of "class enemies" has not been somewhat exaggerated for political reasons in the same way as the "Right Opposition," of which one lately has heard so much and seen so little.

No newspaper reporter who has lived in Eastern Europe for the last ten years can fail to recognize, even at first glance on a flying trip, the signs of popular sullenness, disaffection and distress. They simply do not exist on the Volga.

It may be said, and fairly, that the general standard of living is low—so Western eyes deplorably low. But Volga life today is paradise compared with eight years ago, and that is what counts. Compared with prewar days, the masses say that, first, they now actually live better, and, second, now all share the same lot—there are no rich and nobles to flaunt luxury as before. Which also counts, and the Bolsheviki do not fail to drive the lesson home.

Foreigners in Moscow read lurid reports in the newspapers about kulak opposition, and talk with former aristocrats, business men and intelligentsia, who hate the Bolsheviki, or with the new "Nep" (New Economic Policy) bourgeoisie, who reaped golden profits for three or four years, then died beneath the socialization lash, or with disgruntled Communists of the old Trotskyist or new "Right Opposition." So foreigners are getting the impression that the Kremlin's policies are being imposed against the popular will. This, I am now convinced, is, in the main, untrue.

Where grumbling exists in the provinces it is caused by the abuse of power by local officials. Of that there is plenty, as the Astrakhan scandal showed on a big scale. To the average peasant in a country village or the average worker in a small town, local officials, of course, are the government. So in a sense, when they are dissatisfied with local officials, as they often are, it may be said that they are dissatisfied with the government.

But that does not mean they are dissatisfied with the Soviet régime. Which is where a lot of foreigners, and a lot of Russians, too, including Communists, make an error. On the contrary, there is a growing tendency in the Russian provinces to look to and appeal to the capital for redress against "unjust stewards," and the Kremlin knows and encourages it.

TRADE 'INVASION' BY US IS PICTURED AT GENEVA

GENEVA, June 10 (AP).—Reference to the economic influence of the United States was made at the International Labor Conference today by the Italian employers' delegate, Gino Olivetti, secretary of the Fascist Confederation of Italian Industry and a member of the governing body of the International Labor Office.

The American Republic, he said, was developing a large movement for an imperialist economic invasion of other countries through the exceptional situation it enjoyed owing to its vast natural resources and its large home markets.

One of the characteristics of this movement, continued the speaker, was that it was going on from the sole viewpoint of North American interests in an atmosphere in which employers and workers were mutually assisting one another to derive the greatest advantages from an economic policy outside the framework of the League of Nations and a social policy very different from that of the International Labor Office.

Could they hide from themselves that this might lead them in the near future to revise the political, economic and social concepts which hitherto had been the basis of most of the States' members of the League of Nations and even of the labor organizations? he asked.

The influence of American competition was not being lost sight of by the heads of governments and other leaders of society, he said. The American policy of high wages, he continued, was possible because it was carried out in a closed circle to an immense and self-sufficient home market surrounded by a Chinese wall now being raised still higher where the process of production, circulation and consumption was carried on apart from all external influence and could be completely regulated, enabling overproduction to be exported by aid of a new form of dumping.

Could other countries which had to import raw materials increase the purchasing capacity of their citizens without injuring their commercial balance if they did not succeed in exporting more than they consumed? was another question he asked. And for those who did not possess a large internal market was it possible to organize dumping under the shelter of protection?

Europe could not be Americanized, he concluded, but this should not prevent it from seeing how American initiative had contributed to American prosperity and how the spirit of collaboration on the basis of national interests had improved the lot of American workers.

The Rev. Dr. Brauns, president of the conference, received a telegram today from Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald saying:

"My colleagues and I take the first opportunity to convey to the president and members of the conference of the International Labor Office our expression of good-will. We are deeply sensible of the valuable work performed by the international labor organization with a view to improvement of conditions of labor throughout the world in furtherance of the aims embodied in the peace treaty. We shall make it our business to cooperate whole-heartedly with the organization."

ZAGREB LAWYERS UPHELD.

One Arrested Is Elected President by Colleagues.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, June 10.—A full report of yesterday's arrest of Dr. Samich and four other lawyers at a meeting of lawyers here indicates the attitude of the majority of the Assembly. After some of the lawyers had telephoned police, who raided the hall, Dr. Politec, one of those arrested, was elected President by the gathering while he was on his way to prison.

The report says the lawyers' offense was the introduction of a resolution calling on King Alexander to reinstate the political rights suspended since the advent of the dictatorship in January. Among those who supported the motion and were arrested were Dr. Ivan Pernar, one of the Croatian Deputies who were shot by Punica Ratchitch in Parliament a year ago.

CABINET DISCUSSES MACDONALD VISIT

FREEDOM OF SEAS ISSUE

Ministers Consider Reparations Report as Best That Can Be Had at This Time.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—Although no official announcement is yet forthcoming from No. 10 Downing Street as to the reported plans of Prime Minister MacDonald for a visit to Washington for a face to face talk with President Hoover on the whole range of Anglo-American relations, it is taken for granted by the best informed members of England's new Labor Government that such a mission is to be undertaken in the near future.

The Christmas holidays are cited as the latest date for such a visit, but some time this Summer is considered as much more probable and there are two dates between which the Hoover-MacDonald talk at the White House may be reasonably expected by the world which is now very much excited by the prospect of a personal conference between the heads of the two English-speaking nations.

Nothing quite so romantic in world politics has happened since the meeting of Henry VIII of England and Francis I of France on the Field of the Cloth of Gold 400 years ago.

But romance aside, there is much more in the way of practical results on world peace expected from the conversations at Washington than came out of the feasts and tournaments of the sixteenth century of the handshaking and cheek-kissing of the Kings of France and England.

Late July Likely Date.

The dates referred to are the adjournment of the first session of the new House of Commons early in July and the meeting of the Assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva in September to which Mr. MacDonald has already declared his attentions of going as a fellow delegate of his Foreign Minister, Arthur Henderson. So it is reasonable to infer that the British Prime Minister will go to Washington some time in the latter half of July with the whole month of August free for discussions with President Hoover and the Canadian Premier, MacKenzie King.

Between now and then the Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Henderson will have ample time for preliminary talks with the new American Ambassador, General Charles G. Dawes, who is due in London at the end of this week.

No approach whatever has been made by the British Government to the American Embassy here concerning the expected journey of Mr. MacDonald to Washington. But none is expected as that is not the conventional way of going about such a visitation.

The most conventional procedure will be for the British Ambassador in Washington, Sir Esme Howard, to confer with Secretary of State Stimson as to the most suitable and convenient time for the American President to see the British Premier.

But Premier MacDonald is no stickler for conventions. He believes in short cuts to the attainment of ideal purposes, so the world may wake up some morning soon to the news that the Premier has written direct to Mr. Hoover and has received in reply a cordial invitation to come over to America as soon as it is convenient.

Cabinet Has First Meeting.

Although the first real meeting of the new Labor Cabinet was held today there was little time left after the inevitable picture-taking formalities to get down to routine work in the various government departments.

The conversation of the Ministers among themselves turned chiefly on two major questions: Mr. MacDonald's proposed trip to America and England's official attitude toward the new plan on reparations.

As to reparations, the political opinion of the new group which has just come into power is that all countries concerned will first examine the proposals separately and then in joint conference adopt the Young plan with little or no modifications, that Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the new British Government, will say substantially that he does not like the Young report but that it is much better than nothing and that England should accept it.

An even easier conjecture for the friends and political associates of Premier MacDonald to make than that on the reparation reaction is on the subjects of the Hoover-MacDonald talk in Washington. They will be chiefly naval, of course, and include both subdivisions of that great problem covering the matter of reduction of naval armaments and the underlying question of maritime laws, principles and policies concerning the freedom of the seas and rights of neutral shipping in war and blockade.

Just what Mr. MacDonald, his entire Cabinet and the Labor party generally think of these matters is already well known from their past performances when in office five years ago and from their declarations in the recent electoral campaign.

Prime Minister MacDonald is in full accord with President Hoover that the navies should be reduced very materially and that some such plan as that indicated by Ambassador Hugh Gibson in the recent Geneva Conference is the thing to work out next as offering a better prospect for real results than the old methods of naval experts.

In Accord With Borah.

Secondly, Premier MacDonald is in full accord with Senator Borah's contention that there should be an entirely new international agreement as to the whole question of maritime law.

In this respect the Labor government of England would completely reverse the policy of the Tory government, which has just been defeated.

In the foreword to his party's pre-election pronouncement on the freedom of the seas, Mr. MacDonald wrote:

"Freedom of the seas is pre-eminently an Anglo-American problem, and until it is removed from the field of dispute Anglo-American co-operation in world affairs cannot be securely founded.

"It could not be removed from the field of dispute until the right to use war and blockade as an instrument of national policy had been renounced.

"Now, if the Kellogg pact means anything it means that there is to be no more war except in so far as nations bound to preserve peace and settle disputes by other than military means have to combine to crush a law-dog.

"It is inconceivable that the United States and ourselves should be on opposite sides in the next great war, and therefore all barriers to a free ocean highway have been thrown down."

In the course of this same pronouncement, which Mr. MacDonald endorses in its entirety, is the following:

"The Labor party stands for the unqualified renunciation of war and blockade as a private weapon. It believes that in so far as we continue to claim license to close common seaways for our private ends we antagonize America and the rest of the world and impede progress toward all inclusive arbitration and cooperative security and radical disarmament.

"The Labor party believes England has nothing to gain by conserving the blockade as a private weapon, and on moral and political grounds we have much to gain by completing its renunciation."

These official party declarations indicate, at least in outline, what Premier MacDonald will present to Mr. Hoover as the basis on which England's Labor Government hopes to negotiate with the American Government for the codification and a new interpretation of maritime law. In other words, the present British Ministry adopts as its own the traditional principles of America as to the freedom of the seas.

Some indication of this new foreign policy probably will be given in an address from the throne which Premier MacDonald and his Ministers are now preparing for presentation in the House of Commons a fortnight hence.

It is the opinion of Americans resident in London, regardless of their social and political sympathies in other directions, that Washington will make far more progress toward stable and friendly relations with the Labor Government than it succeeded in doing with the recently ousted Conservatives.

This opinion is held regardless of the fact that Premier MacDonald may tell Mr. Hoover that England is going to resume diplomatic relations with Russia.

Says "Stars Fought for Premier."

LONDON, June 10 (AP).—The London Star, an evening Liberal paper, comments today on Premier MacDonald's proposed visit to America.

"In one way," it says, "the stars in their courses may be said to have fought for Mr. MacDonald. Peace and disarmament are to be his immediate objectives and the omens are distinctly favorable for both.

"A new American Ambassador is coming from a new President to meet a new Prime Minister, bearing an unmistakable olive branch in his hand. There will be in the new Parliament a majority of all parties concerned about these vital subjects. The new Premier will have a willing and non-party army behind him in any right courses he pursues, and he takes office at a moment when the vexed reparations question is on the verge of settlement.

The Prime Minister continued to round out his Cabinet by appointing Ben Turner Under Secretary of Mines. He is a veteran leader of textile workers and was chairman of the general council of the Trade Union Congress when the "peace in industry" conferences were begun with a group of employers headed by Lord Melchett.

Premier MacDonald has chosen L. McNeil Weir, who was elected to Parliament from East Stirling, as his parliamentary private secretary, an office which he filled in the preceding Labor Government. Mr. Weir has been a journalist, actor, sailor, teacher and lecturer on political economy, but his chief fame in Westminster is for his inexhaustible fund of Scotch stories.

Canada Takes Up Issue.

OTTAWA, June 10 (By The Canadian Press).—Premier Mackenzie King will notify the House of Commons today or tomorrow as to whether or not he has received an invitation to attend the possible conference between Premier Ramsay MacDonald and President Hoover respecting disarmament problems.

In answer to queries from E. J. Garland, United Farmers of Alberta, James A. Robb, Minister of Finance, told the House this morning the Premier would in all probability make some statement with reference to this rumored conference shortly. The Premier was not present in the House at the time.

MACDONALD MEETS BALDWIN IN LIBRARY

LONDON, June 10 (By Canadian Press).—While ministers of the new Labor Government took over their respective departments today, the library at No. 10 Downing Street, was the scene of a cordial meeting between Stanley Baldwin and Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

The former Premier had motored up from Chequers, the country home of the Prime Ministers, where he had spent what will be for some time at least his last week-end there. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. MacDonald chatted for some time.

Meanwhile Labor Ministers had already taken the helm in several departments.

Margaret Bondfield, Minister of Labor, surprised the Labor Department staff by appearing on the scene before 10 A. M., trimly businesslike. She is not quite a stranger to this department, of course, for she held a junior position there in the last Labor Administration.

The burly Tom Shaw strode down Whitehall before 10 A. M. and up the broad staircase of the War Office, trodden during the World War by so many great warriors. Mr. Shaw met the Army Council later in the day.

A. V. Alexander, new First Lord of the Admiralty, a keen-looking figure who has spent most of his energy hitherto in caring for the cooperative movement, was at the Admiralty as early as the War Minister.

Sir John Sankey was sworn in as Lord Chancellor before the Lord Chief Justice, the Master of the Rolls and Lord Merrivale, president of the Probate and Divorce Division, in the Court of Appeal.

Sir John Sankey wore a full-bottomed wig and robes of black and gold. He took the oaths of allegiance and W. A. Jowitt, the new Attorney General, moved "that these proceedings be recorded in the King's Remembrancers' Department." "So it be," directed the Master of the Rolls, who then shook hands with the new Lord Chancellor.

CONSERVATIVES WIN TWO MORE SEATS

Liberals Gain One at Edinburgh University—Petition Afoot to Oust Reynolds.

LONDON, June 10 (Canadian Press).—Two Conservatives and one Liberal were elected by the Scottish combined universities in the general election of May 30, it was announced today. This leaves only one seat to be decided, that of Rugby, Warwick, where the election had to be postponed until June 13 owing to the death of the Labor candidate.

The Scottish universities re-elected their representatives in the last House. John Buchan, Conservative, received 2,909 votes; Sir George Berry, Conservative, 2,282, and D. M. Cowan, Liberal, 2,088.

The one Labor candidate, Dr. J. Kerr, polled only 2,367 votes and was defeated.

LIBERALS	58
NATIONALISTS	8
PROHIBITIONIST	1
Total	615

LIVERPOOL, June 10 (Canadian Press).—A petition to unseat Sir James Reynolds, Conservative, who was elected as member for the exchange division of this city at the recent general election, will be launched by the defeated Labor candidate, W. A. Robinson, who stated today that after taking legal advice about the alleged interference of a priest outside a polling station he had decided to contest the validity of the election.

BLACK WRECKS PLANE IN INDIA

5 ABOARD ESCAPE UNHURT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CALCUTTA, June 10.—Van Lear Black, Baltimore publisher, who was on a 20,000-mile flight from Croydon to Tokio, seriously damaged his Fokker plane when landing at the aerodrome here yesterday.

The flight has been abandoned.

Nose of Machine Buried.

CALCUTTA, June 10 (AP).—Van Lear Black and his four companions came out of the crash unhurt.

After flying from Allahabad, Mr. Black's ship was about to land when the plane went into a nose dive. The forepart was buried in the earth which, fortunately, was soft because of recent heavy monsoon rains.

The damaged machine will be sent to the United States.

Van Lear Black, chairman of the board of directors of The Baltimore Sun, has been deeply interested in aviation, and during the past few years has flown thousands of miles over Europe, Africa and Asia, says The Associated Press.

He has suffered only one previous accident. That was on his return flight from Cape Town, South Africa, and came virtually at the end of his long trip. His plane was damaged near Genoa on April 3 as he was en route to London, but no one was injured. This accident was caused when his pilot made a forced landing after having motor trouble.

SHAPIRO'S BROTHER HELD AS WITNESS

He Is Arrested in Connection With Embezzlement Charge Against Newark Lawyer.

Harry Shapiro of Trenton, brother of Morris Shapiro, Newark lawyer accused of having misappropriated $116,000 of the funds of three Newark building and loan associations, was arrested on Sunday as a material witness in the case, according to announcement issued yesterday by Essex County Prosecutor J. L. Smith.

Morris Shapiro, who was counsel for the three building and loan associations, has been missing for several days. A warrant accusing him of embezzlement has been obtained by Hyman Smith, supervising examiner for the State Department of Banking and Insurance.

A Newark law firm acting for one of the three associations involved is taking steps to have the assets and books of all the associations attached by the sheriff, it was learned yesterday. The same law firm last Saturday obtained a writ of attachment for $100,000 against Morris Shapiro.

The associations involved are the Ordway Building and Loan Association, the Safety Building and Loan Association and the Home Owners Building and Loan Association.

Louis Dolgow, a Newark lawyer, was appointed yesterday by Vice Chancellor Fallon to act as receiver for the property at 104-106 Orchard Street, Newark, owned by the Mamouth Food Company of which Morris Shapiro was the head.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

ministration and felt sure that an agreement would result from personal contact with the American government. It was Mr. Baldwin's view that the adjustment of the naval armament question was one for statesmen and not one for technicians. It was evident from what he told the American official that he intended to come to Washington if he were continued as Prime Minister.

The American official also saw Ramsay MacDonald and found his views in harmony with those of the Conservative Premier.

While he did not say anything to suggest that he expected to become Prime Minister, Mr. MacDonald expressed the view that the head of the British Government should make a visit to Washington to discuss personally with the President and other officials the differences between the two countries which developed in the Geneva Three-Power Conference of 1927 over the matter of limitation of naval armaments. Through such personal contacts, he contended, the armament program could be adjusted.

The views he expressed at that time are of especial significance now in the vital assurance that Prime Minister MacDonald will come to Washington.

The conversations of the American official with Mr. Baldwin and Mr. MacDonald, and especially with the latter, taken in connection with the expected visit of Mr. MacDonald to this country, are of importance as showing that the chief purpose of the new Prime Minister in seeing President Hoover is to adjust the troublesome matter of naval armaments.

Mr. MacDonald will find the President quite in accord with the view that the problem can best be arranged through direct contact between statesmen rather than through naval technicians.

Admiralty Was Criticised.

Much of the criticism in Britain over the failure of the Geneva Conference was directed to the representatives of the British Admiralty who appeared for their government in the negotiations with the United States and Japan. This criticism was founded on the contention that technical considerations were permitted to outweigh the more important matter of the necessity of a settlement of the armament problem, and there was a considerable sentiment developed in favor of letting statesmen lay down the principles of an armament limitation accord and leave to the technical experts the details of carrying out those principles.

It was apparent from what was said by officials here today that they did not care to countenance the idea that the chief purpose of the British Prime Minister's contemplated visit to Washington would be the adjustment of the naval armament question. They sought to convey the impression that the whole broad subject of Anglo-American relations would be discussed.

That, in a narrow sense, is true, perhaps, but the armament question stands out as the compelling object of the personal negotiations which Mr. MacDonald will initiate with President Hoover and some of the chief officers of the administration.

The sensitiveness of officials over having it go out that a naval armament reduction agreement will be Mr. MacDonald's primary purpose in seeking personal conferences with the President is well understood. This matter of curtailing fleets concerns France, Italy and Japan as well as the United States and Britain, and there is a polite desire to show regard for the sensibilities of the other naval powers by seeking to have it appear that the armament problem is only one factor in many to be discussed that affect the relations of Britain and the United States.

Put in another way, the apparent desire is to intimate that there exists a considerable number of problems which concern Britain and the United States exclusively without impinging on the relations of the United States with other nations.

But too much emphasis cannot be attached to the fact that the desire to reach an understanding with this government concerning the curtailment of the British and American navies is the moving reason for Prime Minister MacDonald's expected voyage to this country. In that purpose he has the hearty sympathy of President Hoover.

Events are now so shaping themselves that a separate understanding over naval matters between the British and American Governments may eventuate in the near future.

It is true that any such purpose is disclaimed by officials in Washington who do not countenance at this time suggestions that a separate naval conference with Britain is desirable or even feasible. But if developments should indicate that France and Italy were unwilling to enter into an arrangement for naval armament reduction which was satisfactory to Britain and the United States, the last named nations might conclude to go ahead on their own account, with the inclusion of Japan, which has shown a most cordial disposition to take practical steps to curtail fleets.

This suggestion is advanced in the face of the probable contention that Britain would not agree to make concessions in the reduction of naval armaments unless France became a party to the agreement. Strong opinion exists, however, that an arrangement affecting the naval forces of the United States and Britain alone, or with Japan included, would have an impressive effect upon other powers. There are many who believe that it would be a long step forward in the direction of preserving world peace.

For one thing, it would suggest that if the United States became involved in war Britain would extend no aid and comfort to its enemies, and by the same token Britain would be assured of equal consideration from the United States if the British Government became involved in hostilities.

That suggestion might be carried still further in the minds of some foreign governments and tend to act as a check on any hostile intentions on their part toward either the United States or Britain.

Occasional statements of Prime Minister MacDonald have given the impression that he believed that an understanding between the naval powers for the preservation of the freedom of the seas should be preliminary to an agreement for a reduction of naval armaments. In that his view fits snugly with Senator Borah's. When Mr. MacDonald was last in America he called on Senator Borah, who has a high regard for his abilities and principles and a personal liking for him.

The matter of an agreement as to freedom of the seas, however, is a somewhat nebulous proposal, as the situation affecting it is viewed here.

The impression is widespread in Washington that the British idea of what constitutes freedom of the seas is diametrically opposed to the American idea and it will be difficult, and perhaps impossible, to harmonize the difference of opinion. The American view contemplates free passage of neutral ships in time of war, while the British view, as exemplified in the World War, had a practical application that is the reverse of the position of this government.

Laberite Confers With Borah.

Cecil Delisle Burns, a member of the Parliamentary advisory committee on international affairs of the British Labor party, was in Washington today conferring with Senators Borah, Walsh of Montana, Swanson and La Follette and Representative Britten, chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, concerning Anglo-American relations and international affairs generally.

Mr. Burns is an intimate friend and adviser of Prime Minister MacDonald and is on his way back to England after delivering lectures at the University of Illinois. He emphasized that he was not here as an emissary of the Labor government or its Prime Minister and bore no messages from them.

Mr. Bruns indicated that the Labor party hoped to carry out its work for international tranquility through the League of Nations. In his conversation with Representative Britten, the Representative suggested that a naval armament conference should take place prior to the reassembling of the Washington Armament Conference in 1931 and should be held in Ottawa.

Members of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations expressed themselves cordially toward the prospective visit of the British Prime Minister.

"I like the idea; I'd like to see him come over here," was the comment of Senator Borah, the committee's chairman.

Senator Walsh of Montana, a Democratic member of the committee, said:

"I hope he will come. If he and President Hoover get together I believe the meeting would contribute materially to a common understanding of naval reduction."

"It's a great idea," was the remark of Senator Moses, president pro tempore of the Senate, and a Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Said Senator Fess:

"I have felt ever since the British election that Mr. MacDonald had a chance to do big things.

"Personal contact would be a splendid thing for the two governments. It is not usual for a Premier to cross the water for such conversations, but the unusual is the usual today. I certainly can see no objection. It could not do anything except good, so far as I can foresee, and I think it would do much toward promoting peace."

POPE PROMULGATES VATICAN STATE LAW

Pontiff, Under First of 21 Articles, Has Full Legislative, Executive and Judicial Powers.

GOVERNOR ADMINISTRATOR

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VATICAN CITY, June 10.—The "fundamental law," or constitution, of the State of the Vatican City came into force today. By it Pope Pius XI becomes dictator of his tiny State, since all the power, legislative, executive and judicial, is vested in him alone. He may delegate some of his powers to others, as, for instance, to the Governor of Vatican City or to the Papal Secretary of State, but these are responsible to him only. Similarly, the Pontiff alone is empowered to examine and approve the budget of Vatican City, which is to be submitted by the Governor.

The statement of the Pope's supreme power in everything appertaining to Vatican City is contained in the first of the twenty-one articles of the fundamental law, which the Pontiff promulgated today. It reads:

"The Supreme Pontiff, as sovereign of the State of Vatican City, has fullness of legislative, executive and judicial power."

These powers are to be vested in the Sacred College of Cardinals during an interregnum between the death of one Pope and the election of his successor, but any legislative measure taken by the Cardinals will not be valid unless it is ratified by the new Pope.

Governor's Functions.

Succeeding articles provide that the Secretary of State may represent Vatican City. The Pontiff may delegate legislative power on certain specified occasions to the governor. The governor has the right to issue regulations to ensure the observance of the laws without any special authorization from the Pope.

Civil cases in the territory of Vatican City will be tried by a special court, whose judges and officials are about to be appointed. The sacred tribunal of the Rota and the Supreme tribunal Signatura will act as courts of appeal. Penal cases are to be tried by a court composed of one or more judges appointed by the Governor of Vatican City. Any one who believes his rights or interests have been injured by an administrative act of Vatican City authorities can appeal to the Pope through the Councilor General of State.

The fundamental law states also that the Vatican City legal system will be based on canon law and pontifical constitutions and rules issued by the Pope or authorities delegated by him. Temporarily, however, in all cases not covered by Vatican law, Italian law and regulations emitted by the province of Roma and the Governor of Rome will be applied provided they do not conflict with divine rights, with the principles of canon law or with the provisions of the Lateran treaties.

The fundamental law ends by stating that the flag of the State of Vatican City is to be be white and yellow with the Papal arms and crossed keys surmounted by a triregnum in the middle. The coat of arms will consist of crossed keys and a triregnum in the field. The seal will consist of crossed keys and a triregnum enclosed in four concentric circles, which bear the epigraph: "State of Vatican City."

Philadelphians Get Audience.

VATICAN CITY, June 10 (AP).—A number of private audiences and receptions marked today's program of the Philadelphia pilgrims now in Rome in honor of the Pope's sacerdotal jubilee.

Mrs. P. J. McCormack, sister of Cardinal Dougherty, and her children, Evelyn, Mildred and Carol, were received by the Pope in a private audience. The Pontiff inquired concerning Mrs. McCormack's health and begged her to convey his best wishes and felicitations to the pilgrims.

Mrs. P. J. O'Hara, mother of Philadelphia's new auxiliary bishop, was received by Cardinal Pompili, the Pope's Vicar General, who ordained her son to the priesthood in 1920.

The main body of pilgrims visited the Vatican art galleries, the Pontifical College and the North American College, through which they were escorted by its rector, Mgr. Burke.

Daniel Murphy of Philadelphia, Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory, who is in Rome on an annual visit, was host to a number of the pilgrims.

enthusiastically applauded when she was introduced. Joseph P. Tumulty, who served as secretary to President Wilson for eight years, also was present and received an ovation.

Raskob Calls for Fighting Fund.

The dominant note sounded by the speakers was for an all-year-round party organization, fashioned after a business organization. This was promised by Chairman Raskob, who said that the $350,000 deficit would soon be wiped out and that a $250,000 fund would be created for organization purposes. This fund, he added, might be raised by a $4 contribution from each of the election districts of the country.

Mr. Raskob, who selected Mr. Shouse to direct the reorganization plan, declared that if an effective party organization had operated in the 150,000 election divisions last year, the Democratic party would have elected its candidate for President.

He also stressed the necessity of reaffirmation of Democratic principles and the maintenance of the State Rights policy. The people, he said, were so beset with acquiring wealth in this age that they were losing the fine spirit of patriotism enjoyed in the early days.

He pictured the Federal Government, under the Republican party, increasing its powers so greatly as to threaten the building up of a colossal power, unwieldy and incapable of administration. Such a condition, he asserted, might lead to a "revolution against tyranny."

Mr. Raskob's Address.

Mr. Raskob spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Friends:

First, let me say that nothing more enheartening could happen to those of us engaged in building the Democratic party into a strong, virile national organization than your presence here tonight as guests of the Jefferson Democratic Association of Washington to honor Jouett Shouse.

A great part of the press, which is largely Republican, would make it appear that the Democratic party is dead. Such is far from the truth. The amazing thing is that with merely a makeshift national organization we should have accomplished so much.

True, the number of votes pulled in the Electoral College was relatively small, but no one appreciates better than the Republican organization, the fact this was due to issues injected into the campaign which should have no part in our political life.

To a man trained in business, the Democratic party's lack of organization for conducting a national campaign is appalling. When Mr. Will Hays was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee, he immediately started to build a strong national organization and worked incessantly to this end. The Republican party today is profiting from the results of his accomplishments.

In the last election the Democratic party polled upward of 15,000,000 votes, against about 21,000,000 polled by the Republicans. This is a difference of 6,000,000 votes and means that had we had a national organization functioning over the previous four years we would only have had to persuade 3,000,000 out of over 36,000,000 voters to believe in the principles of our great party in order to have secured a majority of the popular vote.

It is also true that had the Democratic party been organized in a manner that could have changed the votes of about 450,000 people, properly located, it would have carried the Electoral College for the Democratic ticket.

I cite these figures for no purpose other than to demonstrate the need and power of organization, as that is the job we must address ourselves to now. It is not an intricate job, but it is one that requires strenuous, continuous effort and a tremendous amount of real hard work; it involves securing what you might call Democratic counselors in every one of the 150,000 election districts in the United States, through which Democratic principles may be taught to the citizens of our country. This is no mean task.

will result in a natural flow of funds in relatively small amounts from the citizens of the country who will contribute because of their belief in the need of two strong parties to insure a continu-

It involves the creation of a money-raising organization that ation of success in our form of government.

Our deficit has been reduced from upward of $1,550,000 to less than $500,000, and with the promises and pledges in hand, I confidently expect a further reduction to under $350,000 during the current month.

This $250,000, together with an additional $250,000 to cover expenses of building and conducting a national organization, we contemplate raising through alloting this amount to the States and if each member of the National Committee and, if each State chairman will do his bit, this means that an average of only about $4 per election district will be needed to free the party entirely of debt and give it a fund of $250,000 with which to operate.

So much for finances and the past. Now let us look to the future. The Democratic party believes in those principles of freedom and liberty which the founders of our government endeavored to guarantee to posterity when they framed and signed the Constitution of the United States.

In this dollar age, in which the present generations are living, so much importance has been attached to the matter of acquiring wealth and success industrially that our people seem to be losing, in part at least, the really fine spirit of patriotism enjoyed by our forefathers, and when we talk of State's rights, of which Jefferson was ever a strong supporter and defender, there are countless thousands of our citizens, both men and women, under 30 years of age who have little, if any, understanding of what we are talking about.

In my opinion, the continuation of the tendency of the Republican party in centralizing greater and greater powers in our Federal Government in Washington, instead of building each of our forty-eight States into strong sovereignties, is bound to result in a power so colossal as to be unwieldy and incapable of administration.

The lack of respect for such a government and the tyranny under which our people will have to live in consequence thereof may well result in a revolution which will divide this country into two or three republics and our posterity will then suffer the ills which the countries of Europe have suffered through jealousies, lack of trust, standing armies, &c., for countless generations.

As a result of the freedom secured for us by our forefathers through declaring their independence from living in tyranny, through shedding their blood in the Revolutionary War, and through setting up a new government, the people of the United States have enjoyed life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness to a degree unheard-of in the history of the world.

But we have reached the crossroad and in my opinion there has never been a time in the history of our country when the States and the nation more needed the unselfish, intelligent thought and interest of its citizens than now.

To awaken this interest and educate our people to the dangers of losing our freedom and liberty is the job of the Democratic party.

No finer example of patriotism and unselfish devotion to a cause can be cited than the life of Jouett Shouse and the great thing he has done in coming down here to Washington and agreeing to devote his entire time and energies to the building of that kind of organization necessary to protect and preserve our party and thus preserve our government and the liberties and freedom which it guarantees.

When Mr. Shouse arose to speak he was received with prolonged cheering and handclapping. This increased as he proceeded to outline the plans to make the party strong in its issues and in its organization.

He said that present-day conditions, the failure of the Republican party to keep its tariff pledges, the unrestrained stock speculation and increasing centralized Federal government called for a reassertion of Democratic principles.

"There has never been a greater need for the Democratic party to exercise a controlling influence in the affairs of our government than there is today," he said. "Never has there been greater need for the country to get back to the teachings and philosophy of the immortal Jefferson."

Telling of the program to build up the party machinery before the Congressional elections of 1930 and the Presidential election of 1932, he said:

"What we propose to set up here is a business-like national headquarters that will function continuously, day in and day out, week in and week out, month in and month out, to lay the ground work in every proper way for the building up of an organization of the Democratic party, for the education of the people as to what is taking place in the conduct of their government by the party now in power, and for an earnest effort to win them to the support of our party, first in the election of the next Congress and later in the election of the next President of the United States. With this in view, three major activities will be undertaken—organization, publicity and research.

"No political organization can carry on successfully merely at the top. There must be an adequate national plan."

Such a plan he said depended for its practical effectiveness upon the cooperation of State, county and ward political organizations.

Mr. Shouse paid a tribute to Mr. Raskob, who, he said, had no selfish interest in urging the new organization, but was doing it "without reference to the candidacy of any man for office, and solely with a desire to be of service to his country through the instrumentality of the Democratic party."

Turning to the party in power, he denounced the House tariff bill and said that if it were not improved in the Senate, through the efforts of the Democratic party, there would be great reaction in the country next year favorable to the Democrats carrying the House.

In closing he said:

"Let us agree upon a program and carry through that program. Let us offer constructive measures in place of the selfish measures which the opposition is offering. If we adhere to such a policy we shall stand an excellent chance to win control of the Congress next year, and, should that be done, as certainly as time goes on we shall win the Presidency in 1932."

Senator Tydings, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial committee, said that Republican Senators were divided on the tariff and were "openly charging that Mr. Hoover has not kept his promise to put agriculture on an equal with other industries."

"With wheat at its lowest level in fifteen years, with the stock market at its lowest point in a year, bringing millions of dollars of loss in both instances to the people of America, coupled with the spectacle of Congress with an overwhelming majority of the dominant party being unable to legislate," he said, "we approach next year's election with the right to feel that we deserve, and are entitled, to put an end to the inertia at Washington and take over the reins of government and really bring a solution for the problems before the country."

Representative Byrns, in his speech, said:

"Let us not waste our energy in wrangling over issues which do not involve the fundamental principles of our party. Let us rather exert ourselves to create a constructive program.

"No one can say three years in advance who our candidate will be or what the issues will be in the next campaign.

"Our leader in the last campaign has recently declared that the issues will be made by the Democrats who are in Congress. The Democracy will choose its candidate when the time comes."

BERLIN CROWD HAILS ARRIVAL OF FUAD

Big Round of Receptions Awaits Royal Visitor—Rumors of Nile Power Plants Circulate.

By WYTHE WILLIAMS.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 10.—Tens of thousands of Berliners took this morning off in order to get a sight of King Fuad, present occupant of the throne of the Pharaohs and ruler of Egypt. But King Fuad's official reception, on his arrival for a three days' visit, was apparently only an excuse for traffic congestion and the calling out of police reserves. The real reason for the popular demonstration was the appearance of President von Hindenburg, who met the royal train and rode beside the King in the state carriage through the Brandenburg gate across the Pariser Platz down the Wilhelmstrasse to the Prince Albrecht Palace, which has been designated as the royal headquarters.

Fuad is the second King to pay an official visit to the German capital since the war and neither he nor Amanullah of Afghanistan, who came last year, are sufficiently important to cause great public excitement. For Berlin has seen many Kings in times past, although several who have been here lately have arrived incognito, such as the King of Sweden, en route to some tennis tournament, or the King of Denmark on a visit to relatives.

But President von Hindenburg, upon whom the Reich so much depends, is now so old and in such uncertain health that he shows himself so rarely that for the crowd his appearance is a real treat.

The waving flags, military bands, an escort of honor and troops lining the entire route were all for King Fuad, but the cheers were for the President—such cheers as there were, for the crowd was subdued at the age and suffering stamped upon the President's face. However, King Fuad could not have expected a more kingly official reception, even under the empire. Although the grim and somberly clad Reichswehr did not goose-step in the fashion of the old army, they made a magnificent display and marched with such precision as to excite the visitor's outspoken admiration.

Also the town enjoyed one of the rare moments of the present season's sunshine, so the decorations sparkled and the flags fluttered bravely to the lilting music. The major Foreign Office officials, headed by Dr. Stresemann, are all attending the meeting of the Council of the League of Nations at Madrid, so the second motor was filled with the chiefs of the other departments who have the task, during the next few days, of handling that side of King Fuad's visit which lies behind the scenes.

The crowd in the street was quite uninterested in the reason of Fuad's visit. The fact that his exchequer is undoubtedly better filled than was Amanullah's will probably get him credit at the shops if he desires it, which will probably not be the case with the deposed monarch of Afghanistan, should he come again.

But Germany's big industries are greatly interested in things Egyptian. As only recently the Germans have succeeded in doing big business on the banks of the River Shannon in Ireland, these leaders see no reason for not reaching out even further—to the upper reaches of the River Nile, for example, where power plants may also be constructed.

"A round of big receptions and banquets has been planned for the next three days, after which his Egyptian Majesty will make a brief tour of the provincial cities of the Reich, where the populace may likewise prove curious.

The popular idea of royalty—and especially of German royalty—was well illustrated here this week at a moving picture theatre which is giving a complete program of the films of twenty years ago. The program starts with topical scenes, followed by slap-stick comedy and ends with the "drammer" where a heroine in ankle length skirts and wide hat, jumps off a bridge while the villian still pursues.

GERMANY DEMANDS MINORITIES RULING

TALK WITH BRIAND PUT OFF

But Two Are Expected to Confer on Rhineland Today—Ceremonies Mark First Full Session in Madrid.

By CLARENCE K. STREET.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, June 10.—The plenary session of the Council of the League of Nations opened today with indications that Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, now that the reparations experts' report has been signed, intends to lose no time in pressing for political compensation and pursuing generally a more energetic policy.

He began by arranging a conversation with Foreign Minister Briand of France on Rhineland evacuation and though it was called off tonight at the last moment—a fact which started much comment—the interview appears to be merely postponed until tomorrow, due to the material reason that M. Briand had a conflict in engagements.

Dr. Stresemann played the leading part in the private meeting of the Council which preceded the public session by using his right as a member of the Council to have a minorities petition placed on the agenda. This is the first time in League history that any member of the Council has used this right.

Regarded as Meddling.

In fact, for one State thus to bring before the Council the petition of a minority in another State is regarded as so meddling that the Council, in order to avoid individual responsibilities, long ago adopted the practice of appointing a committee of three of its members to dispose informally of each minority etition.

Germany objected to this procedure as not protecting minorities sufficiently and proposed instead a permanent commission to deal with minority petitions. This and Dr. Stresemann's other proposal on similar lines are, in the Council's judgment, beyond the scope of its report, and it wrangled long on this subject in the secret session and will resume it tomorrow.

If the Council rejects these proposals Germany is prepared to gain her essential goal by the method which the minority treaty held and which is so much more drastic that it has been hitherto assumed that no nation would have recourse to it.

Establishes a Precedent.

The petition which Dr. Stresemann would put on the League agenda is of much less importance intrinsically than the precedent it establishes and the indication it gives of what Germany is prepared to do in the future. It concerns the liquidation of the property of German citizens in Poland. It is not expected to gain approval for the general German thesis on minorities, whose chances are regarded as hopless, but to prevent its definite rejection and obtain an adjournment of a decision on the principle until September.

The Germans are greatly dissatisfied with the non-commital attitude of the British representative, Sir George Grahame, for they expected that the Socialist German Government would receive support from the British Laborite Government, not only on the question of minorities but also on the evacuation of the Rhineland. The Reich Socialists are doing their utmost to get Ramsay MacDonald either to send some Laborite representatives to Madrid or give more explicit instructions to Ambassador Grahame.

Word has been passed in German circles to say little about the Saar-Basin aspect of the negotiations with M. Briand, on the ground that the more the German press mentions the subject, the harder it will be for Dr. Stresemann to prepare now to liquidate this question along with the evacuation of the Rhineland. That his task is not easy is evident from the way sources close to M. Briand treat the juridical difficulties involved, pointing out that the consent of the Council is necessary.

Premier Receives Them.

Before the session began five Councilors were received by Prime de Rivera, who formally placed the Senate Palace at the disposal of the Council and stressed the honor Spain felt at the session's being held in Madrid.

M. Adatci of Japan, whose turn it is to preside at this session, opened the public meeting with a graceful expression of the Council's gratitude to Spain for her hospitality and a tribute to King Alfonso and the Spanish people. Quiñones de Leon, replying, assured the League of Spain's whole-hearted cooperation.

The simplicity and lack of pomp which characterizes the Council sessions stood out all the more today. Though the Councilors assembled at their usual horse-shoe table, which had been shipped from Geneva, the surroundings were quite different, the well-proportioned and beautifully decorated oval Senate chamber being considerably more majestic in appearance than the "glass room" at Geneva.

But the Council brought its own atmosphere with its table, though a couple of subordinate members of the Secretariat were seated on the spacious throne with its great canopy, and the seats of Senators, bearing the names of the dukes, counts and other Spanish grandees who formerly occupied them, were turned over to the press. Curiously enough, the place of the descendant of the Duke of Alba, whom the Dutch remember as their worst oppressor in the days of the Spanish domination of the Netherlands, fell to the correspondent of an Amsterdam paper.

Spectators Are Few.

Though the accommodations for the public were greater than at Geneva, the crowd was smaller, many gallery seats being empty. Only a few curious passers-by gathered outside the building for the arrival and departure of the Councilors.

The session itself was confined to routine adoption of various reports of League committees, including the Health Commission's plan for reorganization of the Greek public health service and the appointment of Professor R. P. Strong as the American expert on the committee to coordinate sleeping sickness investigations.

In reporting on the slavery convention Sir George Grahame of Britain drew particular attention to American ratification and the fact that the Senate's reservation, instead of limiting the obligations of the United States, went even further than the treaty.

In a private session preceding the public one, the Council accepted a gift of $500 from a Chicago lawyer, James Forstall, to aid the researches of the League's health organization in the Far East.

Adjourn Till Wednesday.

MADRID, June 10 (AP).—After the public session adjournment was taken to Wednesday so that the members of the Council might enjoy the program of festivities and formal functions arranged for them. The afternoon was spent largely in sightseeing and this evening the delegates were guests at a banquet at the Ministry of State, presided over by Premier de Rivera. League employes and newspaper men were invited to the reception that followed.

The Papal Nuncio, American Ambassador Ogden Hammond, the French, Italian and German Ambassadors and the diplomatic representatives of most of the countries of the world heard the reading of the reports and the discussion of various questions raised at the session.

Public interest centred chiefly in Dr. Stresemann, who appeared pale and debilitated. He allowed himself to be photographed and filmed with good grace on entering and leaving the Senate.

It was announced that an agreement had been reached between Hungary and Czechoslovakia with reference to race conflicts, in which the League will no longer be called upon to intervene.

Washington Interested.

WASHINGTON, June 10 (AP).—American officials will follow closely the deliberations of the Council which will take up, among other things, the plan to call a conference of the nations which are members of the Permanent Court of International Justice for discussion of the Root protocol for American adherence.

Ambassador Hammond has been instructed to act as unofficial observer for this government during the Council proceedings. He undoubtedly will send full reports to the State Department on the Council's discussions of the procotol which was presented to the League at Geneva last Spring.

American officials expect the council to accept the Root plan, which already has received the approval of League experts. If the Council sanctions the protocol, it will convoke a conference of the World Court's member-nations on the proposal simultaneously with the next League of Nations Assembly in September.

As nearly all of the members of the World Court are affiliated with the League, it is expected that the Council will propose to those nations the empowering of their delegates to the September Assembly to convene as a Court body and sign the protocol. It is believed in official circles here that the approval of the protocol by the September conference is certain.

SOUTH AFRICA GOES TO POLLS TOMORROW

HERTZOG PARTY OPPOSES IT

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAPE TOWN, June 10.—A hot fighting election will be held throughout the Union of South Africa on Wednesday. A round half million electors are scattered from Cape Town to Northern Rhodesia, but there is not a woman among them.

The two main parties are led by Generals, with a Colonel in charge of the largest Labor section.

After a four-year "pact" the government conducted by Prime Minister General Hertzog, leader of the Nationalist party, with the support of the Labor section headed by Colonel Creswell and with the veteran General Smuts in opposition with his South African party, a new House of Assembly will be elected on a number of new issues, the principal of which is the native question.

Premier Hertzog's platform is that European colonization of South Africa should not "be endangered by the native vote." In the doctrine of equality of franchise for both white and black peoples General Hertzog foresees the existence of the white man threatened.

"Unless the native vote is separated from the white man's," he says, "the native vote would be the cause of the greatest tragedy in the history of South Africa."

As head of the Nationalist party, General Hertzog objects to South Africa as a State being united either by a federation or unification to territories like Northeast Africa, "which could never be anything else than native States." But he proposes to solve the native problem along the lines of political and territorial segregation.

Now General Smuts is out for "a greater South Africa," and he declares that General Hertzog has been singing the hymn of hate all over South Africa, stirring up white against natives and representing the natives as a danger to white civilization.

Any native question, he says, should be settled by a national convention, which he is going to convene immediately if he is successful at the polls. His attitude regarding the native question is to let sleeping dogs lie, but now that the "dog" has been awakened by General Hertzog, he says, the situation must be cleared.

At present about 30,000 non-whites have the franchise in the Cape Province, about two hundred in Natal and none in either the Orange Free State or the Transvaal. General Hertzog says that the Nationalists wish only to give a limited franchise to the natives in the northern provinces. General Smuts says if the Northern natives get the right to elect their own members to parliament the rest will work itself out.

The issue will rest between General Hertzog and General Smuts.

General Smuts, in addition to his Greater South Africa policy, has declared for votes for women and denunciation of the recently concluded German trade treaty unless it is amended in respect of the British preference. Many fruit growers in the western Province fear the sale of fruit to England will be affected by the German treaty, which in many quarters is regarded as a blow at the system of empire preference enunciated at the last meeting of dominion Premiers in London.

General Hertzog's Government recently has been negotiating trade agreements on the lines of the German treaty with France, Holland, Italy and Argentina, but all have been temporarily suspended on account of the election.

Labor's chief hope, like that of the Liberal party in Great Britain, seems to be to hold a balance of power between the South African party and the Nationalists with a handful of members. Today Labor is split—one-half under Colonel Creswell is in close alliance with the Nationalists and has three representatives in the present Cabinet, while the other half, with no outstanding leader, is in opposition to the government. Labor's main platform consists of national insurance, old age pensions, regulation of wages by industrial councils and a minimum white wage of $2.50 a day.

INDEPENDENT	21

In the last Parliament, before the Labor party split, General Hertzog and Colonel Creswell could command a majority of about twenty-nine, but a very small switch of votes in the election would give General Smuts as large, if not a larger, majority.

The Nationalist Government has made a good showing in the last year. The State railways showed a surplus of more than $1,500,000; the Minister of Finance reported a surplus of $5,500,000 on a total revenue of $182,500,000 and the budget provided for a reduction of the income tax and certain reductions in customs and excise taxes.

The popular view is that General Hertzog and Colonel Creswell will win again, although with a reduced majority.

AIRPLANE FALL KILLS WOMAN PASSENGER

Pilot Seriously Injured When Craft Strikes Wires Near Washington's Crossing.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 10.—An airplane which took off from the field of the Rainbow Aviation Company, Inc., opposite Washington's crossing, late this afternoon for a pleasure cruise, struck some electric wires and plunged to the ground, causing fatal injuries to Mrs. Hannah Jones 56, of Philadelphia, the passenger, and seriously injuring John J. Stevenson, 32, also of Philadelphia, the pilot.

Mrs. Jones died of a fractured skull and internal injuries soon after she and the pilot were taken to the Mercer County Hospital here. Stevenson received a fracture of the skull and internal injuries.

Varying accounts of the accident were related by State highway police and by Coroner Henry C. Brewer. According to one version, as the plane was taking off a gust of wind caught it up and hurled the tail skid into the wires, causing the craft to dive to the ground.

Others declared that Stevenson had negotiated a perfect take-off and that his engine had failed him about a half-mile from the field. As the plane, a Challenger, started to drop, Stevenson came too near the wires while seeking a suitable landing place, they said.

ASSYRIAN FORTRESS OF 730 B. C. FOUND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BAGDAD, June 10.—Announcement has just been made of important discoveries in Mesopotamia at Arslan, the site of ancient Hadatu on the left bank of the Euphrates about forty miles from the Syro-Turkish frontier, where the excavations are the auspicies of a French expedition under Francois Thureau Dangin, the eminent Assyriologist, together with Père Barrois of the Dominican School at Jerusalem.

Ruins of a fortress and palace of the Assyrian King Tiglath-Pileser III, of about 730 B. C. were unearthed. The discovery is of the greatest interest to biblical students because this king conquered Galilee, thus commencing the Israelite captivity. Ahaz, father of Hezekiah, was then King of Judah but he was threatened by an alliance of the Kings of Israel and Damascus. The prophet Isiah encouraged Ahaz, predicting the downfall of Israel and Damascus, both of which were conquered by Tiglath-Pileser.

In the palace of the Assyrian King was discovered an extraordinary series of carved strips of ivory from inlaid furniture. They are the work of Syrian artists of Damascus and show that the Syrians adopted Phoenician art, a fact hitherto unknown. One ivory strip bears the words "belonging to our Lord Hazael." The strip was found to be part of a bed, richly ornamented with ivory and gold. Hazael was the King of Damascus whose accession to the throne was predicted by Elisha, since against the prophet's will since Hazael became the most dangerous foe of Israel.

The furniture to which the bed belonged was thus among the booty taken by the Assyrian King when he captured Damascus. The carvings exhibit a remarkably fine feeling for animals forms and also show an interesting decorative use of Egyptian mythological motifs.

Tenth Century Coffin Found.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMMAN, June 10.—While digging for cisterns at Sahab, on the edge of the Syrian Desert, southeast of Amman, capital of Transjordania, natives found a buried tomb containing a large anthropoid sarcophagus. They destroyed the clay coffin in the hope of finding treasure, but saved the lid which is in the form of a face with a beard. The handles attached to the lid are ingeniously adapted to serve as the ears and beard.

G. Horsefield, British director of antiquities in Transjordania, learned of the discovery and had the things taken to the Amman Museum.

Professor W. F. Albright, director of the American School of Oriental Research at Jerusalem, dates the burial to the tenth century B. C., about the time of David.

The discovery has caused a sensation in archaeological circles since far-reaching historical conclusions may be drawn from it. Similar anthropoid coffins have been found in the Nile Delta. They were those of the garrisons of foreign soldiers who lived between 1200-900 B. C.

Several coffins of the same kind have recently been found in Palestine at Beth Shan, where excavations are going on under the auspices of the University of Pennsylvania Museum. It is not yet known what race buried their dead in these coffins.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—Manuscripts relating to the foundation of the State of Maryland and its early settlement will be sold at Sotheby's on June 25. They are the private papers of Lords Cecilius and Charles Baltimore, the first and second proprietors of the Province of Maryland.

The items include a signed draft or duplicate letter dated Aug. 19, 1629, addressed to George I by Baron Baltimore from his plantation at Avalon, Newfoundland, praying for a grant of land in the warmer climate of Virginia.

It is this document which led to the foundation of the colony of Maryland.

The documents and letters—there are several from Charles Lord Baltimore to William Penn—come down to the latter part of the seventeenth century. The name of the vendor is not given.

The communication officials have made inquiries in England as to the position of the government, should the project be undertaken. The cable, which would be laid from Newfoundland, would be the first under the Atlantic for simultaneous telegraph and telephone work.

RUMANIA PROTESTS SPEECH BY BETHLEN

ITALIAN FLIERS IN RUMANIA

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, June 10.—Rumania and Yugoslavia have decided to follow the example of Czechoslovakia and present official protests against the Irredentist speech of Premier Count Bethlen at the unveiling of a monument to Hungary's Unknown Soldier at Budapest a fortnight ago. On Thursday Dr. Eduard Benes told the Foreign Committee of the Czechoslovakian Senate that his government had decided to lodge a complaint. Rumania, because she did not wish to endanger the Rumano-Hungarian optants negotiations, and Yugoslavia, because she has troubles of her own, were disinclined to take similar action, but a strong newspaper and diplomatic campaign since the statement of Dr. Benes has converted them.

It is reported here that the Rumanian Minister to Budapest, M. Grigorcea, has been instructed not to participate in any official festivities. The tone of the Rumanian note is understood to be restrained, but the newspapers are urging the government to protest to the League of Nations against the Hungarian attitude.

It also is complained that the Hungarian delegates to the agricultural congress now meeting here are abusing Rumanian hospitality by distributing Irrendentist pamphets to their fellow-delegates. The newspapers assert that the Manui Government of Rumania has treated the Hungarian minority in Transylvania more fairly than any of its predecessors, yet the Hungarian treaty revision campaign is more active than before. But the Yugoslavian newspapers, which are government-censored, do not discuss the question.

The fact that the protests will be presented two weeks after the speech of the Hungarian Premier is being cited by the Budapest press as evidence that they are the result of an arrangement and not of spontaneous indignation. Hungary, it is declared, knows well who instigated the Little Entente to such action—which, doubtless, means she considers Dr. Benes the villain of the piece.

Cool Welcome for Italian.

CONSTANZA, Rumania, June 10.—Three days after the delivery of his fiery speech at Verna reviving Bulgarian Irredentist hopes, the Italian Under-Secretary of Aviation, Italo Balbo, arrived here today from Odessa accompanied by the transatlantic flier, Major de Pinedo and the squadron of thirty-six airplanes the aviator is piloting around the coast.

Despite the fact that Princess Ileana and the Rumanian War Minister, M. Cihovsky, were present to greet the airmen, the atmosphere was not one of unmixed welcome. Signor Balbo did what he could to improve it by an immediate denial of having encouraged Bulgaria's hopes of reclaiming Macedonia, with which he is credited.

Rumanian newspapers, however, continue to criticise Signor Balbo's Varna speech.

Protest Filed at Budapest.

BUDAPEST, June 10 (AP).—M. Grigorcea, the Rumanian Minister, handed the government a note today protesting against recent speeches by Premier Bethlen advocating restoration to Hungary of territories lost under the terms of the Treaty of the Trianon.

Rumania warns Hungary that such utterances are not calculated to promote friendly relations between Hungary and her neighbors.

The defendants had pleaded guilty. Cluff was sent to the Providence County jail for six months for transporting thirty-six pints of whisky on April 13. Castro was fined $500, with a suspended sentence of six months, for transporting two five-gallon cans of moonshine.

GUGGENHEIM TO GET AIR MEDAL TOMORROW

Spirit of St. Louis Presentation Will Be Made by Committee at Luncheon Here.

For his "meritorious service in the advancement of aeronautics," Daniel Guggenheim will receive the Spirit of St. Louis Aeronautical Medal tomorrow from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Mr. Guggenheim will be the first recipient of the award, which has been made possible by a donation for this purpose by citizens of St. Louis. It is planned to honor other outstanding benefactors of aviation from time to time in the same way.

The medal is of coin gold, two and one-half inches in diameter. On one side is the emblem of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and on the other an engraving of Icarus, typifying the Spirit of Flight, and under the name the year of Colonel Lindbergh's flight to Paris.

The presentation will be made at an informal luncheon at the Hotel Madison in the presence of a few men vitally interested in aviation. The committee awarding the medal is composed of P. De C. Ball, Orville Wright, Colonel Lindbergh, Admiral H. I. Cone, Dr. W. F. Durand and Dr. Elmer A. Perry.

Since 1916 Mr. Guggenheim has been devoting his entire time to benevolent undertakings in which aviation has been prominent.

Reports Turks in Armed Revolt.

BEIRUT, Syria, June 10 (AP).—A traveler arriving from Kurdistan in Eastern Turkey has reported that pitched battles between Turks and insurgents in the shadow of Mount Ararat had caused heavy losses. The insurgents were described as advancing in two columns, one east of Lake Van and the other near Sassun. They were said to have invested the city of Van while the Turks were massing troops to relieve it.

[Similar reports from Jerusalem last Friday were said by official circles in Constantinople to be absolutely unfounded.]

CANON CHASE PLANS A MODEL SEX TRACT

PROPOSES OTHER TEXTS

Pamphlets for Married Persons and Bridegrooms Will Stress "Great Motive," He Says.

Canon William Sheafe Chase, superintendent of the International Reform Federation, who was instrumental in the conviction of Mary Ware Dennett for circulating through the mails a pamphlet on sex for youth, is preparing a booklet on the same subject to serve as a model in sex education, it was revealed yesterday. Mrs. Dennett was fined $300 in a verdict which was appealed. Her work had been endorsed by medical and educational authorities.

"One of the objects of my book," said Canon Chase yesterday, "will be to take the minds of children away from sex, not by mis-stating or under-stating, but simply by trying to satisfy normal curiosity and lifting the juvenile mind to the real purpose, which is primarily for the propagating of the race."

That purpose, he said, also held good for a second proposed pamphlet for married persons. And if he carries out his plans to create a third text for expectant bridegrooms, the same idea will underlie it, Canon Chase said.

His principal objection to Mrs. Dennett's book, he explained, was its "implications," and during an interview he took a copy of the offending pamphlet from his pocket to indicate the offending passages, which he had underscored. He qualified his criticism of Mrs. Dennett's work with the statement that it was "simple and concise," and he found the physiological drawings so good, he said, that he had obtained permission to use them in his own work.

Different captions will be used with the diagrams, however.

Canon Chase said he would try to put a different light on marriage and its responsibilities.

"As in all other matters of life," he said, "there must be created a great motive. That is peculiarly necessary in this instance. In speaking of marriage, my pamphlet will regard it as the result of the varied experiences of humanity through the centuries, and make it evident that there is more than the romantic side pictured by Mrs. Dennett. There is the responsible side and the development of home life and fidelity to be considered as the true basis of marriage."

Canon Chase also said he would leave out any passages that would allay the fear of indiscretions, as "fear is as much a part of human life as love."

Forrest Bailey of the American Civil Liberties Union, who has had charge of the union's activities in Mrs. Dennett's defense, welcomed an exposition of Canon Chase's ideas. "Naturally," he said, "we shall enjoy a statement of Canon Chase's ideas. Indeed, should he ever need our aid in a possible situation such as Mrs. Dennett's we shall most cheerfully and heartily extend him any help within our power."

CHASE AFTER MURDER IN CABARET DESCRIBED

Detective Tyler S. Allen, testifying yesterday at the second trial in General Sessions of James Russell, 35 years old, of 326 West Sixteenth Street, for the slaying of Patrick (Lefty) Mitchell, gangster, in the Village Rest, in West Fourth Street, in May, 1928, told the jury that when he questioned Russell after the shooting there were blood stains on the defendant's clothing. The jury in Russell's first trial, last November, was unable to agree on a verdict.

"I questioned him in the station, where Russell had been taken by Arthur Schultheiss," said the detective. "I asked him if he shot Mitchell, and he replied: 'No; he was my best friend. Why should I shoot him?'"

Schultheiss, who was a rookie patrolman when he arrested Russell, a few minutes after the killing, saw Russell and another man run out of the cabaret, he told the jury, and saw blood stains on Russell's face. There were similar stains on his clothing, he said, and also testified that he saw Russell take something from his hip pocket and throw it away as he was being pursued.

Patrolman James F. McCadden told the jury he happened to be in Greenwich Village shortly after dawn and joined Schultheiss in the pursuit of the two men. After Schultheiss had captured Russell, he declared, he and Schultheiss picked up two pistols, which they believed had been discarded by Russell and the other man, who got away.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phillips told of having accompanied Mitchell and her daughter, Romaine, to the West Fourth Street place a few minutes before the killing. She and Romaine were seated at a table when they heard shots in the stairway outside, and running out saw the body of Mitchell. The trial will be continued this morning.

CONFESSION READ AT CAMPBELL TRIAL

PASTOR TELLS OF WEDDING

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 10.—Henry Colin Campbell, 41 year-old civil engineer, went on trial today before Justice Clarence E. Case and a jury in the Court of Oyer and Terminer. He is charged with the murder of Mrs. Mildred Mowry, following a bigamous marriage and the realization that he could not support two homes.

The day's evidence included accounts of the findings of Mrs. Mowry's body and the text of a confession alleged to have been made by Campbell the night of his arrest two months ago. Letters, one to his wife and mother of his three children, and seventeen to Mrs. Mowry, were also admitted as evidence. Finally there was testimony regarding the discovery of morphine tablets in Campbell's home.

William Moroso, confidential-stenographer of Prosecutor Abe J. David, identified the confession. He took the statement from Campbell's dictation, he said, and heard the prosecutor ask Campbell whether he made it voluntarily and the prisoner answered that he did.

Confession Describes Murder.

The confession was to the effect that Campbell met Mrs. Mowry through a matrimonial agency, married her, obtained about $200 from her and then found that he was unable to maintain her in a home of her own. So he took her in his car to Cranford, shot her, and then carried the body to the roadside of Springfield Avenue, poured gasoline upon it and set it afire.

In the confession Campbell is quoted as saying he shot Mrs. Mowry with a pistol numbered 267222, but the actual number of the pistol offered in evidence by Mr. David was 267229. Francis A. Gordon, Campbell's attorney, objected to its admission. Moroso explained that he had mistaken the 9 for a 2.

A letter which Moroso testified Campbell wrote to his wife, Mrs. Roselea McCready Campbell, just after the confession was signed, read in part:

"My dear wife, I will not be home tonight, and after this trouble you will not want to see me again. This is the end of everything. I wish I could see you and the children once again, but that is impossible."

The letters to Mrs. Mowry were dated from Oct. 4, 1928. One spoke of Campbell's regret that he could not be with her and his love and affection for her, and in another, dated Nov. 6, he advised her not to "mind what the gossips say." In a third he spoke of his heavy expenses, but said he would soon be with her in Greenville, Pa., and advised her not to worry.

Tells of Finding Watch.

County Detective Roy A. Martin, the last witness before the court adjourned until tomorrow, produced a wrist watch and part of the metal frame of a suitcase and testified that he had found them under the Campbell home in Westfield. In the confession Campbell spoke of burning them in the furnace there.

Detective Martin also identified a jar of morphine tablets and a hypodermic needle which he said he had discovered in the home.

During the testimony Campbell sat quietly in his chair, his head a little bent forward, looking straight ahead through his rimless glasses. When the letters to Mrs. Mowry were read in court he glanced down. He has been ill since his arrest two months ago, and his face was very pallid.

Other witnesses included the Rev. William G. Harris of Elkton, Md., who identified a photograph of Mrs. Mowry as one of the couple he had married Aug. 28, 1928, and identified Campbell as the other. He said that Campbell appeared as Dr. Richard N. Campbell, a widower, and Mrs. Mowry under her true name.

John H. Marsh, assistant cashier of the New Jersey National Bank at New Brunswick, said that on Aug. 29, 1928, Campbell and Mrs. Mowry opened a joint account there. Mrs. H. G. Dodds of Greenville, who identified the body of Mrs. Mowry, and Dr. George W. Howre, who performed an autopsy, also testified.

ASSOLANT MARRIES AS HE AWAITS FLIGHT

COURTSHIP OF TWO WEEKS

They Met at Old Orchard on Eve of Date First Set for Transatlantic Take-Off.

Special to The New York Times.

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Me., June 10—Jean Assollant, French transatlantic pilot, speaks about six words of English, and Miss Pauline Parker, New York chorus girl, speaks no French, but the linguistic difficulty proved no bar today when they were married in Portland after two weeks' acquaintance.

On May 27 Miss Parker, whose parents live in Winthrop, Me., arrived at the Brunswick Hotel here to witness the take-off of the Bernard monoplane, the Yellow Bird. Assollant, Rene Lefevre and Armenio Lotti Jr., the crew of the French plane, were set to start their flight to Paris early the next morning.

The Old Orchard Chamber of Commerce gave a dinner in honor of the fliers on the night of Miss Parker's arrival and she was invited. The girl, who is 22 years old and a striking blonde, sat at a table near Assollant, who is 25 years old. They were introduced. The young Frenchman became very attentive.

As day after day went by, with bad weather holding the fliers from their adventure, Miss Parker and the pilot were much in each other's company.

She returned to her residence at 133 West Seventy-fifth Street, New York, last Wednesday. A stream of telegrams and letters from Assollant followed her. The messages were in French, and Miss Parker hunted up a friend to translate them. Then she sent a stream of messages up to Assollant. He called in a reportorial friend, who obligingly told Assollant how Miss Parker felt about it all.

The result was that she boarded a train for Maine again last night. When she stepped off the Pullman in Portland early this morning, Assollant, who had risen at 4:30 o'clock, was waiting. They went to the office of A. Edwin Smith, City Clerk of Portland, and obtained a marriage license; then to Probate Judge Carroll S. Chaplin, who sanctioned waiving the five-day period of the Maine law.

The couple then returned to City Clerk Smith, who performed the marriage ceremony, with employes of his office acting as witnesses.

Assollant said that his marriage would not alter his determination to make the flight with his companions.

The weather outlook tonight indicated that the fliers would be here for at least a week. Lotti, who is in New York City, is expected here tomorrow. Assollant expects to go to New York tomorrow or Wednesday to meet friends of his bride.

The same bad weather which bars the flight of the Yellow Bird also will hold the Green Flash, the Belgian monoplane in which Roger Q. Williams and Captain Lewis A. Yancey plan a flight to Rome.

At the address of Miss Parker here, a rooming house, it was said that she had been in this city for two years. In addition to her stage work, she has been a model for art and for commercial photographers. Her brother, Frank Parker, and his wife, live at the West Seventy-fifth Street adress. Thomas Mullins, proprietor of the rooming house, said that Miss Parker had done much flying last year. He added that she had expected a place in a new show.

PART OF PLANE WASHED UP.

WESTERLY, R. I., June 10 (AP.)—The Atlantic gave up several bits of a shattered airplane today. Nelson Thorp of this town, joining an early throng at Quonochontaug Beach, found three wooden pieces of the plane and a portion of a blue-painted fuselage.

Thorp, advised by life guards, scraped the shellac from one of the wooden portions and found a number which he could not distinguish. He will use a magnifying glass, for he believes the number is the manufacturer's serial.

CRIMINAL CHARGES IN CITY TRUST CASE

added. "Di Paola's name came up several times during the discussion."

Mr. Pollak in the short conference with Justice Cropsey summarized the evidence developed at the hearings to date. Justice Cropsey was confident that any criminal acts in the case were fully covered by the statutes. He was asked what penalty was provided for ownership of bank stock by a banking superintendent. There has been evidence that Frank H. Warder, former Bank Superintendent, held City Trust stock in the name of a dummy. The banking law prohibits this, but does not mention a penalty.

"I am sure that we shall find a general statute covering the situation," he said. "I have not looked up the law on that yet."

Asked what action could be taken against the board of directors for failure to act on the report of the bank department citing twenty-two violations of the banking law, he replied:

"It is not the failure to act on the letter of the banking department, it is the facts which lay behind that letter, the violations of the law themselves," he said. But he would not comment on the responsibility of individual directors until he has seen the evidence of their failure to act. They have maintained that they were unaware of the violations; Di Paola, in his testimony, insisted that they knew of the banking department's complaint.

The clerical and legal work in connection with preparation of criminal complaints will take some time, and while the first is expected within the next day or two it is not likely that all will be ready at the same time. Justice Cropsey will not have a complete transcript of the hearings of the Moreland commission presented to him, but only those parts which indicate crimes. He will act on these only on specific complaints.

"I am not an investigator," he explained, "but merely a magistrate to decide if evidence presented to me warrants criminal action."

It was not until late in the afternoon that Mr. Pollak and Mr. Daugherty came to Justice Cropsey's chambers. After they had been there nearly half an hour Mr. Moses appeared and was ushered in. This circumstance indicated that he had been asked to join his counsel at the conference.

Mr. Moses had said earlier that he did not expect to see Justice Cropsey during the day, and Justice Cropsey, meanwhile, was at work in his chambers and said that he was waiting to hear from the Moreland commission.

Leon Leighton, an attorney for depositors of the City Trust, again addressed a letter yesterday to Governor Roosevelt repeating his request for an extraordinary trial term of the Supreme Court to investigate the Banking Department in relation to the City Trust failure. While paying tribute to Justice Cropsey's reputation for fearless and independent action Mr. Leighton said that the designation gave him no powers not already his as a Supreme Court justice. Mr. Leighton wrote:

"I also request that you direct the Attorney General to supersede the District Attorney of New York County in the prosecution of this investigation.

"Mr. Justice Cropsey, in whatever capacity he sits, can do nothing until the evidence justifying prosecution is presented to him. The District Attorney has had all the information in regard to this situation for weeks, and it seems that he is either unwilling or incompetent vigorously to prosecute this matter. I make the direct charge that the Tammany Hall organization is so deeply involved in this banking scandal that the public cannot be assured of a fair and thorough prosecution by the District Attorney of New York County, who is an active member of that political organization.

John La Greca, a contractor of 241 East 115th Street, secretary of the Harlem Depositors' Protective Association, wrote to W. Kingsland Macy yesterday telling him that the interests of the 25,000 depositors of the City Trust should be placed above political aims in asking for a wider investigation of the Banking Department. He wrote:

"Whatever your political aims are in clamoring for a State-wide investigation does not interest the depositors at all, as they see in the Mutual Trust Company the only hope to recover their money. Your efforts to disclose why and how the Mutual Trust Company came into existence would neither bring a single cent more to the depositors nor do any good to anybody.

"Besides the interest of the political parties, there is at stake the welfare of over 25,000 families, many of them utterly ruined by the crash, and if you want to do something good you might try to help them to recover their money."

WARDER DENIES HE GOT GIFTS FROM FERRARI

Frank H. Warder, former State Superintendent of Banks, signed yesterday the transcript of his testimony given before Federal Referee Henry K. Davis in the investigation of the bankruptcy of the Lancia Motors of America, Inc. In his testimony before Mr. Davis several weeks ago Mr. Warder denied that he or members of his family received any gifts from the late Francesco M. Ferrari, president of the City Trust Company.

The transcript signed by Mr. Warder is in direct contradition of testimony by other witnesses before Moreland Commissioner Moses that the former Superintendent of Banks had received valuable presents from the late Mr. Ferrari. Mr. Warder made a few slight changes in the transcript, but, according to Mr. Davis, did not alter the substance of his testimony.

After signing the voluminous document Mr. Warder said it would depend on the nature of the questions asked him at the hearing Friday before Mr. Davis whether he would answer or assert his constitutional right to refuse. He is scheduled to be questioned then by Saul S. Myers, counsel for the Royal Indemnity Company, who is searching for the "missing assets" of the Lancia Motors of America, Inc., a corporation in which the former City Trust Company president was interested.

Mr. Warder declined to comment on the proceedings before Mr. Moses or the appointment of Supreme Court Justice Cropsey to act as a committing magistrate.

Another witness before Mr. Davis who signed the transcript of his testimony was Charles I. Rockmore, a former director of the City Trust Company. He was to be questioned again yesterday, but his examination was postponed until Friday.

Creditors of the Federal Securities Corporation, another organization in which Mr. Ferrari was interested, are to meet this morning in the office of Mr. Davis to elect a trustee. The corporation went into voluntary bankruptcy April 25. The schedules of the Federal Securities Corporation list $2,368,712 in assets and $1,446,600 in liabilities. The chief item in the assets is a block of 4,420 shares of the defunct City Trust Company stock having a book value of $1,259,000.

Among the liabilities are claims from the Chemical National Bank for $531,989; Redleaf Realty Corporation, $207,263, and disputed claims aggregating $364,394.

FREEZE WITH HEAT . . . . . The ELECTROLUX Refrigerator

NOISELESS when you buy it and forever after

The Electrolux has no moving parts to wear or make sound. A tiny gas flame takes the place of all machinery

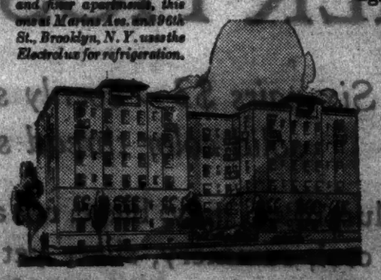
THE noiselessness of Electrolux is not the man-made quietness of smoothly running machinery. It is not the result of sound muffled. Rather, it is like the natural silence of a deep well, where no sound exists.

Baths of oil, insulated compartments, oilless bearings, live rubber mountings—these are efficient deadeners of sound. But the Electrolux uses none of them, for it needs none. It has no sound to start with, and acquires none with age.

A month, a year, or ten years are all the same to the silence of Electrolux. There is no machinery, not a single moving part, and hence no vibration or friction; not a thing to work loose or get out of adjustment.

The wonder is how such simplicity can work and keep on working, with apparently so little to make it go. Yet this very simplicity is one of the surest guarantees of perfect, continuous service. It is one of the biggest reasons why you needn't ever expect to have trouble and bother.

Like so many of the newer and finer apartments, this one at Marcus Ave. and 96th St., Brooklyn, N. Y., uses the Electrolux for refrigeration.



A tiny gas flame, a trickle of water, a common ordinary refrigerating liquid—that's all there is to Electrolux. As soon as you light the flame, the chilling action starts, and goes on without further attention from you.

You'll always have a constant, evenly low temperature in the food chamber. You'll always have a generous supply of big, pure ice cubes. But you won't have a big bill for operating expense. In fact, the ridiculously low month-to-month cost is one of the most pleasing features of this remarkable refrigerator.

A trickle of water, a tiny gas flame—but no machinery to wear, to vibrate, to make noise.

Gas and water are not only relatively cheap, but the Electrolux uses only a tiny gas flame and a mere trickle of water. That is why the operating cost is ridiculously low.

One reason for this saving is that gas and water are relatively cheap. Another is that Electrolux uses such a small quantity of each. The flame is only a trifle larger than a pilot light. The water is just a trickle.

The little flame burns continuously. Should it ever go out for any reason, no harm is done. The freezing action stops, but the gas automatically shuts off until you light it again.

Step into the nearest display room and see for yourself the interesting array of sizes and models, in white and beautiful color harmonies. Prices depend upon size, and range from $210 to $510 installed. Purchase terms are liberal.

The Great Experiment

Artemus Ward once said that it would have been worth ten dollars in his pocket if he'd never been born. And perhaps that was true of the world—even of this great humorist—some sixty-odd years ago. But today every little angel floating around in the blue empyrean ought to be willing to pay a thousand times ten dollars to be allowed to be born. Indeed, there should be a waiting line at the gates of nativity, eager to exchange their cherubic wings for the wings of an earthly destiny in this new world of amazing opportunity.

For this world—especially the American part of it—is in the midst of an experiment more thrilling than any other experiment recorded in history.

Today with our millions upon millions of stockholder-employees and millions more of other high-priced workers in what was once the poor, neglected realm of so-called "labor," this country is experimenting with not merely a spiritual and moral equality which you great business interests have so magnanimously offered, but, what is even more startling, it is right in the very midst of an economic equality that has never been equalled even in the days of the Caesars when "to be a Roman was greater than to be a king."

Money is everywhere. More money than America has ever known before. And more widespread. And deeper down. This present prosperity has penetrated and permeated stratum after stratum of American Society until today that great mass of millions once casually known as "labor" now control the destinies of every factory in the land. For labor itself must use a greater and greater part of what every factory makes if the whir of production is to be kept at concert pitch.

Will it be able to do this? Will it "learn the ways of the gentry," as they say in Ireland? Can the same woman who once leaned over a washtub learn to lean over a tea table?

To us here in True Story Magazine, where we get the perfect reflection of this entire new cultural development, there is no more question about it than there is about the nature of man—or of woman.

The world of science, of course, has always known that such changes could be made. The anthropologist, dealing with races, calls it the "capacity for variability." But here in our Editorial Office we see the same thing in a homely way; we see the leaven of this new culture working day by day, just as the good housewife of twenty years ago could put her bread in a warm place and watch it "raise."

For once more—and perhaps many times more—let us repeat that True Story Magazine is not a magazine for which any handful of owners or authors is responsible. Its authorship rests with the tens of thousands of unknown human beings who send the grist of their souls to its mills. And its very continuance rests upon millions of other unknown human beings who must find the response to their own experiences between its covers

By way of confession, let us say that no one could have known what the outcome would be when we started this magazine. Thousands of personal documents of individual experiences had been coming in to us for years as the by-product of another magazine which had nothing to do with personal experiences.

There was nothing new about this. The effort at personal expression is fundamental in us all. Thousands of you hard-headed business executives are constantly injecting into your most business-like correspondence some comment of personal experience about your baby or your dog or your recent hunting trip, without even realizing that you are responding to one of the deepest fundamentals in human nature.

So there was nothing new to experience about this mass of human documents that came flowing in to us. The only thing new was the sudden conviction one day that any great outpouring of human experience such as we were receiving, had a right to see the light. So without any editing of manuscripts or debating of policies, we put them into print, bound them in covers and called it a magazine.

And even then, when the response of the reader was electric and the authorship multiplied by thousands of manuscripts over night,—even then, no one could have realized that we had probably opened the way to the first folk-literature since the days of the Bible—a literature written by the people themselves and responded to by the people, with the entire responsibility vested in reader and writer and none of it in editor or owner.

You people who know your history of literature will understand this better. You will recall that the one great fundamental difference between Greek and Hebraic literature was the matter of authorship. In Greece, an author wrote a book or a play and his readers or audience passed judgment upon it. In Palestine, a folk-story without authorship became current among a people, was told and re-told and added to century after century, until such tales became the folk-literature of a race. And out of this, our present Bible grew.

It is probable that no such great expression in folk-literature has ever been created from that day until this when the present owners of True Story Magazine took these human documents and put them into print.

Gradually as the deep significance of this great thing that was transpiring was borne in upon us, we realized that we were like a man at some strange sociological telescope watching the cultural development of a race. And gradually, we realized, too, that all we could do was look on; that we could no more change the character of this personal expression than the astronomer at the telescope could change the procession of the stars.

Only the change in human experiences could do that. Only the rising leaven of culture could change their character. And finally, only the present great economic equality could change their outlook.

You manufacturers and executives and men in high places may look with eagerness at the business possibilities of True Story Magazine but question its social outcome. But we, looking into this sociological telescope, can tell you beyond any question of doubt that the culture of this entire social mass will be raised to a level with yours.

Furthermore, we can tell you that you—and not we—are responsible for the underlying motive of every story that finds its way into these Editorial Offices. For you, and not we, have created this great social equality, have made this great American discovery of the value of money and leisure for labor and are entirely responsible even for the very settings of every story that comes to our desk.

For the responsibility, after all, is with you for this widespread economic wealth and leisure whereby a nation of workers can actually enjoy the innumerable things that they once merely dreamed of and are now quite naturally expressing this enjoyment in the writing and reading of thousands of personal human documents that find their way between the covers of True Story Magazine.

It is a new world, gentlemen, and it might be well to get ready for it.

DECLARES DRY RAID AT RIPON 'INVASION'

CITES RECENT REFERENDUM

L. A. Lamoreux Asserts Federal Agents Defied People at Republican Party Jubilee Event.

Special to The New York Times.

ASHLAND, Wis., June 10.—A resolution to be introduced this week by Assemblyman L. A. Lamoreux of Ashland County condemns the "invasion" Saturday by Federal prohibition agents of the Ripon celebration of the Republican party's diamond jubilee.

The resolution, made public here today, also requests the Federal Government to refrain hereafter from enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment in Wisconsin "in consideration of the wishes of the people expressed at the polls." The text of the resolution follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That, whereas on the 6th day of June, 1929, at the city of Ripon in the County of Fond du Lac and State of Wisconsin, there was held the diamond jubilee of the birth of the Republican party; and wheeras, on March 20, 1854, the Republican party was organized and born at Ripon, dedicated to freedom and to the proposition that all men are created equal, and upholding the civil rights of the citizens of this great nation and State; and whereas the State of Wisconsin on April 3, 1929 went on record as overwhelmingly favoring the repeal of the State prohibition law, commonly known as the Severson act; and whereas subsequent thereto the Legislature of the State repealed said State prohibition act, which act was duly signed by the Governor of the State on May 29, 1929;

"And, whereas, at said Republican celebration at Ripon, Federal officers flaunted defiance in the faces of free-born citizens of the State of Wisconsin by appearing in a body at Ripon and entering places where the Republican celebration was taking place, by raiding said places while the parade in celebration of the birth of the Republican party was in progress and while speakers were propounding the ideals of the Republican party as to its being the champion of freedom and free speech; and whereas the citizens and electors of Wisconsin are greatly humiliated by the fact that the officers of the Federal Government swooped upon them in a body at the time they were celebrating the birthday of the Republican party, because Wisconsin at the last Presidential election gave its thirteen electoral votes to the Republican President of the United States and because of the fact that at the present time the United States Senate and the United States House of Representatives is overwhelmingly Republican, and the leaders of the Republican party were participating in the celebration of the birth of the party, together with the victory of the Republican party at the polls in November of 1928;

"Be it resolved, that the Federal Government be requested to desist from enforcing the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution in Wisconsin hereafter in consideration of the wishes of the people expressed at the polls on April 3 last, and the almost unbroken line of support given by the State of Wisconsin to the Republican party; and be it further resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the presiding officers of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives at Washington and to each of the United States Senators and Representatives from Wisconsin."

DRY CHIEFS ORDER DRIVE IN DETROIT

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., June 10.—Immediate mobilization of the greatest armed force ever assembled here to combat the flow of liquor across the Detroit river from Canada was agreed upon today at a meeting of prohibition enforcement chiefs.

Admitting that the 100 miles of border between Lake Erie and Lake Huron is the "sore spot" of the country, Seymour Lowman, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, said that 85 per cent of the liquor coming in from Canada enters through the Detroit area.

Coincident with the conference in Detroit, it was learned in Washington that the administration is seriously considering sending Marines to this section, provided the extraordinary measures now under way prove inadequate.

The program outlined here includes an immediate increase in prohibition, customs and coast guard units, the acquisition of more automobiles and speed boats for prohibition and customs units and more cutters for the coast guard; and a system for coordinating the three units under the direction of E. R. Dorwood.

Mr. Lowman said he had ordered to the Detroit area every available customs officer who could leave his assignment.

"There probably will be several hundred additional men available within the next two days," he declared.

Before the conference opened the following statement was issued by Mr. Lowman:

"We are here on the smuggling problem. The Canadians are pushing us pretty hard these days, but I do not think Chiefs will get out of hand. Liquor from Canada was less in 1928 than in 1927. The history for 1929 has yet to be written. We are after the criminals now and, under the Jones law, they can be properly dealt with when convicted.

"The main Canadian smuggling is now centred in Detroit and through St. Pierre and Miquelon."

Those attending the conference were, besides Mr. Lowman, Dr. James M. Doran, national prohibition commissioner; Bernard Wait, chief of special customs agents; Thomas E. Stone, Michigan prohibition Administrator; Thomas H. Brennan, who is Mr. Stone's assistant; Commander Rasmussen, Walter S. Petty, assistant collector of customs of this district, and Mr. Norwood.

have become frightened and today were observed leaving for their homes.

White was still on the government payroll tonight, the customs headquarters at Duluth announcing it would take no action in his case until after an investigation. At the inquest conducted by Coroner Cantwell, the inspector, formerly a cavalryman in the United States Army at Fort Riley, Kan., gave lengthy testimony, which, in several particulars, was contradicted by his superiors and by Mrs. Virkula.

White testified that on Saturday night he and another inspector, Emil Servine, were parked in a car along the wooded highway three miles south of Little Fork when a sedan approached. Both officers, he said, got out of the car, Servine with a sign bearing the legend "Stop! U. S. Officers," and White with a riot gun.

"Servine was about ten feet closer to the approaching car than I," the witness said. "I heard him yell for it to stop, but it continued past him and I had to jump out of the road to avoid being hit. As it rolled along, I fired into the ground and then fired two more shots at the wheels, hoping to flatten the tires.

"The car continued for twenty-five or thirty feet and rolled into the ditch. I heard a scream, came to the car on the run and asked if anyone was hurt.

"The driver was slumped over the wheel and the woman beside him said: 'You've killed him.' There were two children rubbing their eyes in the back seat. We rushed the driver to a hospital in International Falls and the lady there said he was dead."

Bullets Passed Over Children.

Mrs. Virkula, in testimony conflicting with White's story, said the border guard was in no danger of being run over as the car went by. Servine's estimate of the car's speed was from eight to ten miles an hour.

"We left International Falls for home about 9 o'clock," Mrs. Virkula testified. "About a mile from where he was shot my husband stopped to light a cigaret, and drove slowly after that.

"A light flashed in the road and we saw some sort of sign. He began to slow up, and then I heard shouts. I called to Henry not to run in the ditch. I didn't know he'd been hit, but he was dead when these men ran up a minute later. My two children in the back seat began to cry."

Coroner Cantwell, who conducted the autopsy, read into the record a report showing that three bullets had struck Virkula. The bullets that shattered the rear window of the automobile and tore the upholstering, he said, passed over the two children, who lay sleeping on the rear cushion. Examination of the back of the car revealed between twenty-six and thirty bullet holes, all more than a foot above the wheels.

Two additional investigations of the killings were begun, one by the customs authorities at Duluth and the other under the direction of Henry A. Roberts, special agent of the Treasury Department at St. Paul.

L. L. Drill, Federal Attorney at St. Paul, has been asked by David Huribert, County Prosecutor, to participate in the investigation. Mr. Drill requested a transcript of the proceedings and said he would examine it before making a decision.

At a special meeting of the International Falls City Council, Alderman Frank Lange planned to introduce a resolution asking Congressional action "so that the farmers can visit their next door neighbors without being held up on the road and forced to look into the muzzle of a gun."

QUESTIONS CITIZENSHIP OF YALE PROFESSOR

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 10 (AP). Professor Douglass C. Macintosh, Dwight Professor of Theology at Yale Divinity School, was placed on the questionable list among applicants for citizenship today by John R. Davis, Federal Preliminary Examiner, when he indicated reluctance to subscribe to the clause in the oath of allegiance promising to support and defend the laws and the Constitution of the United States against all enemies.

Professor Macintosh's preliminary application was filed in March. He has declined to comment saying he would reserve this until after he has been examined by a Federal judge on June 24, when a citizenship court will be held.

He is a native of Canada and received his bachelor's degree from McMaster's University and his doctor's from the University of Chicago. In 1909 he joined the Yale divinity faculty. Yale, in 1916, gave him an honorary degree of Master of Arts.

ASSOCIATION WANTS BROADWAY TONED UP

ELEVATED REMOVAL URGED

Inspection Party Reports Paving and Sidewalks Need Cleaning and Praises Park Conditions.

At the last meeting of the season of the Broadway Association at the Hotel McAlpin, the inspection committee, appointed by Dr. John A. Harriss, president of the association, made recommendations for refurbishing and improving the thoroughfare. W. R. Arnheim, chairman of the City Planning Committee, offered a resolution approving the proposed removal of the Sixth Avenue Elevated. It was adopted.

Barkers outside theatres, theatre "queues," activities of sandwichmen, radio horns and other noisemaking devices for "pulling in" purchasers, abuse of regulations for illuminated signs, and hawking at improper hours were disapproved. The city was asked to rescind the ordinance permitting displays of fruits, vegetables and other merchandise on upper Broadway. It was charged that newspaper vending privileges are misused, especially in violation of regulations prescribing the size of stands at subway entrances and other places where the sidewalks are narrow.

Among the suggestions for relieving traffic and facilitating street movement, the committee recommended the following:

The width of the western sidewalk of Union Square Park should be reduced to provide another northbound motor traffic lane.

Additional traffic lanes and safety zones should be furnished at Columbus Circle, and guard rails erected at the entrance to Central Park at that point to protect persons on foot.

The one-way regulations of West End Avenue should be abolished when the work of widening the avenue is finished.

Fifth Avenue coaches should be forbidden to make left-hand turns at Astor Place.

The time of crosstown light at Broadway and La Salle Street should be changed to give freer north and south traffic.

Right of way through safety zones should be permitted in upper Broadway when the side streets are not occupied.

The Borough President shoud be urged to help remove building material stored in Broadway at various places, and local retail stores should be prohibited from parking hand delivery wagons in the street in front of their premises.

Street intersections where surface cars pass should be repaved at various points, and repairs which are to be reported to the Borough President's office should be made.

In the matter of cleanliness the committee found that refuse and parcel post receptacles are in need of repainting, and on a recent tour of inspection sidewalks at various places were found in need of sweeping.

"The general appearance of the roadways between City Hall Park and Thirty-fourth Street was anything but inviting," the committee declared. "In the downtown district the street appeared to be in need of cleaning. The Department of Street Cleaning should be requested to keep Broadway in this district in a better sanitary condition.

"Several overloaded dirt carts were observed, leaving a trail of refuse in their wake. The Police Department should again be requested to enforce the ordinance which forbids overloading."

The committee made several recommendations concerning parks, which, it was declared, were generally in good condition. It recommended the re-landscaping of Battery Park and the dedication of the historic cannon from the thirteen original States which has already been planned.

2 CUSTOMS MEN HELD IN BUFFALO RUM CASE

C. F. Dreher, Ex-Chief Immigration Inspector, Among 6 Arrested in Liquor Smuggling.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—The Buffalo Evening News says today that developments in international liquor smuggling, resulting in twenty-one indictments and involving United States and Canadian customs and immigration officials, as well as railroad men and bootleggers of both countries, have been "long known by those on the inside here and at Washington."

Six of the twenty-one men indicted have been arrested by Federal authorities. Those arrested and released in bail, the paper says, are:

Laurence Roehm of Buffalo, former customs inspector, who resigned during investigation.

George Lezang of Niagara Falls, John F. Callaghan of Buffalo, former chief billing clerk at Black Rock station of the Grand Trunk Railroad; Thomas E. Gannon, chief clerk in the same office and Edgerton B. Ryerson, yardmaster at Fort Erie, Ont., for the Canadian National Railway.

Ignoring a petition signed by the jury recommending leniency for the five men convicted in the Illinois alcohol diversion case, Federal Judge Simon L. Adler today imposed maximum prison sentences to three of the individual defendants besides a peak fine of $10,000 on the defendant company.

Charles R. Berney and G. Chester Illig, both of Buffalo, were sentenced to the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta, for two years. Because of his youth, Carl S. Maundrell of Kenmore, Erie County, was sent to the United States Industrial Reform School at Chillicothe, Ohio, where he will serve a similar term. Morris Bloom, manager of the Buffalo Denaturing Plant of the Illinois Alcohol Company of Belvidere, Ill., received a sentence of nine months in the Erie County Penitentiary and Louis A. Brown of Buffalo was fined $1,000.

The defendants, through their attorneys, immediately filed notice of appeal and were released on bail pending arguments before the higher court.

He Declares Staten Island Docks, Now Little Used, Are Adequate for 1,400-Foot Ships.

Charges that bribery and intimidation have been used in attempts to cause defections of leaders in the Hylan-for-Mayor movement were made yesterday in an exchange of messages between former Mayor Hylan and George Julian Houtain, city chairman of the Better City Government League, which was organized to support Mr. Hylan's candidacy. The messages were made public at the offices of the league at 11 West Forty-second Street.

Mr. Hylan in a telegram to Mr. Houtain declared that prominent members of the league had been approached in the last few days and that promises had been made to them if they would desert him and make a public statement. He added that, since Mr. Houtain had made public the league's list of Assembly District leaders, he undoubtedly would find attempts would be made to induce them to resign.

"I, too, was improperly approached," Mr. Houtain wrote in reply. "When it was discovered that such efforts were useless, the tactics were changed to threats and intimidations. 'Give a calf enough rope and it will hang itself.' The lawn punishing blackmail and intimidation are still in effect.

"I released the names and addresses of our leaders to convince the public that we are in earnest, that we intend to elect you the next Mayor. It is my intention to have a man captain and a woman captain and five men and five women Hylan representatives in each election district unit. This will mobilize an army of approximately 41,000 leaders and workers dedicated to achieving victory for you over graft, vice and corruption next November.

Establishment of a city department of commerce and industry was urged by Mr. Hylan in an evening radio address broadcast from station WGBS. Mr. Hylan declared that establishment of this department would eliminate red tape, settle industrial disputes, standardize conditions in industry, eliminate unfair and uneconomic practices, bring about appropriations for public works during periods of industrial depressions and work with similar agencies in the State and Federal governments.

Mr. Hylan also urged a revision of the methods of letting city contracts.

Mr. Hylan assailed the recent proposal of the Walker administration to build new piers on the west side of Manhattan between Twenty-third and Twenty-ninth Streets to accommodate large ocean steamships. He said that the worst of the matter was that the city authorities, by backing such a proposal, showed shocking ignorance of the docking facilities already owned by the city and seemed to have forgotten the Staten Island piers constructed during his administration and now virtually unused.

"These piers are ready for use," he said. "They are large enough to dock ships 1,400 feet in length, if such monsters are ever built."

THESE CHARTS show the daily circulation figures of the four St. Louis newspapers according to the latest available official tabulations.

FOR YEARS the Globe-Democrat has been St. Louis' largest daily... And, in its steady growth, it has not only widened the gap between its own position and that of St. Louis' second paper, The Post-Dispatch, but also it has built up a circulation larger than that of any other daily newspaper west of Chicago.

From 1921 through 1928, The Globe-Democrat's daily circulation has increased 50%.

...And the greatest part of this gain has been right in the city, where The Globe-Democrat's daily circulation has increased 78%.

According to the latest available official figures, The Globe-Democrat's daily circulation in Metropolitan St. Louis ALONE is 26% greater than the total circulation of The Star and more than twice the total circulation of The Times.

The Globe-Democrat's growth has not been a matter of just the last year or so. It has been sound and consistent.

The Globe-Democrat does not have to suffer losses in order to show its gains

HOOVER REASSURES YOUNG PLAN CRITICS

SENATORS' VIEWS DIVIDED

Edge Says Paris Accord Assures Payments but Howell Scents Move for Cancelation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Confronted with doubts in Congress as to the exact meaning of the Young plan for the revision of German reparations and what it means to the United States, the Hoover Administration moved today to dispel doubts when high government officials asserted that there had been no change in the American policy of viewing the allied debts to the United States and German reparation as entirely unrelated subjects.

This interpretation was given in the light of studies which have been made in the State and Treasury Departments of the text of the report of the international committee of experts.

The studies are yet to be completed, but the care taken at the outset by officials to outline the situation in respect to the debts was indicative of their concern over the objections which have thus far been voiced.

Senators Demand Sanction.

The plan of the Allies to reduce their demands on Germany for reparations in proportion as their debts might be reduced by the United States, it was pointed out at the State Department, was merely a memorandum signed by the allied and German experts which was appended to the report of the experts' committee but which was not incorporated in that report.

The memorandum, it was emphasized, was not signed by the American experts and was in itself purely conditional, so that it represented no commitment. In the case of the Dawes plan, the approval of Congress was not necessary for American acceptance, but in the Young plan it is probable that some reductions have been made in the American claims, on account of arrears for costs of the army of occupation in Germany, and it is held by many Senators and Representatives that any arrangement which called for a reduction in moneys due to the United States would require Congressional sanction through a resolution of ratification.

Views Divided on Debts.

Administration officials declined to discuss that phase of the problem today, saying that no details had been reported here as to the procedure for placing the Young plan into effect. Should an international conference of the interested governments be held to accept the report, as was the case with the Dawes plan, it is assumed that Ambassador Dawes would act for the United States, but no steps have yet been taken here in regard to that question.

That the administration has reason for concern over the reaction of Congress to the Young plan, should the view gain currency that by implication it joins the debts with reparations, has been evident for some time from informal comments among Senators.

Several have argued privately that the new schedule of annuities is so shaped that after thirty-six and one-half years of payments Germany will be obligated to the Allies only to the extent of their debts to the United States for the remaining time the plan runs. Views on this point, however, are sharply divided on Capitol Hill, while many Senators and Representatives are open-minded on the whole situation. One view held by a number of Senators was represented in comment today by Senator Fess of Ohio.

Sees Payments Assured.

He wanted to be sure that "skilled European statesmen" have not "put anything over," particularly as regards the allied governments depending upon German sources for payment of their debts to the United States, lest the Young plan lead to renewed efforts at debt cancellation.

On the other hand, Senator Edge of New Jersey voiced the views of another group of Senators when he said:

"My reaction to the reparation agreement is the additional assurance it furnishes that the war debts to the United States will ultimately be paid. In other words, a fixed and definite agreement between the Allies and Germany doubles the insurance of the United States. The relatively insignificant reduction we have allowed on our minor reparation claim is a small matter in comparison to the deductions made by the other creditors.

"In my judgment Mr. Young and his associates have successfully performed a herculean task, and I can see no reason why the United States should not be delighted with the situation. The suggestion that with the settlement would come renewed demands for debt cancellation is aside from the question. Any move in that direction is entirely in the keeping of the United States Government."

Insurgents Dissatisfied.

Senator Howell of Nebraska described it as just another move in international attempts at cancellation of debts, and argued that by it the United States would receive from $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 less on account of its claims against Germany than under the Dawes plan.

Administration officials did not support this estimate of reduced payments, holding if any reductions have ben made they would be found to be small.

Recently President Hoover, Secretaries Stimson and Mellon, and majority and minority leaders of the House and Senate, at a White House conference agreed that the United States should be willing to accept a reduction in its claims along with the other creditors. This word was communicated to Owen D. Young, but, it was pointed out today, only as an expression of opinion and not as a government commitment.

There is no indication, however, that the American Government will refuse to accept a slight reduction.

The view of the State Department, as authoritatively set forth today, is that in the experts' report there is no linking of German reparations and inter-Allied debts. German payments remain, as always, reparations.

Payment Up to Allies.

Among these charges are the so-called outpayments, or payments on inter-Allied debts. These debts are charges on the national exchequer, which must be met, but whether France, for example, pays to Great Britain and to the United States out of moneys collected in taxes or out of moneys received from Germany is a mere matter of internal bookkeeping with which neither Great Britain nor the United States has any concern. So also, if the Allies agree among themselves, and with Germany, to diminish German payments as and if their own outpayments are diminished, it must be remembered that this is just as much their own concern as is the matter of internal bookkeeping.

The United States, in making her various debt settlements, according to this view, gave up in advance a large part of what was owed to this country. The report of the experts in no instance suggests revision of these settlements, any more than it suggests revision of British settlements with France and other nations. If, in order to persuade Germany to accept a definitive settlement of her reparations obligations, it was argued, the Allies felt themselves in a position to promise Germany that she might benefit along with them in any possible future diminution of their outpayments it is nothing to which the United States can object.

As for the International Bank of Settlements, it was reiterated today that the United States would not participate in it officially.

MORGAN HAILS BANK AS WORLD BALANCE

He Says Debt Experts Found It the One Thing Able to Solve World War Problems.

FINANCIERS ACCLAIM PLAN

Hailing the Bank of International Settlements as conceived by the Reparations Committee as the greatest instrument for the promotion of world peace that the experts had been able to devise, J. P. Morgan authorized the following statement yesterday:

"It is the one thing which the conference was able to discover which would solve the problems of international settlements arising out of the war."

Mr. Morgan declined to discuss the organization meeting of the bank committee, which may be held in July, or the scope that would be outlined for the institution at the outset, saying that his colleagues on the experts' committee would have to make that announcement when they returned to America.

Bankers in Wall Street yesterday were highly enthusiastic as to the ability of the bank to act as a balance wheel in the reparations settlements, and the hope was expressed that the United States would be able to take a leading part in the actual organization of the bank. It was the consensus that the bank could succeed without American aid, but that in such an event the handicap would be very great.

Paul M. Warburg, chairman of the International Acceptance Bank, crystallized the sentiment of the banking community by saying that he believed that the substitution of financial minds for a political body would be the wisest course.

"I think the injection of the Bank for International Settlements was a most ingenious and happy idea, not only because through its medium it has become possible to substitute a group of the best business minds as judges for a political body, but also because in the field of economics and finance the bank is likely to play the part of a balance wheel. It is likely to act as a stabilizer not only between Germany and her creditors but also between other countries."

Bankers were particularly interested in the prospect of possible public participation in the stock as well as in the bonds which the bank would offer to investors.

Bernard M. Baruch, banker, who was a member of President Wilson's mission to the Paris peace conference in 1919, said yesterday that the signing of the reparations agreement "brings out pointedly that the Versailles treaty had more good in it than its enemies were willing to admit."

Major Gen. James G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, said:

"Owen D. Young has won the greatest victory and the hardest fight that has occurred in Europe since Marshal Foch signed the armistice in November, 1918."

TO CONFER ON REICH BONDS.

Financiers Will Fix Details of Issue Here, Banker Says.

A prominent banker said yesterday that the German reparations bonds to be issued in the United States and in other markets through the International Bank for Settlements would in effect be bonds of the German railroads, guaranteed by the German Government.

Under the new plan, reparations bonds are to be issued against the unconditional payments which the Reich will make. These total 660,000,000 marks (about $158,400,000) annually for thirty-seven years, and they will be derived from a tax against the German railways. This tax will be imposed by German law and the receipts will be guaranteed by the German Government. The railways will deposit with the International Bank for Settlements a certificate acknowledging liability in respect to this obligation.

The banker disclosed that a conference of financial leaders would be held in New York to determine the interest which the bonds would pay and the prices at which they would be sold and to arrange for their marketing. He declined to say who would participate, but he remarked that "it would not be a town meeting."

He said that the actual marketing of the bonds would entail long preparation and that the bankers who would float the issue would be doing well if they sold it before the year was out.

Bond dealers seemed to agree that pending financing by foreign interests would be further delayed by the coming reparations offering.

"A bond dealer will not offer a foreign bond issue to his customers knowing that the price of his offering may later be affected by a large influx of more foreign bonds," said a partner in one large investment house. "Hence, he will wait until the reparations issue is out of the way and the markets have adjusted to their absorption."

Most of the buying of the German bonds would be by banks and private investors, according to views in investment house circles. The bonds would not be legal for savings banks or for trust fund investment, except under special authorization, and their purchase by insurance companies would be limited in many States.

One investment house official, who expects the bonds will be issued bearing the guarantees of the allied governments, thought advantages would accrue from such guarantees.

"The first issue, which is expected to total about $400,000,000, of which rather more than $100,000,000 would probably be marketed here, would probably bear the joint guarantee of all the allied governments," he said. "However, the new reparations plan provides that future issues might be made at the behest of individual governments among the Allies. Such later issues might be guaranteed by the governments at whose behest the issue was made."

KELLOGG SEES ACCORD AS BIG AID TO TRADE

Young Plan Will Better Feeling Toward America, He Says—Reich Envoy Gratified.

CHICAGO, June 10 (AP).—Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State in the Coolidge Cabinet, foresees a business boom for America as a result of settlement of the German reparations problem.

"The entire world, and this country in particular, will profit through the signing of the pact," said the former Secretary, who is en route East.

Another result of the settlement, he said, would be a better feeling toward America and Americans in many foreign countries.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—Count Friederich Wilhelm von Prittwitz und Gaffron, German Ambassador to the United States, today expressed the joy of his country at the settlement of the reparations question.

In an interview given before he addressed the graduating class of Syracuse University, Dr. Prittwitz Gaffron said the happy thing was that an agreement had been reached.

"We, the laymen, can only rejoice that the agreement has been reached," he said. "We can only do everything in our power to see that the terms are carried out. I think that is the only reaction experienced everywhere."

PIRMASENS, Germany, June 10 (AP).—The Minister of Justice, Teodore von Guerard, the first member of the German Cabinet to make an official pronouncement on the Young reparations plan, today told the Palatinate Regional party convention of the Centrist group that the plan meant the final liquidation of the war and the foundation of new economic security.

Herr von Guerard insisted, however, that the plan should be followed by evacuation of the Rhineland, saying:

"For Germany the greatest importance of the Paris agreement lies in the fact that the total figure of payments is at last fixed and the annual payments reduced. The plan means the liquidation of the World War debt and without doubt re-establishes German sovereignty from the financial viewpoint. All German parties, however, are united in feeling that German sovereignty over the Rhineland must also be re-established and the Saar and the Rhine freed."

MEXICAN RAIL DAMAGE.

Sloan of Southern Pacific Says Service Will Be Hit for Months.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 10.—Damage to Mexican railways in the Escobar revolt was so great that it will be months before service is restored to normal, according to Henry Sloan, who is in the capital in behalf of the Southern Pacific Railroad of Mexico.

More than 200 Southern Pacific bridges were destroyed, according to Mr. Sloan, and the road's loss will amount to at least $2,000,000.

Although complete data regarding losses on all lines have not yet been compiled, it is semi-officially estimated that the damage will be not less than $12,000,000. The commission designatd by the management of the National Railways of Mexico is now checking the losses of rolling stock and stations. It is concerned at present with freight losses.

WED ON GRADUATION DAY.

George Barna, Hobart, Marries Alice Carpenter of William Smith.

GENEVA, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—George Barna, intercollegiate football star, and Miss Alice Carpenter were married here today a few hours after each had graduated from Hobart and William Smith colleges, respectively. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. B. Hubbs, Hobart chaplain, and was a surprise to friends of the couple.

Mr. Barna, a resident of Clifton, N. J., was captain of Hobart's 1928 varsity football team and mentioned as all-American end. His bride is a resident of Buffalo.

Here's Joy for Breakfast ... and Health Beside!

Waiting for you, for breakfast! A bowl of crispy, crunchy Heinz Rice Flakes. You sprinkle on a little sugar. Pour on a little cream . . . and start in! Oh—that flavor! Like butter-browned nut-meats. Isn't that the way to start the day right?

And to keep the day right, too! For Heinz Rice Flakes, if you eat them regularly, will keep you "regular". Due to a patented, Heinz process which transforms the natural roughage of the rice into a pure cellulose and thus gives Heinz Rice Flakes the healthful properties of a gentle, natural laxative.

It's great to really enjoy breakfast. And my, but it's fun to be healthy!

MAYOR SEEKS TRUCE ON RIVERSIDE PLAN

HERRICK IN HEATED CLASH

Accused of Opposing Advisers on Improvements, He Denies It and Says He Welcomes Counsel.

Mayor Walker called yesterday to reconcile the differences of opinion between members of the Mayor's West Side Improvement Architects Committee on the best plan for developing Riverside Park between Seventy-second and 125th Streets, including the locating of the playground spaces and the routing of the extension of the express highway. He directed that a conference be held tomorrow morning at 11:30 in the office of Borough President Julius Miller in the Municipal Building.

The conference will be attended by the Borough President of Manhattan, the five members of the Mayor's special committee, Arthur S. Tuttle and Herman H. Smith, consulting and chief engineers, respectively, of the Board of Estimate, and a representative of Day & Zimmermann, Inc., traffic engineers.

Three members of the Mayor's special committee, Park Commissioner Herrick, Albert V. Stelke and Herman F. Meriel, consulting experts, signed the majority report, which advised that the extension of the express highway be built as a roof over the sunken tracks of the New York Central Railroad.

In the minority report the two other experts, Charles N. Lowrie and Joseph H. Freedlander, urged that the highway follow the Hudson shore line.

At the opening of yesterday's debate, which at times became acrimonious, Commissioner Herrick reported to the Board of Estimate Committee of the Whole that members of the special committee had met again, as the Mayor suggested, but had found compromise on the location of the highway extension impossible.

George Fred Keane, the playground committee spoke for the minority report. Under the majority plan the highway would bisect the park, he said, and make it "a mere splinter of green" between two roaring thoroughfares with their din and unpleasant odors of gasoline.

Monroe Hewlett of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects also preferred the minority report. He urged further efforts to get together, as the matter was of such importance that the Board of Estimate should not constitute itself an arbiter between three eminent authorities on the one side and two, equally qualified, on the other.

Mayor Walker reminded him that the Park Commissioner's plan, which is virtually that embodied in the majority report, had been before the public nearly a year and the minority report about two weeks. This, he added, was the third public hearing on the subject and he thought there had been ample opportunity for study and comment.

President Brinkerhoff of the Society of Landscape Architects, supporting the minority report, declared:

"I am of the opinion that Commissioner Herrick from the start was opposed to having experts on the special committee."

Commissioner Herrick rose angrily and said: "That statement is unqualifiedly false. I was always glad to confer with the other members of the committee and to have their advice."

"If Commissioner Herrick had really opposed the idea of having these experts on the committee," interpolated Mayor Walker, "so great is the administration's confidence in the Park Commissioner that the experts probably never would have been appointed. However, in a matter of such grave importance the city is not disposed to act hastily, if there is any prospect of getting unanimity of sentiment."

Mr. Lowrie and Mr. Freedlander, signers of the minority report, disputed the assertion that a compromise was hopeless. Their statement that it might still be possible to reconcile the committee's differences prompted the Mayor to call tomorrow's conference.

Residents of the Riverside section, led by Mrs. John Clapperton Kerr, head of the Women's League for the Protection of Riverside Park, stood staunchly for the majority report.

Grant Statue to Be Designed By Manship for Monument

Paul Manship, sculptor, was commissioned yesterday to design a bronze equestrian statue of General Grant as a part of the monument to the Civil War leaders which is to be completed at the tomb on Riverside Drive. The trustees of the Grant Monument Association, at a special meeting yesterday, also voted to award a contract for architect's services to John Russell Pope.

Mr. Manship sailed last week for Europe, where he will study equestrian statues to prepare for his work. A few days ago he studied statues of a similar nature in Washington.

W. John Logan, treasurer of the association, said that about $300,000 was needed to complete the fund.

MARINE OFFICERS TO BE DECORATED

CITED FOR THEIR HEROISM

Gen. Williams Deplores Cemetery Vandalism and Does Not Believe Marines Were Perpetrators.

By Tropical Radio to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, June 10.—A special ceremony will take place on the Laloma parade field tomorrow and Brig. Gen. Dion Williams, commander of the Second Brigade, United States Marine Corps, will pin the naval Distinguished Service Medal on Major Henry L. Lason of Chicago and Denver, who is stationed at Managua as Brigade Inspector.

Major Lason won the medal for exceptionally meritorious service while serving with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War.

General Williams also will award the Navy Cross to Captain Maurice G. Holmes of Pontotoc, Miss., who is serving as a Major in the Nicaraguan National Guard in charge of the Intelligence Service in Managua.

Captain Holmes is being decorated for having distinguished himself by a display of extraordinary bravery, coolness and leadership on Dec. 6, 1928, while in command of the small force of marines which repelled an attack by a well-armed force of Nicaraguan bandits in the Department of Nueva Segovia.

As a result of the manner in which General Williams handled the accusation made against marines by the local press in connection with the destruction of tombstones in San Pedro cemetery, A public opinion seems to be returning to a normal state and the antagonism against the marines seems to be vanishing.

It is expected that every effort will be made to find and punish the guilty parties. The investigation board has not as yet found any evidence indicating that marines were the perpetrators of the outrage.

General Williams issued a statement today addressed to citizens of Nicaragua in which he declared he was loath to believe that marines had been the vandals. He said he wished to express the indignation of "myself and the marines in my command which has been aroused by the outrages."

"In all countries," he continued, "reverence for the dead and respect for the monuments which mark the last resting places are accepted as evidences of culture and civilization.

"In Nicaragua and the United States alike such reverence is common in all classes.

"In accordance with the laws and regulation which govern my official acts, I have ordered a board of officers to make a thorough and complete investigation of the recent outrages.

"To show our indignation and as an expression of sympathy from the United States Marines for the families and friends of the dead whose graves were violated, the United States Marines stationed in Managua, accompanied by the American Minister, will proceed on Tuesday morning to the cemetery of San Pedro to place flowers on the graves, in accordance with the custom of our country."

Minister Hanna, in addressing a meeting of the Second Corps last night, complimented the marines on the honorable way they were conducting themselves in Nicaragua and he showed the necessity of avoiding friction with the natives over the cemetery incident. He felt that no marine could have been connected with the depredations.

$100 to $20, and formed the Parkbane Corporation, a security affiliate, and increased the bank's capital from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The latter was accomplished through the declaration of a stock dividend of 20 per cent and the sale of new stock.

The growth of the National Park Bank has been rapid since the presidency was assumed by Charles S. McCain. It was reported yesterday that Mr. McCain might be chosen president of the combined institution, with Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase, remaining in that post. The Chase, from its new building at Nassau and Pine Streets, operates twenty-one branches in New York City and branches in Havana, Cuba; Cristobal, in the Canal Zone, and Nassau, N. P. Since its acquisition of the American Express Company it also operates a world-wide banking organization. The National Park Bank, from its main office at 214 Broadway, operates four branches in New York City.

As exact comparison of the relative sizes of the Chase-Park Bank combination and the Guaranty Trust Company is impossible at this time for the reason that the Guaranty-National Bank of Commerce merger was effected after the last bank call.

Although at the time the Guaranty-National Bank of Commerce consolidation announcement, early in March, was hailed as a $2,000,000,000 merger, when the actual statements of the two institutions were announced separately on March 27, the total was considerably under this figure.

The Chase-Park Bank merger would make the tenth major consolidation this year, the most recent of which was the Equitable Trust Company-Seaboard National Bank merger of $800,000,000 total resources, which will become formally effective about July 1. The other mergers, named in the order of relative size, were: National City Bank and the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company; the Guaranty Trust Company and the National Bank of Commerce, the Chase National Bank and the American Express Company; the Bank of America, Blair & Co. and Nassau National Bank Combination; Manufacturers Trust Company and the State Bank, the Central Union Trust Company and the Hanover National Bank, the Bank of United States and the Colonial and Municipal banks; the Chemical National Bank and the United States Mortgage and Trust Company.

In addition, the name of the Chase has also been linked with the Irving Trust Company and with the Bank of America, a merger with either of which would place the Chase in the position of being the largest bank in the country.

THINK WHAT THESE FOUR FAMOUS NAMES MEAN—and you have a real guide to modern TRUCK values

These names are known wherever men discuss automotive subjects. And, what is more, they are favorably known. Such substantial, world-wide fame is not accidental; is not a product of words, but of work.

These names are not just attached to General Motors Trucks. They are General Motors Trucks. They are a form of investment surety, for buyers and users of these trucks, which cannot elsewhere be duplicated.

ROOSEVELT SCORES EXPANSION TREND

BLAMES APATHY OF PEOPLE

GENEVA, N. Y., June 10 (AP).—The trend toward generalization and consolidation and its effect on the educational and political fields were discussed today by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt in his Phi Beta Kappa address to the graduates of Hobart College at its 104th commencement today.

Governor Roosevelt cited the rise in popularity of the larger universities and the tendency to eliminate the smaller educational institutions, and continued:

"In like manner the present era of economic business and consolidation in industry and the rush of human beings to vast cities have come soon after the tremendous rise of the university system. In other words, the trend toward generalization and consolidation in the educational field has extended in a great degree to the attitude of the individual toward government.

"It is, perhaps, as a result of this educational orgy of mere bigness that we have today the marked unwillingness of citizens to give serious and continued thought to the fundamentals of political affairs. The general interest in public affairs has been falling off for at least a generation."

Lack of Interest in Government.

Governor Roosevelt emphasized a statement that the average voter will only go to the polls when there is unusual interest or a picturesque candidate to appeal to his sentiment or judgment.

Questioning the advisability of further enlargement of already huge universities, he went on:

"So, too, in the world of government. This address is by no means a plea for the return to the State rights theory of fifty or seventy-five years ago. It is intended, however, to call attention to the political trend toward centralization. It is perhaps inaccurate to call it a trend toward centralization. It would be more accurate to describe it as a gradual upbuilding of power in the Federal Government because of the lack of interest on the part of the individual in local government.

"In other words, we are drifting into Federal centralization, not because we are in favor of it, but because it is the inevitable result of our own failure to conduct our local governing function."

Honorary Degrees Conferred.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters was conferred by President Murray Bartlett upon Governor Roosevelt for his services as a "devoted churchman, patron of education, promoter of human welfare and unselfish public servant."

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was awarded to John Clarence Flood, educator of Southboro, Mass.; Samuel Nelson Sawyer, retired justice of the Appellate Division, Palmyra, N. Y., and John William Ellis, sociologist, of Trenton, N. J.

The Rev. Milton Augustus Barber of Raleigh, N. C., received the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology.

Twelve Bachelor of Arts degrees and twenty-four Bachelor of Science degrees were awarded to students of Hobart College and at the same time twenty-four Bachelor of Arts and sixteen Bachelor of Science degrees were awarded at the eighteenth annual commencement of William Smith College, Hobart's coordinate institution for women.

DECLARES KING ALFRED FATHER OF BRITAIN

British Ambassador Tells North Carolians He Was Grandfather of America.

Special to The New York Times.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., June 10.—The University of North Carolina conferred 512 degrees on graduates today who received their diplomas from Governor Gardner.

The baccalaureate address was delivered by the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, said to be the first citizen of another country to give a commencement address here.

Two former Governors, Cameron Morrison and Angus McLean, four Lieutenant Governors, R. T. Fountain, the present incumbent, and T. D. Winstown, R. A. Doughton and Elmer Long; Representative Charles A. Jonas and numerous State legislators were included in an audience of more than 2,000 that taxed Memorial Hall.

The Ambassador said he had a special message that he wanted to bring to the oldest State university in America and that it would be a departure from the conventional type of commencement address. He thought it appropriate to tell his audience about "the greatest man Britain ever produced."

His reference was to Alfred the Great, the only English King to whom the appellation of "great" had ever been applied.

King Alfred, who ruled in the ninth century, had changed the whole course of world civilization, the Ambassador declared.

Sir Esme termed King Alfred the "father of Great Britain and grandfather of America; father of the English language and of English institutions all over the world."

LEHIGH WILL CONFER 267 DEGREES TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 10.—Lehigh University will grant 246 bachelor's degrees to one of the largest graduating classes in its history at the sixty-first commencement tomorrow. Masters' degrees will be awarded to eighteen graduate students and the university will confer three honorary degrees.

The exercises will be held at 11 A. M. in the Packer Memorial Church. The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York City, will deliver the commencement address. Thirty-nine seniors will also receive commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps.

Class Day exercises were held today on the campus. After a concert by the university band, Leonard C. Crewe Jr. of Haverford delivered the salutatory, Thomas M. Brennan of Rockville Center, N. Y., the prophecy and John I. Kirkpatrick of Woodhaven, N. Y., the tablet oration.

SYRACUSE HONORS GERMANY'S ENVOY

BOTH TALK ON WORLD PEACE

Establishment of Course in Aerial Photography Is Announced at Commencement.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 10.—Syracuse University, at its commencement today, conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Count Friederich Wilhelm von Prittwitz und Gaffron, German Ambassador to the United States, and on Alanson B. Houghton, former Ambassador to Great Britain and prior to that Ambassador to Germany.

Eight other honorary degrees were also conferred and 1,025 degrees and diplomas to students of the various schools of the university.

Ambassador von Prittwitz and Mr. Houghton gave the principal addresses at the exercises, both speaking on the subject of world peace and international law.

The aims of diplomacy in this day of wireless and aviation, the German Ambassador said, were to "cause people to look upon frontiers as bridges and not as barriers."

"The outstanding feature in the field of international law," since the close of the World War, he stated, "was the decision of the majority of the nations to sign the Kellogg pact."

He declared that further development of international law and the development in all countries of an "international mind" were the two essential parts in the gradual establishment of international citizenship and that the cornerstone of such citizenship was the condemnation of arbitrary violence.

Mr. Houghton in his speech asserted that power to declare war should rest, not with governments or congresses, but with the people themselves.

"The great peoples today," he said, "are self-governing. Each of them has set up a machinery of government which gives it effective control of its domestic affairs.

"Theoretically, no doubt, each of them controls its relations with other peoples. Practically, by leaving the power to declare war in the hands of their respective governments, each loses all control at the moment most vital to its as a people and as individuals."

The establishment at the university of a department of aerial photography, aided by a grant of $30,000 from the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the promotion of aeronautics, was announced at the exercises.

The first university in the United States to offer a course in photogrammetry, Syracuse will, beginning in September, incorporate the study of aerial mapping into the College of Applied Science, making it a required course in civil engineering with advanced subjects for those specializing in the work. The college will work with the Syracuse Municipal Airport for the necessary flying in connection with the mapping of this section of the State, and will have the cooperation of the United States and Canadian Governments in the research work.

Besides Ambassador von Prittwitz and Mr. Houghton, those receiving honorary degrees at the hands of Chancellor Flint were:

VASSAR HOLDS CLASS DAY.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 10.—Vassar's historic pageant, the carrying of the daisy chain by twenty-four of the prettiest sophomores, was conducted here today as the feature of the college on class day.

The girls who carried the chain were May Lee Hutchins, Elizabeth Callaway, Marianne Stevenson, Elizabeth Frey, Olivia Walker, Margaret Newhall, Gordon Kelly, Bayliss Brewster, Judith Keely, Allison Reynolds, Gertrude Opie, Emily Frelinghuysen, Anne Breckinridge, Mary Lewis, Elizabeth Collins, Elizabeth Case, Elizabeth Curry, Helen Mitchell, Charlotte Maurice, Eleanor Goodrich, Fannie Humphreys, Charlotte Noyes, Helen Ball and Blanche Hooker.

Vassar also held today its second open forum for parents and faculty members. The discussion covered the new curriculum as designed to meet the needs of individual students, the place of extra-curricular activities, the new development in physical training, the growth of the religious life of the students and the relation of the college to American trends outside.

Governor Larson of New Jersey, '07, Addresses Graduating Class.

The graduates of Cooper Union were urged to devote their engineering training to the organization of public service in a speech by Governor Morgan F. Larson of New Jersey at the commencement exercises last night. Degrees, diplomas and certificates were presented to 276 students, and to 208 of these and under class men also went awards for meritorious work in the school's various departments.

Governor Larson told the graduates that "the laws of the future will be concerned with how to get the best work out of the people." He added: "Too many trained persons neglect to use the powers of organization and industry inherent in engineers."

The Governor, who was graduated from Cooper Union in 1907, told his audience that he would not make a "conventional speech" on success, adding that advice should be used but should not be a law of action. "It may," he continued, "have suited the man who started under different conditions. But after studying it use your own judgment. You will have to set your course yourself."

BOOK FIRM GETS SMITH LIFE STORY

UNUSUAL DATA PROMISED

Publisher Says Volume Will Surprise Even Writer's Close Friends —Novel Contract Used.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith signed a contract with the Viking Press yesterday for the publication of his autobiography. The volume is to be issued in October under the title "Up to Now." It will contain data that will probably surprise even his close friends, Harold Guinzburg, president of the Viking Press, said yesterday.

The book is two-thirds completed, it was said. Some chapters will appear serially in The Saturday Evening Post, beginning in July. Mr. Smith has been working on the autobiography since April.

The contract was signed in Mr. Smith's office at 331 Madison Avenue by the former Governor and Mr. Guinzburg. How much the author will realize from the volume could not be learned. His contract, however, reverses the usual rule, it was explained. The first 25,000 copies will bring the maximum royalties to Mr. Smith and then the royalties will be scaled down. The usual contract calls for an ascending scale of royalties.

The new contract is more advantageous to the author than to the publisher, it was said, since the publisher will have to depend upon a large circulation for a proportionate income. The explanation of the new type of contract is that there was a great demand among publishers for the autobiography, it was said.

The book is to be illustrated and will contain much data about old New York. The serial version of the autobiography will not deal with the last Presidential campaign, it was said yesterday.

Mr. Smith is said to work on the book about two hours a day, dictating from 5,000 to 8,000 words at a sitting. After the dictation has been transcribed Mrs. Henry Moscowitz revises the manuscript for technical details and typographical errors, after which the former Governor makes the final revision.

The title for the volume was selected at a conference just before the signing of the contract. Mr. Guinzburg, who is also president of The Literary Guild, said he did not know whether the volume would be offered to any of the book clubs.

SOCIALISTS CONSIDER HILLQUIT FOR MAYOR

Waldman, Laidler and Lee Are Also Possibilities for Fall Campaign.

Morris Hillquit is being considered for the Socialist nomination for Mayor, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Socialist party. Mr. Hillquit, as the nominee for Mayor in 1917, when women were not voting, received 145,000 votes and ran only a few thousand behind the late Mayor John Purroy Mitchel, who was defeated by John F. Hylan.

Louis Waldman, Socialist candidate for Governor last year; Dr. Harry Laidler, secretary of the League for Industrial Democracy, and Algernon Lee, educational director of the Rand School, also were said to be under consideration. Norman Thomas, candidate for President last year, also has been mentioned, it was said, but doubt was expressed that he would be available.

Marx Lewis, secretary of the Socialist action committee, said the Socialists expected that the stimulation of the victory of the British Labor party in the parliamentary elections would enable the Socialists here to better their vote of 1917, when they elected ten Assemblymen, seven Aldermen, a State Senator and a Municipal Court Justice.

"We are confident that sooner or later," Mr. Lewis said, "American liberals and laborites will follow the example of British labor, cut themselves loose from the two old parties, which differ in nothing except name, and establish a party of progress and peace in the United States."

Mr. Lewis added that it was expected that prominent members of the British Labor party would assist the Socialist campaign here by speeches in September and October.

LEADVILLE OFFICERS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Federal Judge in Denver Condemns the City's Open Violation of Dry Law.

DENVER, June 10 (AP).—Declaring that Leadville, Col., tried to prove itself bigger than the Federal Government in failing to abide by the prohibition laws, United States District Judge J. Foster Symes today sentenced six residents of that city to the penitentiary.

"No man can snap his fingers at the United States with impunity," he said, "and if any other liquor law violator comes into this court from Leadville he will get the limit."

William H. Corbitt, City Councilman, was sentenced to two years in the Leavenworth Penitentiary and fined $1,000.

John Yanmich, night police captain, got one year.

William Rittmeyer, former Deputy United States Marshal; Swan Lindholm, George Burkhardt and Joe Katini, proprietors of drinking establishments, dance halls or amusement places in the mining town, drew two-year terms and $1,000 fines.

It was brought out in the trial that Leadville had been a "wide open town" until Federal agents conducted raids last Winter. Protection money paid by resort keepers went into the city treasury to pay for the paving of Harrison Avenue, the main street.

COURT HELD ON SIDEWALK.

Magistrate Corrigan temporarily transferred his court to the sidewalk in front of the Homicide Court Building in Mott Street yesterday to take evidence at the arraignment of Joseph O'Connor, 27 years old, a former truck driver, of 48 Goshen Avenue, Yonkers, in connection with the deaths of two men killed last December, when his truck ran into a pole at Broadway and 189th Street.

O'Connor, discharged from a hospital an hour before, where he had been a patient for six months from injuries received in the accident, was unable to ascend the stairs to the court. He held himself erect on crutches while he formally entered not guilty pleas to being responsible for the deaths of William Hutchinson, 30 years old, of 80 Linden Street, Yonkers, and Louis Dazenstein, 48, of St. Andrews Place, Yonkers, who had been on the truck with him. O'Connor said that the accident happened when he had swerved the vehicle to avoid being run into by another motor truck. He was freed in $1,000 bail for a hearing on Sept. 5.

Asks for House Action on Swanson's Remark of 'Gag Rule' for Farm Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A debate in the House today marked by a speech of Representative Denison, Republican, of Illinois, protesting against the remark made by Senator Swanson in the Senate last week that the House had adopted the farm relief bill by resort to a "gag" rule may lead to the introduction of a resolution setting forth that the Senate had affronted the "dignity" of the House.

Mr. Denison made a parliamentary inquiry as to what the House could do about the Senate criticisms of the manner in which the House had passed the farm bill.

Speaker Longworth informed him that the House could adopt a resolution to fit the case. Such a resolution, the Speaker said, could "respectfully" call the Senate's attention to the remarks which, in the opinion of the House, was an "infringement of the rule prohibiting one legislative body from referring to the actions of the other."

Mr. Denison said it is probable that a member of the House will offer such a resolution. He cited the rule forbidding one body of Congress from criticising an action by the other body and explained that it was formulated to prevent ill feeling between the two branches.

Mr. Garner, Democratic floor leader, asked whether Mr. Denison did not think he was "intensifying the situation" by referring to something that had happened in the other body, to which the Illinois member replied:

"I think all members ought to see to it that this fundamental rule is enforced. If this part of the debate is called to the attention of the other body, I am sure that in a spirit of fairness, in chivalry, it will correct it."

HESITATE ON FRENCH DEBTS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 10.—The French Socialist party remains undecided as to what attitude to take on the ratification of the Washington and London debt accords, Leon Blum, leader of the party, admitted before its convention at Nancy today.

Blum said that the Socialists might decide to vote against ratification, but that if it made such a decision it would be because the plan for the liquidation of the debts and reparations questions had been found not to be one which would contribute to permanent peace.

If it decided to vote for the treaty it would have to be understood that there must be no further delay in the evacuation of the Rhineland. If the party decided to vote against the treaty the stand must not be interpreted to mean that the Socialists considered Germany was paying too little.

Blum strongly attacked the United States as "Uncle Shylock," but he added that France had to thank for the uncompromising attitude of America her own policy, adopted at the Washington disarmament conference.

"It is to the France of the Ruhr and to the France with a great war budget to which the United States refuses to make further concessions," he said. "It is from France's refusal to land disarmament that Washington took its policy on debts."

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. Why has Southern Buying Power TREBLED during The Past Decade?

SALESMANAGERS, watching the South only through the medium of sales, have been startled at the increases of recent years. Checking up they have found that during the past decade Southern buying power doubled—and then trebled.

What are the underlying causes that have created this rapid rise of the South as a market? What do they mean to the producers of America's goods?

The South used to be farm country, cotton country. When cotton was up, things were good. When cotton was down, things were bad. And cotton was down so often that Southern people rarely had a surplus.

Then industry discovered the section. Found tremendous economy in Anglo-Saxon labor, low taxes, plentiful and cheap raw material, low-cost power and other basic factors. Set up small experimental plants, from which huge industrial developments have grown.

Rural people went into the factory, and became skilled workers at regular wages. Southern living advantages enabled them to work for less than their Eastern and mid-Western brothers—have more left over from every pay-envelope, to spend for the things you make.

Agriculture diversified. Cotton was no longer the sole support of the farmer. Other crops, profitable crops, began to show on the annual totals. That is the situation today—and the South has just begun.

Your sales records may not show growth in proportion to the South's growth. If this is so, do not dismiss it with the easy explanation: "Oh, the South doesn't appreciate our kind of goods." Look at your competitors. Find out how their volume has grown in the South. And particularly, those competitors with branches in Atlanta which serve this territory as it must be served under modern conditions.

Then let the Atlanta Industrial Bureau make you a complete and impartial survey of conditions here as they affect your business. Let the Bureau tell you how a branch at this strategic point will enable you to get full volume out of the South under modern, hand-to-mouth buying conditions.

This data will come to you entirely without charge or obligation, and in the strictest confidence, if you wil write

Bride of Son of U. S. Senator From Connecticut in Chapel of St. Bartholomew's.

REV. DR. BROWN OFFICIATES

—Other Marriages.

Miss Kathleen Wattson Howell, eldest daughter of Mrs. Irwin White Howell of 178 East Seventieth Street and the late Mr. Howell, was married to Charles Tiffany Bingham, fourth son of United States Senator from Connecticut and Mrs. Hiram Bingham of New Haven and Washington, D. C., yesterday afternoon in the Byzantine chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church. The Rev. Dr. Charles Reynolds Brown, dean emeritus of Yale University, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few close friends. Cybotium ferns and white Spring flowers decorated the chapel and clusters of the blossoms were fastened to the ends of alternate pews along the main aisle.

The bride, who entered the chapel alone, was given in marriage by her mother. Her gown of cream colored satin was made with a full circular train from the waist line, edged with old Brussels point lace. Some of the same lace trimmed the bodice, which was finished with a V neck, and long mitten sleeves. Her veil of old family Brussels point lace was arranged in cap fashion and held in place with small sprays of orange blossoms on each side of the head. She carried a bouquet of white sweet peas, gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Bride's Sister Maid of Honor.

Miss Agnes A. Howell, who was maid of honor for her sister, wore a costume of apple green chiffon combined with brown tulle and a brown horsehair picture hat. The bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Irwin Howell, also a sister; Cora Legg Millicent F. Belknap, Constance Dane, Camille Miller, Jennie Arnold, Joan N. H. Brown, Helen Smith, Elizabeth A. Bliss and Edith Hewitt Jaffray, whose marriage to W. Warner Hopkin Jr. is to take place on Saturday in Scarsdale. Their frocks were of peach colored chiffon and brown tulle. They wore picture hats to correspond. All the attendants carried bouquets of delphinium, African daisies, larkspur, snapdragons and columbine.

Following the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. John Wyckoff Mettler, 840 Park Avenue.

Mr. Bingham and his bride, after a motor trip, will live in New York. She is a granddaughter of the late John R. Howell. Mr. Bingham is a descendant of three Colonial Governors.

Miss Elizabeth Beck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Beck of Lexington, Ky., was married in Webster Kent Newcomb of Kingston, Ont., on Saturday at the summer home of the bride's parents, Sevens Springs, Littleton, N. H.

The Rev. S. F. Fletcher of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Littleton performed the ceremony in the living room, where an altar covered with old Spanish brocade had been erected against a background of deep red velvet. The floral decorations consisted of madonna lilies on the altar, with a large jar of pink gladiolus and blue larkspur, and two tall cedars at either side. The wedding was a small one, almost all those present being relatives. Miss Arlie Furman, violinist, of New York City, accompanied by Miss Janet Sheldon of Rockford, Ill., played wedding music.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a princess gown of ivory satin and a veil of tulle and old lace, with a coronet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. Her sole attendant was her sister, Miss Suzannah Beck, who wore cherry colored chiffon and carried shaded snapdragons.

BASHWITZ WILL IS FILED

Eleven relatives, three friends and her adopted daughter share in an estate of more than $1,000,000 under the will of Mrs. Gertrude E. Hogan, entered yesterday for probate. Mrs. Hogan, who died on May 30 at her home, the Mayfair House, Sixty-fifth Street and Park Avenue, was the widow of Charles W. Hogan, member of the firm of Timothy Hogan & Sons, stevedores.

The largest specific bequest in the will is $100,000 cash and a life interest in $100,000 to Camilla Hogan of Greenwich, Conn., whom the testatrix adopted in 1918 when she was 4 years old. The adoption was made by agreement with the child's father, Pietro Buscaito of New London.

Mrs. Dorothy H. De Remer, a daughter, also of Greenwich, gets a life income from the residue and personal effects. Mrs. De Remer is the wife of Jay Grant De Remer, an engineer connected with the Savage Arms Corporation.

The will provides life annuities calling for a total annual payment of $12,250 to seven other relatives. Three other relatives and three friends share cash legacies amounting to $14,000.

Bashwitz Estate to Relatives.

The will of Solomon Bashwitz, retired clothier, who was found dead of a bullet wound a week ago in his apartment in the Hotel Olcott, 27 West Seventy-second Street, was filed yesterday in Surrogates' Court. Lawyers for the estate were unable to estimate the value of his property, most of which is divided among his widow and three sisters.

The widow, Henrietta Bashwitz, gets a life income from the residue until her death or remarriage. In either event, $100,000 and half of the principal then passes to a daughter, Mrs. Lillian B. Shiers, 345 West Eighty-sixth Street, and the balance to another daughter, Mrs. Hattie B. Finkelstein. Preference was shown for Mrs. Shiers, a codicil to the will explained, because "she is not as financially well off as my daughter, Hattie, and for no other reason."

All of the sisters live in Berlin, Germany. One of them, Rose Sanger, gets a life interest in $25,000; another, Theresa Rochelson, gets $25,000 outright, and the third, Emma Hirsch, a life interest in $10,000.

Mr. Bashwitz bequeathed $5,000 to the Park Avenue Temple in memory of himself.

Police are still investigating the circumstances surrounding his death, and although Commissioner Whalen and Medical Examiner Norris viewed the case as a suicide members of the family believe Mr. Bashwitz met with foul play. The testator was a member of the firm of Bashwitz Brothers, 41 East Eleventh Street, which he and his brother, Julius Bashwitz, founded.

Mrs. Smith Left $400,000.

Mrs. Edith Seckwith Smith, widow of Charles H. Smith, banker, divided most of her $400,000 estate among two children and four grandchildren, it was learned yesterday when her will was offered for probate. The children, Mrs. Gertrude B. Fisher, 161 East Seventy-ninth Street, and Karl B. Smith, Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., receive equal shares in their mother's personal effects, real estate at Quogue, L. I., and in a trust fund to be created from the residue. They get the income equally during their lives, after which the principal passes to their children.

The grandchildren, each of whom gets the income of $25,000 until the age of 25, when they inherit the principal, are Karl B. Smith Jr. and Edith C. Smith, both of Ardsley-on-Hudson, and Charles H. and Irving R. Fisher, both of the Seventy-ninth Street address.

Six other relatives get small bequests and Mount Berry School at Mount Berry, Ga., receives $2,000.

Mrs. Smith died June 1 at her home, 875 Park Avenue.

Felix M. Warburg, who is a vice president of the Palestine Economic Corporation, will speak on his observations on a recent trip to that country at a meeting tonight at the Hotel Astor, it was announced yesterday. Other speakers will be Dr. Cyrus Adler, Julius Simon, Emanuel Mohl, general manager of the Palestine Mortgage and Credit Bank, and Harry Viteles, manager of the Central Bank of Cooperative Institutions.

NEW RADIO CHAIN PLANS 60 STATIONS

HAS 45 CONTRACTS IN WEST

Nation-Wide Network, Headed by Seattle Banker, Expected to Be Completed in a Year.

A broadcasting chain of sixty stations, extending from coast to coast, is the aim of the American Broadcasting Company of Seattle, Wash., according to a representative of the company, who was in New York yesterday. The concern plans to add New York and Washington (D. C.) stations to the chain by Oct. 1, and have the complete network of sixty in operation within a year. The chain, Eastern offices of which are at 551 Fifth Avenue, is being planned to cover the entire country. The latest addition to the network was made on June 1 in Chicago, when WIBO and four other stations were added to the organization with the presentation of a nine-hour broadcast, much of which came from KJR, Seattle, the Western key broadcaster. Adolph F. Linden, a Seattle banker, is president of the organization.

It was revealed yesterday that forty-five stations in the West had contracted to give the American Broadcasting Company at least part of their time on the air daily, increasing gradually to full time as the other activities of the stations permit. The other stations added to the chain on June 1, besides WIBO, were WRHM, Minneapolis; WIL, St. Louis; KFAB, Lincoln, Neb., and KTNT of Muscatine, Iowa.

The company's representative declined to reveal the identity of the New York and Washington stations to be in the final network, but added that reports as to their identity had been incorrect so far.

PLANES HIGH IN AIR RUN RADIO CHAIN

WABC DEPOSED AS "KEY"

Seymour of National Air Transport and Glover, Postal Official, Talk —"Ham" Called From Sky.

Two radio announcers in two radio-equipped airplanes flying high over New York last night introduced speakers in Washington, D. C., and Philadelphia and an orchestra playing in this city and also served as a system controlling "points" for a coast-to-coast chain of broadcasters. The local station, temporarily deposed as controlling point, or "key," of the chain was WABC. The broadcast began at 11 o'clock, Eastern Daylight Saving Time, and continued for a half hour. It was said to be the first time in broadcasting history that a chain of stations had been served by two airplanes in flight together, giving to each other as desired complete control of a program being sent out by a radio system on the ground.

The radio audience, listening to the proceedings, heard one announcer in the sky introduce an orchestra in the Paramount Hotel, followed a little later by the introduction of Captain Lester D. Seymour, general manager of the National Air Transport, who was awaiting his presentation before the microphone of WCAU in Philadelphia. Captain Seymour spoke about the air mail fliers and the necessity of radio equipment to this service. The next introduction from the air was for Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, who was waiting beside a microphone in the WMAL studio in Washington. Mr. Glover said that next after the airplane "come that most important operating feature, radio aid."

Calls Roll From Plane.

Louis A. Witten, an announcer in the air, then called the roll to identify the various points of broadcast, which answered in their turn. The conversation was as nonchalant at times as an ordinary telephone call. All points in the pick-up were said to have been listening in continually and to have heard the entire program. In the calling of the roll the points heard from were as follows: Paramount Orchestra; an announcer at the WABC studio, Steinway Building, in Fifty-seventh Street; Mr. Glover in Washington; Herbert A. Glover of the Columbia system, who was serving as alternate announcer in the other plane, and Captain Seymour in Philadelphia. The broadcast ended when the two announcers in the air wished each other good night and a resume of the test was given by an announcer at the WABC studio.

The radio apparatus used, which consisted of special fifty-watt transmitters and short-wave receivers, together with short-wave receivers located at Long Island City to serve as the radio link between the planes and WABC's network, were furnished and operated for the test by the Radio Engineering Laboratories in Brooklyn. The planes, supplied by the National Air Transport, took off from Hadley Field, N. J. Louis Bookwalter, chief engineer of WABC, superintended the technical preparations.

The studios of WCAU, WMAL and the Paramount Hotel in New York, connected by land wires, had special radio sets installed beside each microphone so the speakers and the orchestra leader could hear at the whole program and begin broadcasting on time.

Radio an Flying Aid.

In his talk, Mr. Seymour declared that much of the progress being made to overcome the handicap of bad weather is to be credited to the science of radio. He said that until recently the aviation pilot had to depend upon advance weather information to carry him to the next station.

"Radio development, continued, "as is being demonstrated tonight, makes it possible to give the pilot information as to weather changes which occur after he leaves his terminal. Radio stations for communicating with the pilot have been installed on the air mail route between New York and Chicago. Receiving sets are being installed as rapidly as possible in the air mail planes of the National Air Transport flying the route."

Assistant Postmaster General Glover declared that the "development of the radio and its aid to air navigation will prove, in the near future, to be the signal system of the air." "Only the other day the transcontinental ship came into Hadley Field from Chicago in two sections carrying 2,189 pounds and that means practically 37,000 letters, as the department figures forty letters to the pound," he said. "During the first year of operation we carried for the entire year 37,521 pounds of mail, which is now just one day's business."

RADIO TO LINK 14 CITIES.

R. C. A. Communications to Extend System as New Waves Are Granted.

Domestic wavelengths just granted by the Federal Radio Commission to R. C. A. Communications, Inc., will enable the company to establish a domestic radio communications network connecting about fourteen cities, according to an announcement made yesterday by General J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America and of the communications company.

"We hope to extend the system to the full list of cities contemplated in our applications as fast as wavelengths become available," he said, "and we confidently expect to demonstrate a technical capacity for carrying on an efficient domestic radio service."

German Choir to Come Here.

A choir from Kassach, Germany, called the Luther Kurrende, is to make a tour of this country next season, according to information received by the German Tourist Information Office of this city. Similar in its aims to the Dayton (Ohio) Westminster Choir, which is just completing a tour of Europe, the organization carries on the traditions of the ancient kurrends, originally composed of wandering singers of religious songs.

To Appear in "The Patriarch."

Frank McGlynn and Gisela Lefing will appear in the principal roles of "The Patriarch," which will soon inaugurate a Summer stock season at the Wharf Theatre, Provincetown, under the auspices of Joseph M. Shea. The play, by Boyd Smith, is announced to open here Sept. 16.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

Blue Blood and Trials.

KITTY, with Estelle Brody, John Stuart, Dorothy Cumming, Marie Ault, Warwick Ward, Olaf Hytten, Charles O'Shaughnessy, Wilfred Noy and others. A Warwick Deeping novel by Warwick Deeping, directed by Victor Saville. "Asses Fable," called "Wood Chopping." At the Gaiety Theatre.

Having had the first talking film, the first singing film, the first audible screen operetta and the first prismatic feature, how comes another "first," which is concerned with a part-talking British production at the Gaiety. It is the pictorial version of Warwick Deeping's novel, "Kitty," a subject that is weak on drama but strong on scenery. The acting of most of the players is quite commendable, but that and the views are not enough in a picture that runs for an hour and a half.

The talking bits are uneven. For a few moments the voices are splendid and then suddenly there is an effect as if one of the characters were talking through a barrel, using it as a megaphone. The direction is somewhat simple and the various episodes betray little if any originality. The audible element of this offering was produced at the R. C. A. studios in this city. So neither praise nor blame for the sound angle goes to the tight little isle. Not much is to be said in favor of the dialogue or the manner in which the characters speak their lines. It is another case of lengthy periods of hesitation, which end in the young man or the girl blurting out a bromidic phrase, not expressed feelingly but uttered as though it were being recited. Apparently all that counted was to have the words understood.

Victor Saville produced "Kitty" in London, Henley-on-Thames, and New York City.

The story as it comes to the screen is unconvincing. There is a young flying officer named Alec St. George, who has a mother who is a slave to class—a snob of the snobs, the sort of woman who would be proud of never having done a stroke of work in her life. Sighing, smiling feebly and boasting of the jawbones of the St. Georges is virtually her life. She loves her son, in a way. He, poor fellow, marries the comely Kitty Greenwood, who is in trade! Oh, it's so shocking to think of it that Mrs. St. George, one suspects, is more relieved than pained when her boy returns from Flanders with both legs paralyzed. The wicked blue-blooded mother keeps her son from his wife, and sees to it that Alec does not receive any of Kitty's letters.

There is introduced as a nurse a sort of beefy Uriah Heep, who annoys his patient by his squeaking shoes. One hears the squeak, for, although the nurse walked in Britain, the sound of his shoes was made over here.

Kitty has every one against her for most of the picture, but in the last quarter she outwits Mrs. St. George and kidnaps her husband. Fortune favors her in all she does from then on, and there is a long scene with grunts, in which, through the influence of mind over matter, Alec is able to walk.

Mrs. St. George, knowing nothing of what has happened, calls to see Kitty and her husband, at Kitty's request. This elderly woman shrinks from Kitty's touch and then even denounces the girl for putting her fingers on her (Mrs. St. George's) sleeve. A second later, when confronted with the sight of her son standing on his legs, Mrs. St. George for the first time becomes human.

Estelle Brody has an agreeable manner of acting the part of Kitty. John Stuart gives a splendid silent performance, but when he talks he does not appear to think of what he's saying. Dorothy Cumming officiates as the soft-natured Mrs. St. George, and Olaf Hytten is Leaper, the stout Uriah Heep.

A NEW SORT OF COMEDY.

The Picture, "His Late Excellency," Lacking in Laughs.

The tempo of "His Late Excellency," an alleged comedy, at the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse, is not exactly a furious one. In fact, it is a simple matter for the spectator to step into the lobby at almost any moment during the course of the film, smoke a cigarette and return without having missed anything.

Not a single snigger was elicited from the audience during a showing yesterday. The director of the film seems to have the peculiar notion that by flashing a view of two persons smiling at each other over some pleasantry he will cause the audience to burst into laughter.

The mythical Kingdom of Leuchtenstein in the film is the seat of scandal, and when its Prime Minister dies, his consort, a baroness, in order to save herself from being dispossessed of her many holdings acquired during her husband's administration, professes to have his memoirs and threatens to publish them. The supposedly comic situations arise when those who imagine themselves mentioned in the manuscript attempt to secure her favor in the hope of gaining possession of the manuscript.

This brings slapstick into a photoplay already consisting of a mixture of drama, light comedy, farce and melodrama. Olga Chekova, as the baroness who holds the threat of exposure over the heads of the public officials, is comely but decidedly unsuited to light roles. Willy Fritsch, as the Prince who helps in the prank, grins continually throughout the film.

CHANGES IN "GREAT DAY!"

Vincent Youmans's new musical show, "Great Day!" will require a longer preliminary period out of town than had been anticipated, and will accordingly not come to the Cosmopolitan Theatre until July 1 instead of next week. The show, which is at present playing in Philadelphia, will go to Atlantic City and Long Branch before coming here. In the meantime there will be changes in both book and cast.

THE GOLDMAN BAND GREETED BY 20,000

200 CHILDREN SING CHORUS

A New March, "Young America," by Conductor, Is Heard for the First Time.

A vast crowd estimated at nearly 20,000 persons gathered last night in the Mall in Central Park and gave an enthusiastic greeting to Edwin Franko Goldman and his band of sixty musicians, who opened their twelfth season of the free concerts given each year by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Guggenheim and Mr. and Mrs. Murry Guggenheim "for the benefit and enjoyment of the people of New York." Though the concert was scheduled to begin at 8:45 o'clock, a quarter of an hour later than in former seasons, most of the seats before the great band stand, a gift to the city by the late Elkan Naumburg, were filled shortly after 8 o'clock, and thousands of standees began to assemble on the adjacent drives and pathways to listen to the opening concert of the organization which supplies most of the free Summer musical entertainment for New York's music lovers.

Mr. Goldman was received with prolonged applause as he stepped to the conductor's desk. The front benches were reserved for members of the family of the donors and other invited guests, who included many persons prominent in the civic and musical life of the city. Though the air was chilly, the crowd steadily grew as the program progressed, few persons relinquishing the prized seats until the last note of the final number had ceased.

Two hundred school children from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum occupied the open space in front of the grandstand and sang the chorus of a new march by Mr. Goldman, "Young America," which was played for the first time last night. Several selections by Del Staigers, the cornetist, who has been a popular soloist for many seasons, were other features of the program, which also included familiar items from the repertory of the organization. These were the "Hommage March," from Grieg's "Sigurd Jorsalfar"; the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," a Bourree by J. S. Bach, Turina's "March of the Lead Soldiers," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Flight of the Bumble Bee," Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody, a Fantasia from Wagner's "Die Walkure," Percy Grainger's arrangement of the "Irish Tune from County Derry," and excerpts from Gounod's "Faust."

To these were added several encores, among them Mr. Goldman's "On the Mall," for which there were many calls from the audience; a Brahms waltz, Sousa's "King Cotton" march, and the favorite arrangement of "Fearer, My God, To Thee," for which there were also many requests.

As in former seasons, Mr. Goldman has planned several national programs, French, German, Italian, etc., which will be played during the course of the seventy concerts to be given in Central Park and on the campus of New York University in the next ten weeks. Two new soprano soloists are to appear this year, Patricia O'Connell of the Chicago Civic Opera and Cora Frye. Miss O'Connell is to make her first appearance next Friday night in Central Park, singing the "Habanera" from "Carmen."

There will be no concert this evening, but on Wednesday and Friday nights the band will again play in Central Park and on Thursday and Saturday nights at New York University.

ZIEGFELD TO ABANDON PRODUCING REVUES

Florenz Ziegfeld, in the course of an announcement yesterday concerning his forthcoming production of "Show Girl," declared that he has withdrawn from the field of revue producing. The announcement declares that "Mr. Ziegfeld doesn't intend producing any more revues, as he believes the public doesn't want them any more."

Mr. Ziegfeld's last previous word on the revue subject was an announcement that he would present another "Follies" this Spring. He is the originator of the revue idea.

"Show Girl," it is now announced, will open at the Colonial Theatre in Boston on June 24. It is due at the Ziegfeld Theatre, according to the present plan, during the week of July 1.

MACK SCORES CLOSED SHOP

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, June 10.—Willard Mack, actor, today added his protest to that of Lionel Barrymore on the declaration by the Actors' Equity for a closed shop in talking motion pictures.

"I have been a member of Equity for years, but I have never seen Equity get work for the actor," said Mr. Mack. "I also know that actors who never have received a higher salary than $750 a week on the stage are getting twice that amount in pictures.

"The spoken theatre and the motion picture industry are entirely different institutions. What might be good for one is apt to be very bad for the other. If Equity feels that there is any grievance—and I know of none—it could not expect to succeed by coming into another business with a club in its hand.

"On the stage an actor may work four weeks rehearsing and get nothing for it. In pictures his salary starts when the story is ready for shooting. His rehearsals are paid for.

"If Equity persists in its stand, the answer is obvious. Producers, instead of using the services of stage actors, will develop motion picture talent. The Barrymore affair is nothing for the talkies have been shattered. Motion picture players are generally found entirely capable of coping with the demands of the talkies.

"Therefore, if equity persists it will drive the stage actor out of the movies. It is a fact that the picture with the picture stars does the business in picture theatres."

'NICE WOMEN' FUTILE AND GUILELESS PLAY

John Girard	Warren McCollum
Mary	Helen Joy
Geraldine Girard	Hope Drown
William Wells	Albert Hayes
Martha Girard	Lotta Linthicum
James Girard	George Barbier
Mark Chandler	Robert Warwick
Conners	Edward Broadley
Dorothy Drew	Verree Teasdale

Somewhere in the course of a play entitled "Nice Women," which made its bow last night at the Longacre Theatre, an impassioned character arose to ask pointlessly, "Why do children have to grow up?" As one act followed another in Mr. William A. Grew's latest effort, it was evident that no one at all had matured at anything resembling an adult pace and when the curtain fell finally it was to dismiss a quite insignificant if guileless dramatic effort.

In "Nice Women," a title invested with some shades of sarcasm, Mr. Grew has set about to tell again the story of the middle-class family who would sell the innocent sister off to the highest bidder, and failing roundly and not less humorously, are happily thwarted. A moon-struck girl, unfortunately in love with a man of more hope than means, Elisabeth Girard is prevailed upon by her family to accept the wealthy bachelor who will bring life, polo ponies and other manifestations of wealth to her shameless kin. Their tumultuous appeals, including those of a wise and mundane young sister, move her to forsake her real love for the kindly but simple man who deceives himself that she is in love with him.

This, in lieu of anything better, is act one, close upon whose sound and fury it appears that the Mark Chandler himself is forsaking a previous attachment of some years to claim his share of life's sweeter gifts. But when it is made clear to him that Elisabeth Girard has not only been forced by her family to accept him for his money, but had also given herself to another man, such dire threats are dismissed in hurricane fashion. An open-hearted gentleman is Mr. Chandler, forgiving all, and the rosy glow of the conclusion suggests that every one is either neatly married to the right person or is about to be.

In submitting this more than twice told tale, Mr. Grew is at no pains to exclude any of the familiar pathos and frankly burlesque humor that have adorned it on all previous appearances. The tremolo voice in which is discussed her father's life of faithful devotion to his family is balanced by a recurrent sprinkling of feeble jests as the domestic fight runs hither and thither, and by many deeply intoned platitudes.

Most of the latter were entrusted to Robert Warwick, featured with Sylvia Sidney at the head of the cast. His solemn baritone it was Mr. Warwick's duty to attempt to utter significantly such profundities as, "Every man, no matter what he has been, wants a good woman," and "All the money in the world is not worth a happy home." It was Miss Sidney, however, who managed with sly petulance or humor to edge a not very scintillating rôle with humor and almost some worth. Good character work is done by George Barbier in the rôle of the harrassed father, and by Lotta Linthicum as a more than irritating mother. Other rôles are taken acceptably by Verree Teasdale, Edward Broadley, Hope Drown and Albert Hayes.

CARROLL'S "SKETCH BOOK."

Adopts Name in Place of "Vanities" for His Forthcoming Revue.

The forthcoming Earl Carroll revue, it is announced, will be known as "Earl Carroll's Sketch Book," Mr. Carroll having adopted that name for future annual use instead of his usual "Vanities." The show, which will have Will Mahoney and William Demarest as its principal comedians, will open in Atlantic City on June 24 and will come to the Earl Carroll Theatre early in July. Its sketches have been written by Eddie Cantor.

Marie Sundelius Sings.

Marie Sundelius, soprano, sang the air from Charpentier's "Louise" at the opening concert of the Manhattan Symphony Orchestra in the Bronx Coliseum on Sunday night, under the direction of Henry Hadley. The soprano took the place of Julia Claussen, contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who was unable to appear on account of illness. About 4,500 persons attended the first concert. Germaine Schnitzer, pianist, will be the soloist at the second concert announced for next Sunday evening at the Coliseum.

'ADAM'S APPLE' TRIVIAL

Billy Aldrich	Kenneth Lane
Casper	Richard Thornton
Ringo	Peter Richardson
Uncle John	Charles Kennedy
Maggie	Lorraine Lally
Eve Van Alstyne	Helen Holmes
Adam Van Alstyne	Stanley Price

The Princess Theatre last night yielded up another of those perplexing entertainments which it has provided on so many occasions in recent seasons. This one is a play called "Adam's Apple," and the author, who has been knocking on the Broadway door for quite a while, is named Tom Dalton. One who sat determinedly until the final curtain found it one of the most mystifying of the long series of trivial plays that somehow get produced in this town.

A wee bit of light was shed by the lobby gossip, which had it that a prominent amateur play company was somehow concerned in the production, having presumably brought about a Broadway presentation for the purpose of enhancing the play's standing with amateur companies. One guesses that even the amateurs are likely to rebel at this one, although its plot includes one of the staples of the amateur play: to wit, the mythical relative invented by an erring husband for purposes of domestic deception.

At all events, there it is. Since it is apparently not offered in expectation of a professional life, it may perhaps not rightly be subjected to criticism. It would seem, however, that an audience gathered in good faith was entitled to some advance word regarding the nature of the entertainment, together with a decent chance to escape into the night.

"BY CANDLELIGHT" COMING.

Gertrude Lawrence's Play to Open at the Empire Sept. 30.

The opening attraction at the Empire Theatre in the Fall, it is announced, will be Gertrude Lawrence's play, "By Candlelight," which will mark Miss Lawrence's first American appearance in a non-musical play. It will open at the Empire on Sept. 30, following a two weeks' engagement in Philadelphia.

The play, which Gilbert Miller is producing, was adapted by P. G. Wodehouse from the German of Siegfried Geyer. It has already been produced in London.

CROSS-PURPOSES AT WASHINGTON.

The more the muddle between Congress and the President is stirred up the thicker it becomes. An agreement is no sooner arrived at or a proposal made than it is torn to bits. Mr. HOOVER gave his assent to a plan for an early vote on the farm bill, to be followed by a welcome recess of Congress, provided a day was fixed to vote on the tariff some time in October. But the conference of Democratic Senators seems to have upset that apple-cart. Senator ROBINSON protests that his party has no wish to delay action desired by the President, but must know much more clearly where it is going before it consents to advance a step.

Along with this announcement, curious points of personal dignity and parliamentary honor are raised. Thus it is said that Senator WAGNER, who voted against the debenture clause of the farm bill, is now ready to uphold it, not because he believes in it, but because the House has insulted the Senate by refusing even to discuss the matter, so that a united Senate must strike back at the House, on peril of losing all its glorious prestige if it does not. Then there is the national-origins bill relating to immigration, on which the Senate is temporarily deadlocked. Some of the Republican leaders think that it offers them a splendid chance to swap votes—exchanging a favor to the Nordic for a favor to the farmer. Meanwhile, the prospect of a recess of Congress grows dimmer. Perhaps a burst of hot weather is the only solvent. President TAFT once chucklingly observed that there is a way of inducing Congressmen to adjourn not specified in the Constitution but effective by making the too, too solid flesh of Congressmen melt in the fervent heat of a Washington Summer.

The probabilities are that a way out of the tangle will be found before long. Grown men cannot forever go on acting like naughty children. The plight of the Republican party, however, calls loudly for vigorous and determined leadership. The time seems to have passed for bargaining or juggling with various kinds of "votes" in Congress. A clear and strong word uttered now by the President might do more than anything else to clean up the mess. It is said that if he would only boldly declare his intention to veto the farm bill with the debenture clause attached it would straighten things out. But he has impliedly made that threat already. It could hardly be made more explicit by any words of his. Yet when his supporters in the House and the Senate go around like men in wandering mazes lost, it seems to be the opportunity for him to tell them how to march out, and also to tell them and the country what will happen if they do not give heed.

COMMUNIST DECLINE.

It is not to be supposed that LEON TROTSKY had any particular difficulty in swallowing his pride before appealing to RAMSAY MACDONALD for permission to enter England. This MACDONALD, along with other chiefs of the new Labor Government, bulks large among the "lackeys of capitalism," the chicken-hearted misleaders of Labor, betrayers of the British working class who came in for TROTSKY'S compliments in his "Whither England?" of two years ago. But an exaggerated sensitiveness was never part of the Trotsky temperament, and Communist "realism" teaches, by LENIN'S own example, the propriety of bending to the storm and biding one's time. TROTSKY'S request for liberty of domicile in England involves no surrender of his prayer for the downfall of capitalist England, even as the Soviet Government's efforts to live at peace with the capitalist nations are frankly coupled with the fervent wish for their ultimate destruction.

Nevertheless, the picture of TROTSKY suing for the favor of a British Labor Government has more than personal significance. Outside of Russia the contest between Socialists and Communists has gone decisively against the latter. That world-revolution upon which alone TROTSKY bases his hopes for the success of the Communist experiment in Russia has gone glimmering; and precisely because the Socialist parties have shown themselves implacable enemies of "the" revolution. Today the two great industrial nations to which original Bolshevist expectations were directed, Germany and Great Britain, have Socialist Prime Ministers. But that has been made possible only by the fact that in both nations it has been demonstrated that Socialists will have no truck or trade with the followers of LENIN. In Germany the feud has reached the point where TROTSKY is denied asylum. If the answer should be otherwise in England it will be because MACDONALD entertains no fear of Communists, whether of the domestic or foreign brand.

Outside of Russia the world has been "stabilized" against the Communist assault. In Germany the decision was fought out as early as 1919-20 in the Spartacus uprisings. In Central Europe and the Balkans the threat endured some years longer, but has either melted away, as in Austria and Poland, or been stifled in blood, as in Bulgaria. In France the Communist movement, for all the militancy of a few leaders, has never carried real conviction. In Great Britain the decision did not come about until the General Strike of 1926, though it cannot be said that there was ever much chance of an outcome favorable to communism. Still, there were wild men abroad in the British trade unions and the Independent Labor party, and Russian influence for a while made itself felt. So that TROTSKY had at least a text for preaching the approaching downfall of British capitalism. That text disappeared with the General Strike when British Labor and its leaders showed conclusively that their faces were turned away from Moscow.

ICELAND'S MILLENNIAL.

While the eyes of the West are turned toward Iceland, in the hope that the Swedish fliers may be able to continue in their course, Iceland's entire population of 100,000 is by their visit only for the moment diverted from thoughts of the celebration next year of the thousandth anniversary of the establishment of its parliament. It was in the year 930 A. D. that the "Althing," its legislative assembly, was organized. Though its powers have been subject to change, it has been in continuous existence for these thousand years and has recently come into virtually complete autonomy, subject with Denmark to the same King.

A joint resolution has been introduced in Congress by Representative BURTNESS of North Dakota, authorizing the President of the United States to accept the invitation of the Government of Iceland to participate in the celebration. The resolution provides that a special delegation of five official representatives of the American people shall be sent on this special mission. The preamble recites that the history of this intrepid little people is interwoven with our own through the scholarly influence of its literature and through the contribution to our prosperity and culture of a goodly number of descendants of Iceland in America—40,000 descendants in Canada and the United States, it is estimated. Moreover, the persistence of a legislative body through so many centuries deserves recognition by other peoples that have themselves made successful use of a parliamentary system, and especially by our own country, to which Iceland is a near neighbor, no further away than San Francisco is from New York.

Another reason is offered. It was a native son of Iceland, LEIF ERICSON, son of ERIC the Red, who in the year 1000 "discovered the American mainland." The location of Vinland is not definitely established. And LEIF ERICSON may not, as a recent American poet has put it, "have come rowing up the Charles River "in the sea-battered dragon-ships." But somewhere on the mainland he did doubtless land, and the genealogy of many living is traced back to the child of THORFIN KARLSEFNE, the first white child, so far as known, born on this continent. It is proposed that a "suitable statue" of LEIF ERICSON shall be presented as a gift of the American people to the people of Iceland in connection with the celebration. We should at any rate be represented there as a nation, and if the government does not go so far as to send the statue of LEIF, private funds should provide this monument to him of whose exploit it has been said:

> Not till Leif's sons set foot upon the moon

ECONOMIC EQUALITY.

In the general tumultuous kick against the House tariff bill the feet of the Northwest cooperate with characteristic vigor. The protesting telegram sent to the Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee is said to carry signatures representing 300,000 citizens of Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, the Dakotas and Wisconsin. Apparently the largest number comes from Minnesota. This is natural, as The Minneapolis Tribune suggested the course which organizations of farmers and business men eagerly followed; but there had previously been expressions of disgust from a number of farmers' associations. Every day the Northwest will contribute more material to Mr. HOOVER'S daily reading of press clippings.

Where can the stuff of dissatisfaction, even if stripped to its bones, be stored? The Northwesterners say that they had certain definite promises made them for their votes last Fall. How are those promises being kept? "The sum total of the farm-"er's troubles is the spread between "the cost of that which he buys and "the price of that which he sells." On his building materials, shingles, lumber, bricks, cement, the tariff bill will widen, not narrow, that "spread." He is one of the largest users of shingles and cement. Yet the House would force him to put his hand into his pocket for the benefit of the highly organized cement industry and the lumber people. Call you this backing the farmer?

The Northwesterners name but a few of the penalties which unlimited limited revision purposes to exact from them. They ask that building materials be put on the free list and duties on agricultural products be jacked up. They are guilty, however, of at least one misapprehension. They say they understood that the special session "was called primarily and exclusively to help the "farmer." Unnecessary fear of the farm vote stirred the impressionable mind of Mr. BORAH, so that bucolic distress may be said to be the cause of the present session; but the President's Proclamation called that session because "legislation to effect "further agricultural relief and legislation for limited changes of the "tariff cannot in justice to our farm-"ers, our labor and our manufactur-"ers be postponed."

Industry is entitled to its "whack" as well as agriculture; and surely as good protectionists our Northwestern friends ought not to wish that "prosperity," the synonym of protection, be "limited," even if Mr. HOOVER does. As good protectionists likewise, they are not justified in disapproving relief for the highly organized cement industry. It is official Republican doctrine that agriculture is helped not only by protective duties on competitive farm products, but by the increased purchasing power of workingmen in other protected industries.

Northwesterners seem a little innocent about the ordinary procedure for tariff-making, but they are right in saying that Republican promises have not been kept, if the protection, illusory or not, proposed for farm products is inadequate or if the cement industry can now "compete successfully with foreign producers" without additional soaking of domestic consumers. And how is that larger Republican promise to place agriculture "on a basis of "economic equality with other in-"dustries" to be fulfilled? One recalls, too, Mr. HOOVER'S generous statement that "the object of our "policies is to establish for our farm-"ers an income equal to those of "other occupations."

The promises were so broad, the difficulties foreseen and unforeseen, so great, that sympathy with the farmer might charitably include the befogged and bedeviled Republicans.

AMBULANCE REFORM.

When Bellevue Hospital introduced the innovation of an ambulance service sixty years ago it served the whole city. Since then the city has been divided into ambulance areas. There is an ambulance board which establishes the different districts and sees to it that they are adequately served. Thirty-two private hospitals now operate ambulances, besides those maintained by the city hospitals. The private institutions get $2,000 a year for each ambulance in service, but that by no means covers the cost. There have been frequent complaints of red-tape and delay, and the system is admittedly not perfect.

Commissioner SCHROEDER now wants to establish a central service under municipal control. He has in mind a complete districting of the city, with ambulances located at convenient points, possibly in police garages or at fire stations. He intends to ask the Board of Estimate for an appropriation of $300,000 to purchase 100 new ambulances to put his plan into effect. "Taking care "of the injured, the sick, the dying "is as much—or more—the city's "function as the financing of a po-"lice or fire department," he told an Evening Post reporter last week. He would like to see the service as prompt as the answering of fire alarms.

Just what the medical fraternity will think of this proposal is not yet clear. Speaking for the Academy of Medicine, Dr. HARTWELL accepts in principle police supervision, but is doubtful about personnel. Even as it is now, the hospitals have great difficulty in getting enough internes to man their ambulances. It is not a very pleasant job. At the hospital the interne gets the benefit of valuable training under responsible leadership, and he may be willing to do a tour of ambulance duty as part of it. What inducement would there be for a competent man to take this assignment if it were dissociated from hospital work and meant waiting around all day at a police station for a call?

The whole ambulance system may need "rejuvenation," but before going to the expense of buying 100 new ambulances to try out Dr. SCHROEDER'S scheme the city should consult with the representatives of the private hospitals and the medical profession to see if together they cannot work out a practicable plan.

RUSSIANS IN CHINA.

Indignation of Soviet Russians over the raiding of the Soviet consulate in Harbin, Manchuria, by the Chinese is understandable. Despite the precedent of raiding the Russian Embassy in Peking two years ago, no nation likes to have the offices of its foreign representatives summarily invaded and the people found there placed under arrest. The procedure is without the sanction of the custom of nations. In the present instance the Russians are particularly concerned about the nature of the justice which may be meted out by the Chinese to the prisoners. Chinese courts have a long history of arbitrary action, corruption and cruelty. This is one of the reasons why foreigners in China have insisted on the privilege of extra-territoriality.

However, the protests of Comrade KARAKHAN, formerly Russian Ambassador in Peking during the days when the Russians were using the radical elements of the Chinese Nationalists in Russia's struggle with Britain, are not devoid of elements of humor. He, it is reported, threatens to denounce the Russo-Chinese treaty by which Russia relinquished the right of extraterritoriality in China. The implication is that in this way she will go back to the old status under which, like the other Powers, she enjoyed extraterritorial privileges.

The fact is that this treaty merely confirmed a gesture of the Russians made after the Chinese had themselves abrogated Russia's special privileges. Both at the time and since, the Russians have capitalized this gesture as "proof" that they were more friendly to China than the hated "imperialist" Powers. In fact, they encouraged the Chinese campaign against extraterritoriality both because it was embarrassing to the other Powers and because, having lost the privilege themselves, they had nothing to gain by seeing others maintain it. Even the Chinese cannot but smile when they read that the Russian Government uses the old phrase of the imperialists and speaks of taking the necessary steps for the "protection of its interests and nationals."

The incident cannot be regarded as fortunate by any of the parties concerned. The Chinese may gain "face" by thus flouting the Soviets. They may even obtain valuable information, as they did in the case of the raid on the Russian Embassy in Peking. But this rough action against a nation not enjoying extra-territorial privileges will not lead the nations on whom China is urging the importance of relinquishing such privileges to be more anxious than heretofore to comply with China's demands.

THE BOTANICAL GARDEN.

Dr. BRITTON resigns as director of the New York Botanical Garden after thirty-five years of service. He presided over the transformation of an area that was part wilderness, part abandoned farm lands, into one of the leading botanical gardens in the world. He journeyed throughout the West Indies and brought back thousands of specimens of rare plants. Largely as a result of his activities, the collections are among the most complete in this country.

New York had a small botanical garden a century ago, established by Dr. DAVID HOSACK, and called the "Elgin Botanic Garden," not far from the site where it is proposed that the new Opera House be built. But it was abandoned for lack of funds. The present garden was not authorized until 1891. Philadelphia had the so-called Bartram Garden, founded in 1728 by JOHN BARTRAM, which fell into disuse, but has been recently salvaged and in part restored. In Cambridge the Botanic Garden of Harvard University has continued an uninterrupted career for 123 years. It was there that ASA GRAY worked out his studies of American botany. Finest of the lot, in its special fields, is the Arnold Arboretum, also in Massachusetts, which was developed by the late Professor CHARLES SPRAGUE SARGENT and the present director, best known as "Chinese" WILSON.

Europe has, of course, older gardens. In the Far East are two, started under the inspiration of Sir STAMFORD RAFFLES, founder of Singapore and Governor of Java during the brief period of the Napoleonic Wars when England took over that island from the Dutch. These are particularly distinguished for their tropical plants, and contain magnificent specimens of all the trees and plants native to the equatorial belt. Thanks to generous support, they have been well kept up and improved.

Dr. BRITTON'S task in the Bronx was twofold—to establish the collections of trees, shrubs and flowers which grow naturally in New York's climate, and to provide adequate greenhouse space for other specimens from other climates. To maintain large greenhouses requires great care, much money, considerable skill, and eternal vigilance. This is particularly true of those which contain plants that demand the almost constant temperature of the tropics. The thermometer varies only a few degrees in a place like Java. Many tropical plants are specially sensitive even to slight changes.

As Dr. BRITTON completes his researches in the flora of the West Indies, which he plans to do, he may look back with satisfaction on the changes which have been brought about while he has been director of the Botanical Garden. To others will fall the opportunity of reaping what he has sown. A botanical garden cannot be built in a day. New York's has a splendid start. So long as the city supports it, it will be of increasing interest to succeeding generations.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

New Matter of Course.

Probably not many newspaper readers stopped on Sunday to wonder at the long cable dispatch from Paris giving the full report of the conference of experts on reparations. Here were about 30,000 words, together with several tables of figures requiring the most delicate checking in transmission, all telegraphed for simultaneous publication.

This was a great feat in the dispatch of news. Probably no cablegram of that length was ever sent at one time before. The Young plan is longer than the Dawes plan. To telegraph all this matter and get it set promptly and entire in a single newspaper issue would have been regarded a few years ago as quite out of the question.

Now it is doubtless taken by the general public as mere routine. The information was important, and so the press made arrangements to get it. That would very likely be considered the whole story by most readers. They would be unaware how their attitude is really a great tribute to the enterprise of modern newspapers and to the facilities which have been developed for getting interesting news immediately from all parts of the world. The fact that this wonderful exploit in cabling passed with so little notice is proof of the way in which the public has been gradually accustomed to such things, so that they are now taken as merely ordinary events.

Guards and Birds.

Have you a little curbit on your farm? If not, go to Leaflet No. 86, published by the joint efforts of the Bureau of Biological Survey, the Division of Food Habits Research and the Office of Horticultural and Crop Diseases of the Bureau of Plant Industry of the Department of Agriculture in Washington and be wise.

From it you will learn all you care to know, not only about the Cucurbita pepo var. ovifera, known in the trade as the pear, orange, egg, miniature, bicolor and Turk's turban gourds, but also about the siphon, African pipe, dipper, anaconda, bottle, calabash, Hercules club, powder horn, spoon and sugar trough gourds, not to mention the snake gourds and the luffa.

To what purpose? To relieve the housing shortage for itinerant birds. Having decided on the variety of gourd, having planted, tended, raised, harvested and dried it, you must then decide on the type of bird you wish to provide with a happy home. If you want Bewick's wrens, cut the hole one inch in diameter; for the chickadee and Carolina wren, one and one-eighth inches; for bluebirds and hairy woodpeckers, one and one-half inches; flickers and purple martins, two and one-half inches, and so on. But lest you have the ambition of housing a roc or an ostrich in a wren-house, Leaflet 86 solemnly assures you that "it is useless to invite a large bird to nest in a small gourd!"

Changing Fashions in Geography.

Mr. DURANTY in his travels down the Volga reports flood stage between Astrakhan and Stalingrad. The former may be remembered from long-ago school days as a city on the Caspian, but few maps are available even to the specialist to tell him what Stalingrad was before it was rechristened in Bolshevist style. Apparently it was Tsaritzyn.

What no map can tell any one is how long Stalingrad will remain Stalingrad. It depends on how long STALIN keeps his hold on Russia. Soviet schoolboys, if they still study geography in Soviet schools, face the necessity of learning new sets of names at frequent intervals. Communists who do well in the eyes of the powers that be have towns named after them and when they fall in disgrace they fall out of the maps. In that way recently disappeared the towns of Zinovievsk and Trotsk.

For the American reader of middle age the havoc wrought by the war in European geography is severe. Still there is some comfort in the thought that Agram having become Zagreb and Lemberg having become Lwow are likely to stay so. It takes a little time to recall that Cobh means Queenstown, and the ordinary way of identifying Oslo is to figure out that it is neither Stockholm nor Copenhagen. But in Russia the names are not only new but in constant flux. Death alone brings fair assurance that, short of a violent political revolution, Leningrad and Sverdlovsk will remain.

How to Judge Music.

A new way of testing the impression made by music is reported from a city in Scotland. There had been a brass band contest, and the Mayor, in awarding the prize, made the following explanation: "I am no judge of music; but when the skin creeps you know you are enjoying yourself, and that was my sensation this afternoon."

This is getting the matter down to what used to be called the physical basis of life. Anyhow, a crawly sensation down the back of your neck, if it was not made by a stray insect, is better than having a musician, like the Fat Boy, make your flesh creep.

This Scottish verdict recalls the story of CHARLES DARWIN when he was a student at the university, leaning over the wall and listening to the organ in the church and asking his boy companion "Don't you feel a chill running down your spine?" This sensitiveness may not have indicated the highest appreciation of the music, but it was the cause of regret to DARWIN in later years that he had lost it. His intense concentration on scientific studies had dulled and at last almost destroyed his capacity for certain kinds of esthetic emotion.

TRAFFIC RELIEF MEASURE.

Shabby Shrubbery Could Be Taken Off Broadway and Park Avenue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With all the discussion that is going on about traffic congestion it is rather astonishing that there has been no effort to remove the shabby remnants of shrubbery in the centre of two of our most congested streets.

No two thoroughfares are more used than Park Avenue and Broadway above Fifty-ninth Street. Yet we still find on these two great arteries the remains of arboreal decorations that ceased to be proper and fitting twenty-five years ago.

Park Avenue spaces are kept rather neatly, whereas those from Fifty-ninth Street to Seventy-second Street on upper Broadway are as much an offense to the eye as they are an impediment to the traffic. When one considers what an improvement it would be if they were taken off Broadway, it would seem desirable that this should be done at once. Not only does this short section of Broadway have to carry the through traffic of Broadway, but at Seventy-second Street it has to take care of the traffic from Riverside Drive and Amsterdam Avenue and at Sixty-fifth Street the traffic that turns off from Columbus Avenue.

Many of the needed improvements that would help traffic are going to be costly and will take time. Here is one that will cost comparatively little and can be done, or rather should be done, in a few months.

The Crack in the Liberty Bell.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Few publish a letter from a contributor proposing to restore the "voice" of the historic Liberty Bell by welding the crevice together. This has been suggested many times but always rejected because it would destroy its most characteristic feature—it would be no longer the Liberty Bell revered by all patriotic Americans.

Let me recall for interested readers the fact, as developed in my history of the Liberty Bell, that the missing crack is itself a remnant of an effort to make the bell seal again. During an acrid controversy over payment for ringing the church bells in Philadelphia in 1846, it was urged that the old State House bell could be brought to serve the purpose by sawing out the crevice, till then scarcely visible, so its edges would not touch in vibration. The cure proved worse than the malady in a word, but it survives striking, but it inscribed on the bell the mark that distinguishes it from all other bells.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a confirmed autoist, and I believe in doing all I can to decrease the hazards of motoring.

I have recently noticed while on the city streets that on approaching an intersection, if I looked at the windowpane of the store which was on the corner to my left I could see, dimly the rhythmic car approaching from the street on my right, and in the evening the headlights, and also if I looked into the windowpane of the corner store on my right the same held true as to the cars approaching from the corner on my left.

This idea could be expanded. Municipalities could install some form of non-corrosive metal or glass in suitable frames on dangerous corners in such manner as to reflect cars approaching from the side streets.

AN EAST SIDE VISITOR.

Today an Oriole
Found a bare concert hall in our back yard,
In the Tree of Heaven,
Here on Lower East Side.
Upon an unleafed branch, as Robins
Races,
He preened himself, fluffed well his
Orient plumes,
Then hopped upon another dark
dead limb,
To make his birdly bow.
And sang—as only Orioles dare sing.
Then went away.
Where? I do not know.
I only know,
An Oriole, bright plumed
In early June-time garb
Came to our back yard
Sang his chick song upon the old
dead limb
Of the Ailanthus Tree.
And flew away.
Now, does God forget
The Lower East Side?

MEDICINAL LIQUOR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Pure beer, wines and other liquors for medicinal purposes, in ample quantities, by State enactment, and without onerous restrictions, is a Constitutional temperance plan now available to any State wishing to adopt the same by act of its Legislature.

The Eighteenth Amendment conferred upon Congress no power to prohibit liquors for medicinal purposes. Power to prohibit for beverage purposes alone, was conferred.

For no reason other than that the sponsors of the Volstead act purposefully favored prohibition of the use of liquors both for beverage purposes and for medicinal purposes, they dictated the drafting of the law accordingly.

The pretense of permitting liquors for medicinal use under the Volstead act was a gesture, not intended in good faith to permit, but designed to prohibit, such use, and to set up in the Federal Government a show of power where none had been conferred. "In fraud of" the Eighteenth Amendment is the language of four Justices of the Supreme Court in Dr. Lambert's case, 273 U. S., 561.

Power assumed by the Volstead act to regulate on the subject of medicinal liquors is simply usurped power, and will be ruled out by the Supreme Court whenever any State shall actually legislate to the contrary respecting liquors for medicinal purposes.

The Eighteenth Amendment would neither be violated, nullified, nor evaded by such State legislation. Such State enactments might very well permit the citizen to purchase beer, wine and other liquors by the case, on his own affidavit that same would be used only for medicinal purposes. The Constitution neither prohibits liquor for medicinal purposes nor requires a doctor's prescription as a prerequisite to obtaining it. The States could make a doctor's prescription a condition or not as they see fit.

The constitutional right to have liquors for medicinal purposes, which is being infringed by the Volstead act, implies the concomitant right to have same in quantity, quality and variety suitable to such purposes, and that they shall be conveniently obtainable.

Here are the exact words of four Justices of the Supreme Court in Dr. Lambert's case, including Justice Stone, whom Mr. Hoover wanted first for Attorney General and next for chairman of the Law Enforcement Committee:

"Congressional legislation directly prohibiting intoxicating liquor for concededly medicinal purposes, therefore, does not consist with the Constitution, and, viewed as a means of carrying into effect the granted power, is in fraud of that instrument, and especially the Tenth Amendment."

The plan here proposed contemplates independent exercise by the States of power they now have. It requires no change in the Eighteenth Amendment and no appeal to Congress. Action by the States and confirmation by the Supreme Court are all that is necessary.

I was in Congress when the matter of prohibition by constitutional amendment was first broached. In the early discussions in Congress it was agreed that the people could still get all the liquors for medicinal use that they desired, and that this would prevent bootlegging.

Protesting Removal of Elevated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan has written the Board of Estimate for consideration of a movement to demolish the Sixth Avenue elevated structure. Such a move is an encroachment upon the rights and liberties of our people. The elevated improves millions of our population, and yet a handful of property owners have plan to deprive the multitude of their comfort in riding in open air to and from a hard day's work, just because the value of their property will be enhanced.

Why just Sixth Avenue from Trinity Place to Fifty-third Street? Why not every structure in the city then? We might as well demolish the entire length of the Sixth Avenue elevated, if we are to do it at all.

Suppose the Bilker would alleviate the vehicular traffic, what is that in comparison to alleviating burdens of tired humans? Why compel them to bury themselves in the subway when the ride to and from work may be the only bit of sunshine thousands have?

It is a deplorable situation. I trust the public will come forward and put its foot down. It should have a voice in the matter. Is it not a big enough cause enough for it to be voted on by the people instead of permitting a few to tell us we cannot ride in the open? Put it up to people on election day.

The Walter Scott School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES report of the meeting of the Walter Scott Free Industrial School for Crippled Children states that I am the president, which is correct, but through a misunderstanding, it also states that I founded the school and built it.

The real founder was Mrs. Arthur Elliott Fish, who was its head until 1914, when she passed away and I was elected her successor. The school was then known as the William H. Davis School for Crippled Children, but on Jan. 1, 1922, its name was changed by unanimous vote to the Walter Scott Free Industrial School for Crippled Children. The children spend the Summer at the Lulu Theodora Upson Home in Gloversville, N. Y., which was presented to us by the late Charles Theodore.

Cause for Thanksgiving.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to express appreciation of THE TIMES editorial "The Full Result." We as a nation should thank God that we have men who have the clear-sighted ability to perform in an equitable way the solution of a financial settlement of a problem the vast magnitude of which is almost beyond the imagination.

The fact that it was settled in a friendly way without jeopardizing the financial future status of the nations involved is ample evidence of the fact that we as a nation realize that our neighbors cannot profit with the uncertainty that this caused, and the fact that it prevented a world-wide financial chaos is a thing that we all ought to appreciate.

TELL OF RISE IN COST OF NATURALIZATION

Settlement Official Says Alien's Money Is "Thrice Jeopardized" by Advance Payment.

The cost of naturalization to aliens will be $20 beginning July 1, instead of $5 as heretofore charged for citizenship papers, it was disclosed yesterday at a luncheon of the committee on naturalization and citizenship at the Fraternity Clubs Building, 22 East Thirty-eighth Street, where details of recent changes in the law and its effect upon procedure in New York City were discussed.

Morton J. Sturges, director of naturalization for the District of New York, in explaining the law passed by Congress on March 2, said that all depositions of witnesses would be handled by designated naturalization examiners without charge, instead of by notaries public. The changes in the law, as outlined in a bulletin of the committee, which is sponsored by the Council on Adult Education for the Foreign-Born, follow:

1. The fee for the issuance of a declaration of intention (first papers) will be $5 instead of $1, the present fee. The charge for filing a petition for final naturalization will be $10. An extra fee of $5 will be charged for the issuance of a certificate of arrival, whether that certificate is issued for first or second papers.
2. All aliens who arrived before June 3, 1921, who cannot prove definitely the exact time and manner of arrival, or aliens who came to this country without the payment of the so-called head tax before June 3, 1921, will be able to have their legal residence established by the payment of a $20 fee to the government.
3. After July 1 it will not be necessary to prove an entire year's residence in a particular State before being able to file a petition for final papers; a six months' residence in the county will be sufficient for naturalization purposes.
4. After July 1 no final papers will be furnished, no matter when the applicant came to this country, unless his legal arrival has been established. At present this procedure is practiced only in the case of those who arrived after June 3, 1921.
5. It will be necessary to furnish two full-face photographs, size 2½ by 2¼ inches, with applications for first and second papers.

Mr. Sturges said that all present blank forms for applications for citizenship would be obsolete after July 1 and discouraged the filing of any more applications on the old forms except in special cases. A duplicate certificate of citizenship will cost $10, he explained.

Criticism of the procedure under the law was made by W. E. Davenport, secretary of the Italian Settlement in Brooklyn, who urged that the payment of the $10 fee for final naturalization follow, and not precede, the examination of the petitioner. This examination, he said, is made ninety days before the final hearing on the petition and there is sufficient time for the payment before the petitioner comes up for acceptance or rejection.

"By requiring this fee before the preliminary examinations occur," he added, "the petitioner is thrice put in jeopardy of losing his fee, and, as he has already been accepted as a declarant, he cannot be entitled to due consideration. The exact character of his examination as a petitioner cannot be known to him and he is hence unable to learn exactly how he may be sure to qualify."

Mrs. Leo Bernstein, chairman of the committee, presided and outlined the program of the committee for informing the public of the changes in the law and other naturalization procedure. The committee will emphasize, she said, the possibility of redress in the exploitation of aliens trying to obtain citizenship.

FAVOR AMBULANCE PLAN.

Private Hospitals Make No Protest on Change in City Service.

Commissioner of Hospitals William Schroeder Jr. said yesterday that there had been no protests from private hospitals on his plan to discontinue the ambulance service now furnished to the city by private hospitals under contract and substitute municipally owned ambulance service throughout the metropolitan area.

Several months ago some private hospitals asked that the annual fee for their ambulance service be raised to $2,000. The Norwegian Hospital in Brooklyn withdrew its service, with the statement that the compensation was insufficient. Dr. Schroeder believes that ambulance service should come within the purview of the Department of Hospitals, and it is his ambition to centralize it there. It is understood that private hospitals will have little objection, since most of them provide ambulance service on an unprofitable basis.

DEDICATE HOLMES HOSPITAL

CINCINNATI, June 10.—The new Christian R. Holmes Hospital, built at a cost of $400,000, has just been dedicated as a part of the Cincinnati General Hospital group. The building was financed by Dr. Holmes's widow, Mrs. Betty Fleischmann Holmes of New York, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Taft and Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper Procter of this city.

The hospital was erected in honor of Dr. Holmes, who originated the Cincinnati General Hospital group and devoted his life to the administration and expansion of the institution. Dr. Holmes' hospital system is known throughout the world and scientists and doctors from all countries have visited Cincinnati to study his methods.

American Legion Plans for Flag Day.

Plans are being completed for a national celebration of Flag Day by the American Legion. It is being arranged under the auspices of S. L. Rothafel (Roxy), national chairman of the radio committee of the American Legion. The program will be carried on the combined networks of stations WEAF and WJZ. Plans for world peace will be discussed by former Secretary of State Kellogg, William Fortune, national president of the American Peace Society, and Paul V. McNutt, National Commander of the Legion.

DR. EDGAR W. WORK RESIGNS PASTORATE

Presbytery Meeting Here Votes to Consider Plea Friday—Two Candidates Licensed.

The Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work has presented his resignation as pastor of the Greenwich Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues. It was announced yesterday, at a meeting of the Presbytery of New York in the parish house of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, at Fifty-fifth Street. Dr. Work gave ill health as his reason for resigning.

A committee from the session of the Greenwich Church appeared before the Presbytery and asked that it call a special meeting for Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock to act on the resignation. The committee said that a congregational meeting will be held tomorrow evening to vote on the resignation, which was presented Sunday, and explained it was the wish of Dr. Work to have the special session of Presbytery in order that he might be freed of the burden of the pastorate at once. He has been unable to preach for several months. The session was ordered.

Dr. Work was for many years pastor of the Fourth Church, West End Avenue and Ninety-first Street. Ill health also forced him to relinquish this post. Until recently he has been vice moderator of the Presbytery and has served as chairman of several important committees.

The Presbytery went into executive session at 3:30 o'clock to examine in theology two candidates for the ministry. These were Theodore E. Frank of the Madison Avenue Church and Gordon B. Mattice of the Olivet Memorial Church, who has been serving as a lay assistant there. Both were found orthodox and licensed to preach. Mr. Frank was immediately ordained to the ministry. It was explained to the Presbytery that he wished to sail this week for Cairo, Egypt, to take up duties as chaplain of Cairo University.

Mr. Frank is the first graduate of Union Theological Seminary in many years to be licensed by the Presbytery without protest on the part of the Fundamentalists in that body. Mr. Mattice is a graduate of the Biblical Seminary.

The Presbytery voted to restore to its roll the name of W. H. Smith, who had been dropped on Jan. 9, 1928, because he failed to answer inquiries as to his location and work. The restoration was requested of the Reformed Classics of Montgomery, N. Y., in the bounds of which Mr. Smith has been serving for the last four years as supply minister at the Reformed Church in Fultonville. It was explained that the latter church had given him a formal call to the pastorate and wished to install him, and that Mr. Smith had explained that having come from the Presbyterian Church in Australia he did not know of the rule of the New York body which drops the name of any member not heard from for three years.

The Presbytery voted to have the Rev. Dr. Harlan G. Mendenhall, stated the clerk, write a letter to the twenty churches which so far have not entered the Ministers' Pension Fund of the Presbyterian Church. Each congregation is supposed to pay in 7½ per cent of the amount it pays its pastor. Among the erring churches were the Fifth Avenue, the Broadway, the North, West Park, West End, Park Avenue and the Fort Washington.

BOOMED FOR BANTON POST.

Three City Magistrates Pushed by Friends in Tammany.

Three city magistrates, Thomas F. McAndrews, Joseph E. Corrigan and George W. Simpson have been suggested by friends for the Tammany nomination for District Attorney, it was learned yesterday.

The movement for Magistrate McAndrews, a close friend of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany, was said to have gained considerable headway. The candidacy of Magistrate Corrigan is said to be viewed with considerable friendliness by Mayor Walker, but seems to have comparatively little organization support as yet. Magistrate Simpson is understood to have considerable support among Assembly district leaders.

Nomination of one of these Magistrates for the place now held by District Attorney Josh H. Banton is contingent upon the success of certain elements in Tammany in sidetracking Assistant District Attorney Edward Pecora. Mr. Pecora has strong organization opposition for the nomination, but he also has strong support on the theory that he would add strength to the Tammany ticket.

OPPOSE ISLAND PARK PLAN.

Patterson and Schroeder Want City Institutions Kept on East River.

Richard Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Corrections, and William Schroder Jr., Commissioner of Hospitals, expressed opposition yesterday to the plan proposed last week by the City Club to remove city institutions from the East River islands and convert the islands into parks.

Dr. Schroeder said he favored the idea of creating more parks, but considered the plan impractical because it made no provision for hospitals. Commissioner Patterson pointed out that the islands are accessible to parks and because of their location they are better suited for penal institutions.

Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, was lauded for his civic and church leadership by Mayor Walker and former Governor Smith, and hailed as an exemplar of spiritual democracy by Cardinal Hayes at a dinner last night in the Biltmore Hotel. The dinner was attended by 1,000 persons.

It marked the culmination of a ten-day celebration of the golden jubilee of Mgr. Lavelle in the priesthood. He has spent all of the fifty years in the service of the cathedral.

"He is the spirit, the soul of New York," Cardinal Hayes said of the guest of honor. "You can't be a real New Yorker and be a snob. You must be of the people to be a real New Yorker. He has been particularly a pastor of the people and always with the people."

Rector of a cathedral which was built in the ultra fashionable quarter of the city, Mgr. Lavelle swung its doors wide open to the humblest, the Cardinal said, adding, "There is a spiritual democracy in the heart of the Monsignor that even Governor Smith and Mayor Walker do not have."

"No one had taken a more sincere interest in the life and well-being of the city than Mgr. Lavelle," Mayor Walker declared.

"His have been fifty years of devotion to God and man, of statesmanship, benevolence and service," he went on. "New York has in its ranks men of the first rank in every line of activity, but none who has done more to uplift the standards of the community."

Adding his praise, former Governor Smith said: "Without respect to race or creed every one who knows him honors for many more years of his service in behalf of the city, the State and the whole nation."

Thanking the former Governor, whom he called "the ideal American citizen," and the Mayor, whom he termed "the ideal diplomat," Mgr. Lavelle briefly expressed his appreciation and lauded the increasing provision in the city for the destitute and needy.

ALFRED STECKLER, EX-JUSTICE, DIES

CHAMPION OF EAST SIDERS

As a Young Man Helped Bring About Reforms—Long Interested in Charities.

Former Supreme Court Justice Alfred Steckler of 270 Park Avenue died yesterday at Mt. Sinai Hospital of a complication of diseases after two months' illness, in his seventy third year.

He is survived by a widow, a son, Alfred Jr.; his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Mayer; a brother, Louis, and two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Alsberg and Mrs. Rebecca Manach. Funeral services will be held at 2 P. M. today in Temple Emanu-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street. Burial will be in Salem Fields, L. I.

Born in Leonard Street in December, 1856, Justice Steckler was educated in the public schools. While a youth, he was president of the Peter Cooper Literary Society, a debating society of Cooper Union, and president of the Hebrew Union.

After working in a law office, he attended Columbia Law School, graduating in 1877, and entered the practice of law with his brother, the late Charles Steckler. He at once became interested in public affairs, particularly in problems affecting the people of the east side.

In 1895, after he had directed attention to abuses in the civil district courts, he ran for judge of the Fourth District Court as an Independent, and was opposed by a candidate backed by Tammany, the County Democracy, Irving Hall and the Republican organization. The fight was bitter, but Justice Steckler won.

While serving on the district bench, he took steps to prevent the imposing of extortionate fees on litigations. He caused large placards to be posted at the court entrance informing litigants what fees were allowed by the law for each step in litigation.

After serving out his twelve-year term, he returned to private practice. In 1896 he ran as an Independent candidate for Supreme Court Justice, but was defeated. In 1901, on the death of Supreme Court Justice MacAdam, Governor Benjamin B. Odell named him to fill out the unexpired term. He ran the next year to succeed himself, but was not elected.

Justice Steckler was married twice. His first wife was killed in 1907 when a locomotive struck their automobile at a crossing near Harrington, N. J. He was seriously injured. In 1909 he married Mrs. Gussie Nordlinger Westheimer, who survives him.

The former Justice was interested in the work of several charitable organizations, among them the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, the Montefiore Home, the Hebrew Sheltering Society and the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews. He was a Mason and a member of the Independent Order of Free Sons of Israel, the Odd Fellows and the Knights of Pythias.

LIBRARY PROPERTY PADLOCKED A YEAR

GUINAN CASE UP TODAY

Attorneys for Helen Morgan Will Also Fight Injunction—Other Resorts Shut Down.

Part of the building at 114 West Fifty-fourth Street, owned by the New York Public Library, was ordered padlocked for one year by Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe Jr. yesterday. The padlocked premises have been occupied for several years by the Melody Club, which has more than once run afoul of the authorities. The library was exonerated of all blame.

Assistant United States Attorney Maxwell Shapiro said the library could not even apply for a removal of the padlock until it had found a tenant acceptable to the Federal Attorney's office.

The Melody Club was charged in February, 1926, with operating without a certificate of occupancy from the Building Bureau. At that time George V. McLaughlin, then Police Commissioner, was making a drive against night clubs.

The following Fall the club fell into the net spread by former Assistant United States Attorney General Mabel Willebrandt, and was raided by out-of-town Federal agents. Eddie Kyne and Byron Farrel, proprietors, pleaded guilty to maintaining a nuisance, and were fined $100 and $400, respectively. They also received suspended prison sentences of two months each.

So far as is known, however, no official warning was given to the library that its tenant had been charged with Volstead act violations. About ten days ago Harry Goldstein and Joseph Curry were arrested at the club and held in $1,000 bail each for alleged violation of the Volstead act.

Hearings on government motions permanently to enjoin Texas Guinan and Helen Morgan from violating the Volstead act were postponed yesterday until this morning by Judge Coxe. Neither was in court.

J. Arthur Adler, attorney for Miss Morgan, said she would not appear in court today, but that he would oppose the motion for her. It is expected that Miss Guinan will appear with her counsel, Maxwell Lopin. Both Miss Guinan and Miss Morgan have been acquitted by juries of maintaining nuisances.

Other places ordered padlocked by Judge Coxe yesterday were: 445 West Nineteenth Street, closed for one year; 137 West Thirteenth Street and 315 Stanton Street, closed for nine months each; 24 Ludlow Street and 120 Mount Vernon Avenue, Mount Vernon, closed for six months each; 200 West Seventy-sixth Street and 493 Lexington Avenue, closed for four months each.

LAYMEN AND CLERGY TAKE UP CHURCH UNITY

Special to The New York Times.

BUCKHILL FALLS, Pa., June 10.—A four-day conference of laymen and clergymen opened here late today under the auspices of The Christian Herald Association, the aim of which is to remove obstacles that stand in the way of the unification of the Protestant churches throughout the world.

This evening the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of New York led a discussion on the subject, "The Work Awaiting a United Church, and How It Can Be Done."

In the day's discussions of unity plans Ralph W. Gwinn of New York, general counsel for the J. C. Penney Stores, advocated the application of the chain store idea in the modern church, asserting that there were entirely too many churches in every community.

Fred B. Ramsey of New York, general secretary of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association, presided at the first session. A committee on findings was appointed, composed of Dr. William Adams Brown of Union Theological Seminary, chairman; Miss Esther Strong of the International Missionary Council; Mr. Gwinn, Dr. Jennie M. Callfas of Omaha, E. H. Mack of Erie, Pa., and Dr. Samuel Covert of New York.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt and Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are expected to attend the conference tomorrow.

FORT NOT SEEKING CHAIR.

Denies to Hoover He Wishes to Succeed Work as Committee Head.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Representative Franklin Fort of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican National Committee, visited the White House today to deny to President Hoover published reports to the effect that he would be a candidate to succeed Dr. Hubert Work as chairman of the National Committee.

"Reports to the effect that I shall be a candidate for chairman of the Republican National Committee are pure punk," Mr. Fort said after seeing the President. "I have never wanted the position and would not accept it under any conditions, even if it were tendered to me.

"I prefer to remain in Congress where I have been a member since the seventieth Congress, to becoming chairman of the Republican National Committee. A man cannot do both."

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

For Thousands of Years That Same Old Sun, Said to Be 866,500 Miles Wide

—has never left the world in confusion or darkness, but has come up on time in its allotted place and gone on keeping step with the great movements of the Universe. Empires have risen and fallen, revolutions taken place in many countries, governments have changed but the course of the great planet through all the centuries has never changed. Man is the only creature on the globe that ignores the Creator and defies His right to arrange the harmonies of His own world for the happiness of its people.

The Rockefeller Foundation last year spent from capital and income $21,690,738 in practical and experimental medical and general health work throughout the United States and in more than a score of other countries, it was announced yesterday in the first instalment of a review of the Foundation's activities in 1928, written by its president, Dr. George E. Vincent.

More than half of the disbursements represented a gift for medical education in China of $12,000,000 in the form of an endowment to the newly created China Medical Board, Inc., which is independent of the Foundation. The fund is primarily for the maintenance of the Peking Union Medical College.

This institution, set up by the Rockefeller Foundation, which bought its land, erected its buildings, equipped and maintained it for investigation and teaching of the care and prevention of disease, was put well on the way to autonomy during the year.

"Steps were taken," Dr. Vincent declared, "toward the possibly remote but none the less steadily sought goal of making the Peking Union Medical College a Chinese institution, serving the Chinese people, staffed mainly by Chinese citizens and administered under Chinese auspices. The Rockefeller Foundation waived its right to appoint a majority of the board of trustees of the college, and, with the consent of other organizations which previously appointed representatives on the board, the board of trustees was made self-perpetuating."

Other Schools May Get Aid.

The physical property of the college has now been turned over to the China Medical Board, which has in turn leased it to the institution. The endowment given to the Medical Board will be used first to maintain the college, but with the proviso that it may be devoted to the support of other educational institutions in China or the United States if it is deemed inadvisable to continue the present arrangement.

Referring to the merger in January of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial with the Rockefeller Foundation and the taking over of the foreign program of the International Education Board, another Rockefeller organization by the enlarged Foundation, Dr. Vincent reports that the book value of the combined resources of the new institution is more than $203,000,000, with outstanding obligations of $35,000,000.

These three Rockefeller boards, together with the General Education Board, another Rockefeller institution, have not only distributed all their incomes but have appropriated $225,000,000 of capital funds since their founding, making "a substantial reduction" in their endowments, even when the increase in market value of securities is taken into account, Dr. Vincent said.

Spends $144,180,000 in Sixteen Years.

From its founding in 1913 through 1928 the Rockefeller Foundation itself spent $144,180,000, he continued. Its accomplishments included campaigns against hookworm, malaria, yellow fever and tuberculosis, emergency medical and social relief during the World War, creation of schools and institutes of public health, the strengthening of existing medical schools, encouragement of public health work and the granting of medical fellowships.

A feature of last year's work was the starting of a medical centre in Lyons, France, with the building of medical laboratories for which the Foundation has pledged 42,000,000 francs.

Speaking of the Foundation's support of government public health agencies, Dr. Vincent reported that physicians were loyally supporting public and private health activities and discovering that increased community interest in health was sending more patients to private practitioners.

Among other accomplishments during the year were contributions for eighteen medical schools in fourteen countries, assistance toward operating expenses of seventeen hospitals in China, aid to fifteen nurse training schools in ten countries, aid to the governments of twenty-one countries in fighting hookworm, assistance in the combat of yellow fever in Brazil, contributions to eighty-five county health organizations in the Mississippi flood area, cooperation in organizing rural health services in 191 counties, aid to local health work in twenty-three foreign countries and participation in malaria control demonstrations in six States and eighteen foreign countries.

CHINESE KILLED IN FIGHT.

Another Is Charged With Homicide After Pistol Battle.

In a fight between two Chinese in which five shots were fired Chop Wing, a cook, 35 years old, of 24 Pell Street, was shot and killed yesterday morning, and Lee Tei, a seaman, 29, later arrested on a charge of homicide, suffered lacerations of the hands and head.

Furniture was overturned and broken and windows smashed as the fight surged from room to room in an apartment at 299 Broome Street. It ended with the collapse of Wing with a bullet in his head and another in his abdomen on the landing outside the apartment.

Tei was arrested as he descended the stairs by two patrolmen, who rushed in with drawn revolvers in response to the shouts of frantic tenants.

Wing, so far as the police have been able to piece the story together, had lived with Tei at the Broome Street address, and went there to collect a sum of money and a dispute developed.

Belgian Officials Fine Prince For Failing to Cast His Vote

BRUSSELS, June 10 (AP).—Prince Charles, second son of King Albert, was fined 100 francs (about $4) today for not voting in the Belgian provincial election yesterday in accordance with Belgian law.

The Prince arrived at the doors of the polling place early in the morning, but they had not yet been opened. After waiting fifteen minutes in line with other early voters he left for a country trip.

The election, which designated membership in nine provincial councils, was for the administration of provincial affairs.

He Refuses to Approve New Meters Pending Conference With Established Concerns.

LEGAL ACTION THREATENED

Lawyer for White Horse Company Says Commissioner Has No Discretion in the Matter.

The White Horse Taxi Service Company's plan to place on the streets 5,000 cut-rate taxicabs, independently owned, received a setback yesterday when Commissioner Whalen declared that he would withhold his approval of the meters until he had "thoroughly investigated" the entire taxicab situation. He said he would soon call a conference of taxi men to determine their attitude.

The proposed far rate of 10 cents for the first one-third mile and 5 cents for each additional third of a mile would be the lowest in the city, most cabs now operating at 15 cents for the first quarter mile and 5 cents for each additional quarter. The maximum legal rate is 40 cents for the first mile and 30 cents a mile thereafter. Both the Checker Cab Service Company and the Parmount Cab Manufacturing Corporation, two of the largest fleet operators, have advocated higher rates to meet increased insurance costs and gasoline tax. Jules Martin is president of the White Horse Taxi Service Company, Joseph Murphy secretary and Jesse Donella treasurer and vice president.

Says Meters Have Been Passed.

Gilbert Rosenthal, attorney, of 220 Broadway, counsel for the company when told of Mr. Whalen's stand, declared that the "10-and-5" meter had already been approved by the Hack Bureau of the Police Department; that Mr. Whalen had no discretion in the matter and must grant his approval.

"Mr. Whalen admits," he said, "that he has no right to regulate rates and that when a meter is submitted to him for approval the only thing to be done by him is to test it for accuracy.

"The meter we submitted is a standard meter. We are advised by the Hack Bureau that it registered properly and had tested perfectly in the laboratory."

Mr. Rosenthal added that one of the company's meters had been in the possession of the Hack Bureau since June 3 and that ordinarily it required only twenty-four hours to pass on a meter.

"We are contemplating mandamus proceedings against the Commissioner," he declared, "but before resorting to the courts we wish to give him every opportunity to deal fairly with the public and with us."

Charges Meter Was Defaced.

Mr. Rosenthal displayed a meter, or "clock," alleged to have been tested and passed by the Hack Bureau. Subsequently, he said, the seal had been broken off and the stamp on its face scratched, rendering its use illegal.

Commissioner Whalen assered that, while the Police Department had no power to fix rates, "the stability of taxicab service in this city must remain." He added that the meter of the new company had not been submitted to him.

"The taxi industry of this city must not be thrown into a chaotic state," he declared. "There must be a fair living in the taxicab industry for everybody. Only recently taxicab companies thought of advancing their rates, and now this new concern comes along reducing the rates.

"The Police Department received information recently that old taxicabs which had been taken off the streets have been treated to a coat of paint and reconditioned and are now ready to be operated at a cheap rate."

Mr. Martin admitted that cabs now in operation by individuals would be operated under the colors and supervision of his company, but added that he was negotiating with a large automobile manufacturing concern to produce taxicabs to sell for about $1,400, approximately 50 per cent of what the present cabs cost. Drivers operating cabs of the White Horse Taxi Service Company, he said, would receive gasoline at cost and garage space would be rented on a cooperative basis. Under this arrangement, he said, drivers would be able to own their cabs in a short time and operate at a profit.

DENIES HOOVER MEN SEEK CONTROL HERE

W. H. Hill Ridicules Reports Group Wishes to Dictate on State Chairmanship.

DECRIES RUMORS OF SLIGHT

Asserts Machold Was Not Piqued Over Appointments and Says President Esteems Him.

William H. Hill of Binghamton, who was chairman of the State Hoover campaign committee, and is regarded as the spokesman of the original Hoover supporters in this State, denied yesterday published reports that the so-called Hoover group was seeking to gain control of the party organization by electing one of their number Republican State chairman to succeed H. Edmund Machold. Mr. Hill also denied that Mr. Machold's decision to resign was caused by any feeling that he had been slighted in appointments made by President Hoover or dissatisfaction with those appointments.

"There is no truth in the report that the Hoover group has or will have any candidate for State chairman," Mr. Hill said. "No one has the right to claim that he is the candidate of this group or has the support of the President.

"The President, I am certain, has no interest in the election of a State chairman other than that a good and capable man shall be chosen.

"There is no patronage at stake in the election of a chairman. The main thing is to select an able and efficient man who will get the party in shape for the next State campaign and I am confident that he will be found and elected.

"Mr. Machold's relations with the President and the Hoover administration were very friendly. I happen to know that President Hoover had a high regard for Mr. Machold and was sorry to learn that his business interests made it necessary for him to resign as State chairman."

Denies Washington Interference.

Mr. Hill characterized as "imaginative" all reports that there was likely to be interference from Washington in the selection of a New York State chairman. "I am certain that the President and his advisors have every confidence that the State committee will be able to pick the right man," he said.

Mr. Machold is expected to send in his letter of resignation today. The resignation will be to the State committee and will be sent to Colonel Lafayette B. Gleason, its secretary.

At the same time, Mr. Machold will issue a call for a meeting of the State committee. He had not decided on the date for this meeting last night and it was said that the necessity of conferring with some of the more important party leaders might delay the letter of resignation and the call until tomorrow.

Little progress was made during the day in reaching an agreement on a successor to Mr. Machold. Opinion was about equally divided as to whether or not former State Controller William J. Maier, who has been acting as assistant to Mr. Machold, would get the place. Mr. Machold was believed to favor the selection of Mr. Maier, but it was learned that he had not consulted him about the matter. It also was said that Mr. Maier, who is head of a bank in his home town, Seneca Falls, might not be able to take the place.

C. R. King Boom Weakens.

The boom for Clarence R. King of Syracuse, Onondaga County chairman, received something of a setback when it was learned that he was classed as a "wet." The politics of the situation, in view of the defeat of James W. Wadsworth for re-election as United States Senator in 1926, was said to require the election of a "dry," or at least of a man not known to possess "wet" views.

Henry R. Barrett of White Plains, secretary of the Westchester County Committee, who was mentioned as a possibility by influential Republicans, took himself out of consideration. "In the first place, I could not consider it," he said, "in the second place, I am too busy with Westchester Republican politics. In the third place, I have not heard that any one has urged my name. It does not interest me in the least."

The coming resignation of Mr. Machold has been interpreted by local Republican leaders as likely to mean that National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles will regain much of his old influence. Mr. Machold was recognized by President Hoover as the head and spokesman of the triumvirate, of which Mr. Hilles is the other member.

Many of the New York City members of the State Committee were reported to be ready to follow the lead of Mr. Hilles in the selection of a new chairman, and it was said that his influence with up-State members was on the increase. Mr. Hilles took the lead in the conference at which it was decided to elect Mr. Machold chairman after the death of George K. Morris and his influence, as well as that of Mr. Machold and Mr. Hill, is expected to be potent in picking a new chairman.

PRINCETON STUDENT KILLED

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 10.—John Claxton Gittings Jr. of Philadelphia, a sophomore at Princeton University, died in the McCosh Infirmary here this morning as a result of injuries suffered in an accidental fall last night from scaffolding erected in the construction of the new McCarter Theatre. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. Claxton Gittings of 1,822 Pine Street, Philadelphia.

Gittings and several friends had been studying late for final examinations, and about midnight decided to go out and inspect a novel fire escape at the theatre. While mounting the scaffolding to slide down the spiral exit, Gittings lost his balance and fell twenty-five feet. His scalp was cut and his back injured, but he was able to walk to the infirmary with the others. An anesthetic was administered in order to sew up the scalp wound, but Gittings never regained consciousness and died three hours later.

Gittings was 19 years old and prepared for Princeton at the Haverford School. He was a member of the Colonial Club.

President of Linden City Council Sentenced To Six-Months' Jail Term for Extortion

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 10.—Thomas A. Archipley, president of the Linden City Council, was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail and fined $500 for extortion, by Judge Alfred A. Stein in Quarter Sessions Court here this morning.

John F. Meakim, also involved in the tangled municipal affairs of Linden, got a suspended sentence after being convicted of bribery. One jury decided he had paid $500 to be elected Auditor for the city, but another acquitted the two men accused of receiving the bribe.

The specific case against Archipley was extortion of $100 from Samuel Kleinman, building contractor, to have a "bad ticket" quashed and official approval given to a building alleged to be in violation of the city building code. This took place on July 17, 1926, the State contended.

Both convictions were the result of disclosures made in a summary investigation of the financial affairs of Linden by Supreme Court Commissioner William D. Wolfskeil in May, 1928. Several indictments followed, among them those of Archipley and Meakim. Meakim was found to have paid $500 to William Reibel, an attorney, for distribution among members of the city council in his effort to obtain the city auditorship. Meakim was convicted on May 15 and Archipley on May 24.

Mrs. J. W. Casterton Trapped by Flames at Night While Asleep.

NEIGHBOR RESCUES THREE

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., June 10.—Mrs. Margaret Casterton, 23 years old, wife of John Ward Casterton, general purchasing agent of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was burned to death when flames destroyed their home at 340 Irving Avenue about 2 o'clock this morning.

Awakened by the shouts of Mr. Casterton, neighbors helped him and his two children by a former marriage down a ladder menaced by flames and too short for effective rescue work. The three, suffering from shock and smoke, were taken to the home of Ralph H. Aronson, president of Woolworth & Co., New York, who lives two doors away.

Firemen, arriving after the rescues had been made, found the Casterton home ablaze. Driven back several times by the flames, two firemen, Captain John C. Loughran and Fred A. Heimunger, finally battled their way through the smoke and fire to Mrs. Casterton's room, dragged her from a bed and carried her down a ladder to the street.

Although Mrs. Casterton was apparently dead, physicians worked over her for several hours with a pulmotor.

Screams awakened Mary Stricks, a maid in the Clifford W. Allsopp home, which adjoins the Casterton residence, a few moments before 2 o'clock. She ran down stairs and awakened Mr. Allsopp, who telephoned the alarm and hurried with a ladder to the burning house.

Mr. Casterton, dazed by the smoke, was helped down from the roof of a porch. Mr. Allsopp then carried the ladder to a bedroom window from which Jean, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. Casterton, was about to jump. The ladder was four feet too short, so he climbed to the top and had the girl lower herself into his arms. Robert, 12 years old, ran to the window and was rescued in the same way.

Fire Chief Becker declared that the fire was probably caused by a defective electric connection in the living room. The fire, he said, started in the living room of the three-story frame structure and spread to the lower hall and up the stairway to the second floor, cutting off Mrs. Casterton's escape.

CRASH ENDS BOYS' JOY RIDE

Frightened at the sight of a patrolman, William Sullivan, 14 years old, of 3,421 De Kalb Avenue, the Bronx, lost control of the stolen automobile in which he was giving two schoolmates a ride in Jennings Street, the Bronx, yesterday. The car mounted the curb and crashed into a Chinese laundry and injured a woman pedestrian, who was cut by glass. She is Sarah Dugoff, 40 years old, 1,449 Bryant Avenue.

Sullivan and his two companions jumped out of the wrecked car unhurt and fled down an alleyway. Richard Fitzgerald, the patrolman at the sight of whom the boy lost his nerve, captured them two blocks away.

The automobile was stolen at 10 o'clock last night from Samuel Edelstein in front of his home, 1,814 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx. The boy said he found his father's automobile locked in the garage, wanted a ride, and picked out one of similar make.

He drove to New Rochelle and back, parked the car near his home and then drove it to school in the morning. At noon he invited his friends for a ride. He is charged with juvenile delinquency and will be arraigned in Bronx Children's Court tomorrow.

BANK CLERK HELD IN $26,000 THEFTS

FALSE ENTRIES ALLEGED

Said to Have Extended Over Four Years—Arrest Follows Complaints of Customers.

Detectives Smith and Leddy of the East Twenty-second Street station arrested yesterday Frederick W. Brooks, 37 years old, of 507 Vanderbilt Avenue, Brooklyn, a clerk in a Fourth Avenue, Manhattan, bank, charging him with suspicion of grand larceny. He is accused of having taken more than $26,000 from the Bank of the Manhattan Company, Union Square branch, between the years 1925-'29, through false entries in the books. He denied all guilt.

Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings, before whom the prisoner was brought, said he would arraign Brooks this morning on the charge, obtain an indictment against him later in the day, and seek to bring him before the Court of General Sessions.

Auditors at the bank, it was said yesterday, learned of the shortage through complaints of customers who found improper charges entered against their accounts. In tracing the leak, it was said, the evidence pointed toward Brooks. Brooks, who had been employed at the branch for some time, left its employ recently and went to work as a clerk in another bank.

When Brooks appeared before Mr. Hastings he denied any wrongdoing and refused to make a further statement without consulting counsel. The police took him first to the East Twenty-second Street station, where they booked him, thence to the District Attorney's office, and locked him up in Police Headquarters afterward.

Bank officials would make no statement as to the details of the case. The shortage is covered by insurance, they pointed out.

REPUBLICANS TO ACT ON FUSION THIS WEEK

Leaders From Five Counties to Meet to Issue Call for a City Convention.

A conference of the Republican leaders of the five counties in New York City to issue a call for an unofficial city convention preliminary to making up an anti-Tammany fusion ticket probably will be held this week, it was learned yesterday.

Only the Queens Republican organization remains to declare in favor of such a convention. A meeting of the Queens executive committee under the leadership of Joseph H. De Bruggs will be held on Thursday. It is expected that a resolution favoring the convention will be adopted at this meeting and that the conference of county leaders will be held soon afterward.

The convention, it was said, probably would be held late in July or very early in August. So far as appears now, its contribution toward fusion will be to name at least one Democrat on the slate for the city ticket, which must be ratified by the Republicans at the primary election on Sept. 17 to be effective. Presumably the convention will bind those participating in it to support the candidates recommended by it at the primary election.

The conference of county leaders in addition to fixing the time and place for the convention also will fix the basis of representation for each Assembly district. Officials of the Republican State Committee are now preparing such representation, based on the vote for the Republican candidate for Governor last Fall. No State-wide officer is to be elected this Fall, but the State Committee's allotment of delegates for each Assembly district will be needed for judicial conventions.

The candidacy of Representative F. H. LaGuardia for the Republican nomination for Mayor continues to cause the party leaders some uneasiness, as they do not know whether Mr. LaGuardia will abide by the choice of the convention, if not named there, or will enter the primaries.

INQUIRY ORDERED IN DOUBLE KILLING

EXPERTS TO VIEW BODIES

Exhumation Order Will Be Signed Today—Prosecutor Moves to Speed Inquest.

Special to The New York Times.

MOORESTOWN, N. J., June 10.—A thorough investigation of the fatal shooting of Horace Roberts Jr. and Miss Ruth M. Wilson was ordered today by Supreme Court Justice Joseph L. Bodine after a conference in his Trenton home with Burlington County officials.

Certain facts which have come to the attention of Justice Bodine have made a coroner's inquiry, with a finding by a jury, "more imperative than ever," he said. The inquest will be held as speedily as possible. Prosecutor George M. Hillman said he would call every person connected in any way with the deaths to testify.

The coroner's investigation will hinge largely on medical testimony. Rumors that the young man and his former fiancée were murdered by a third person have been based largely on varying versions of the location of their wounds.

Prosecutor Hillman and Ellis H. Parker, chief of the Burlington County detectives, reiterated today their conviction that Roberts, temporarily deranged, killed the girl and then himself.

Wound in Spine Denied.

Both denied that one of three bullet wounds found in Roberts's head had been in the back of the neck. One man who examined the bodies has declared to newspaper men that he saw such a wound, rimmed with powder marks. The physicians who made the post-mortem examination supported the denial of Hillman and Parker.

Among today's developments was a statement by Police Chief Bradshaw that Miss Wilson, several weeks ago, induced Roberts to give her a revolver which he had flourished in her company. Bradshaw said he received this information from Rutherford Brown of Moorestown, a boyhood friend of Roberts.

Brown did not know how long Miss Wilson retained the revolver, Bradshaw said, "or whether she had taken it to prevent Roberts from carrying out a threat to commit suicide if she held to her determination to end their engagement, and even their friendship."

The Moorestown police also gave out a new version of the statement of John O. Wilson, father of the slain girl. Mr. Wilson, a banker and an attorney, returned to his home here a week ago Sunday, after a bridge party, to find his daughter and Roberts, both unclad, dying from bullet wounds in Miss Wilson's bedroom. Originally it had been said that Mr. Wilson, unable to open the front door, had climbed to a porch roof, looked into his daughter's room and then returned to the front door, which he forced.

The new version was that he opened the door with a key, but had been unable to open the door of his daughter's room. He then stepped out to the roof of the porch, from a second floor window, and got into his daughter's chamber through the window. Mr. Wilson refused to discuss the matter.

Justice Issues Statement.

After the conference, Justice Bodine issued this statement: "Justice J. L. Bodine met Prosecutor George M. Hillman, Coroner Benjamin N. Farmer and County Detective Ellis H. Parker this morning with respect to the casualty which recently occurred at Moorestown, N. J., in which Horace Roberts Jr. and Miss Ruth M. Wilson died.

"Mr. Hillman stated that he had undertaken to call an inquest, acting upon the suggestion of Justice Bodine, which he received last Thursday. Justice Bodine stated that at that time the necessity for an inquest was his mature judgment that since that time certain persons have called upon him at his residence and had stated facts to him which made it more imperative than ever before that such inquest be thoroughly complete and impartial investigation by means of an inquest be had."

Discussing the case informally, Justice Bodine said he had heard conflicting accounts of the shooting, although not from what he could term an authoritative source.

"Several persons have told me that they were willing to go on the stand and testify if an inquest was held," he declared. "I, of course, have formed no opinion of the case. But in view of the conflict in accounts I would like to see the affair settled in the only logical way that it can be settled—by the holding of a coroner's inquest. The inquest is an ancient institution. It is the orderly procedure in such matters and I sincerely believe that it should not be ignored in this instance."

Moves to Exhume Bodies.

Prosecutor Hillman filed in an application tonight for permission to exhume the bodies. Assistant County Detective Caruthers will go to Trenton tomorrow to obtain Justice Bodine's signature. Mr. Hillman said that he would have the most prominent surgeon he could enlist make an examination of the bullet wounds and then testify.

He added that he hoped to have the autopsy performed and the medical testimony arranged in time to hold the inquest on Wednesday or Thursday. It will be the first coroner's inquest in Burlington County in eighteen years, according to Mr. Farmer, who added that the list of witnesses to be called was being prepared. He said the identity of all of the witnesses would not be disclosed until service had been made.

Prosecutor Hillman, however, said the doctors who attended the couple would be called to testify and that Dr. William S. Wadsworth, coroner's physician of Philadelphia, an authority on gunshot wounds, would attend as an expert. X-ray photographs of the wounds will be exhibited. He asserted that these show that two of Roberts's wounds were frontal ones and that the third struck back and above his right ear and lodged in the skull, causing a minor fracture.

Both families have retained attorneys. Former Judge William D. Lippincott will appear on behalf of Mr. Roberts and the Wilson family will be represented by V. Claude Palmer. They will have the right to cross-examine witnesses.

"It is ridiculous to say that this is anything but a murder and a suicide," Detective Parker said, "but everything will be laid on the table at the inquest and the case finally settled."

Heels Must Billet Troops In Next War, Says Officer

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 10.—The country's most exclusive hotels will be called upon to billet and care for troops in the event of another war. Guests will be obliged to give up their rooms to soldiers, and streets about the hostelries will be roped off for training areas.

This is part of the mobilization plans now on file in the War Department, which within twelve hours of another call to arms would be put into effect, Colonel James K. Parsons of the general staff states in The Red Guidon.

"It would be cheaper, better and more effective than the shifting around of troops to cantonments and the erection of expensive camps and roads," the Colonel contends in his article.

LAWRENCE SLAYING FOLLOWED DRINKING

Bennison's Body Unclaimed—Mrs. Lawrence Arranges for Private Funeral Tomorrow.

Three official investigations revealed yesterday that Margaret Lawrence, the actress, and Louis Bennison, former cowboy film actor, had been drinking shortly before Bennison shot the actress and ended his own life in Miss Lawrence's penthouse apartment at 34 East Fifty-first Street.

Within twenty-four hours of the discovery Sunday noon of the two bodies by Mrs. Gertrude Chalsir of 45-28 Packard Street, Long Island City, a friend of the actress, the police had completed yesterday their investigation. They said there was no doubt that Bennison had written both the notes found in the apartment and that he had done the shooting.

The motive for the shooting remained a mystery, although the police were informed that Bennison, who had appeared in stage productions with Miss Lawrence, had been given to brooding and to threats of suicide when he was drinking.

Actress's Body Claimed.

Bennison's body remained unclaimed at the morgue yesterday, but about 1 P. M. the body of Miss Lawrence was claimed by her mother, Mrs. Eva Camp Lawrence, and her sister, Mrs. Emma Lawrence Franks, both of 421 West Price Street, Germantown, Pa. Miss Lawrence's body was taken to the Universal Funeral Chapel at 597 Lexington Avenue. Private funeral services will be held at the mother's home in Germantown tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Dr. Charles Norris, the Chief Medical Examiner, after completing an examination of the two bodies, listed Miss Lawrence's death as homicide and that of Bennison as suicide.

Of the two notes found in the apartment, one was pinned on a door leading from the living room to the kitchenette and read, "The sunset has a heart. Look for us there," and was signed Tianna. Although Mrs. Chalsir on Sunday had identified the writing of this note as that of Miss Lawrence, yesterday Mrs. Franks asserted positively the writing was not her sister's.

Detective Martin Hayes declared there was no doubt that Bennison had written it, and that he also had written the other note, directed to Bennett Mussen, actor and author, which said, "Please notify Mr. Mussen at The Lambs Club at once." The handwriting is both notes was the same, Hayes said.

No Signs of a Struggle.

Inspector Charles Stillson of the homicide squad said there was no evidence to eliminate or to strengthen one theory that Bennison may have shot Miss Lawrence as she slept in night attire in one of the twin beds in her apartment. This theory had been advanced because there were no signs of a struggle in the apartment and the expression on the face of the actress was peaceful.

Forty empty liquor bottles and several glasses were strewn about the apartment when the police arrived on Sunday. Yesterday a chemical analysis performed by Dr. Alexander O. Gettler, city toxicologist, and his assistant, Dr. Henry Sokwartz, revealed alcohol, rated at plus four, in the stomachs of both victims.

Miss Lawrence, who was 40 years old and who had two children by her first husband, Orson D. Munn, a patent lawyer, had hoped to enter the talking motion-picture field. It was learned from Nathan Burkan, 1,451 Broadway attorney, who had represented her for several years, Mr. Burkan said he had last seen Miss Lawrence about ten days ago and she had appeared cheerful and had shown no signs of financial worries. Mr. Burkan said she had asked him if he would advise her to enter the talkie field and when he had encouraged her, she asked him to broach the matter to some of his producer friends on the West Coast.

According to Mr. Burkan, Miss Lawrence's two children are living with their grandmother in Germantown and are being supported by funds given by Mr. Munn. Miss Lawrence's second husband was Wallace Eddinger, a well-known actor, who died of pneumonia in Pittsburgh on Jan. 3.

Miss Lawrence's apartment, with its expensive furnishings and the liquor bottles and glasses left just as they were when the bodies were discovered on Sunday, was sealed by an attache of the Public Administrator's office yesterday, pending settlement of the actress's estate. During the day the actress's mother and sister visited the apartment with a friend. The sister and L. S. Tread-well of 21 West Fortieth Street also visited the morgue. Treadwell made the official identification of Miss Lawrence's body.

The Medical Examiner's report showed that Miss Lawrence had died from a bullet that had entered the left lower side and penetrated the liver and stomach. Bennison died from a bullet wound in the left lower chest and the upper abdomen, according to the report.

Bennison's friend, Mussen, was not reached at The Lambs Club yesterday, and officials at the morgue said they had heard no word from him. At The Lambs Club employes said Mussen was out of town.

MOVE TO RESTORE ARMY-NAVY GAME

FISH ASKS SECRETARIES' AID

GOOD IS NON-COMMITTAL

Adams Believes Compromise Can Be Worked Out—Annapolis Is Reported Willing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—President Hoover will soon be asked to act as arbiter in an effort to adjust the difficulties that led to a rupture in the athletic relations between the service academies at West Point and Annapolis.

The athletic authorities of the two institutions came to a parting of the ways owing to the refusal of West Point to subscribe to the intercollegiate rule which prohibits a student from playing more than three years on a varsity football team. The Naval Academy adopted the three-year rule and gave notice that until West Point adhered to it there would be no games between the two teams.

The trouble goes back to 1925, but in that year, at the solicitation of President Coolidge, the academies patched up a truce and their football teams played in the Chicago Stadium. They played again in 1926, at Baltimore, presumably in accordance with suggestions made by President Coolidge. Since then the two teams have not met on the football field.

Chairman Britten of the House Naval Committee said today that unless those in command at West Point and Annapolis soon reached an agreement to resume athletic relations he would take the matter up with President Hoover. He will tell the President that there is a nation-wide demand for a resumption of the annual service game and that if the authorities at West Point and Annapolis continue to find it impossible to reconcile their differences the President shall direct the conditions under which the games shall be played in the future.

Recently Representative Fish of New York, in which district West Point is located, wrote to Secretary Good, suggesting by way of compromise that West Point abandon the six-year rule and agree with Annapolis on a four-year rule. He stated that he thought Annapolis would readily assent to the plan. Mr. Fish forwarded a copy of his letter to Secretary Good to Secretary Adams.

Mr. Good merely acknowledged the letter without committing himself for the Army. Secretary Adams replied that he thought the four-year rule would prove workable and the tone of the letter indicated that he was hopeful that a compromise would soon be reached by the athletic authorities at West Point and Annapolis.

Chairman Britten favors the compromise suggested by Mr. Fish, but he thinks that in the absence of positive action by the heads of the Navy and War Departments, prompted by the President, the present state of affairs will continue indefinitely.

He does not think, as things now stand, that the authorities at West Point or Annapolis can be persuaded, except by direct order of those executives in authority to recede from their positions.

Annapolis Said to Favor Compromise.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 10.—The news that President Hoover might be asked to seek a reconciliation of athletic differences between the Naval and Military academies was received here tonight without official comment. Jonas Ingram, director of athletics, declared that he had no comment to make.

He had previously said that he and Admiral E. S. Robinson, superintendent of the academy, were anxious to have athletic relations resumed on a fair basis. Though it is generally understood to be the official attitude here to accept the limiting of midshipmen and cadets to four years of athletics, no one in authority has made a statement to that effect.

It is generally conceded that Secretary Adams's indication to Representative Fish that the four-year compromise would be acceptable is in line with the policy of the Naval Academy officials.

LAWYERS UNDER FIRE

Richmond June Grand Jury Renews John Doe Inquiry.

The June Supreme Court grand jury started yesterday a second John Doe investigation into charges against lawyers practicing on Staten Island. A former investigation was made in March, but indictments at that time were dismissed because it was found that the grand jury was not legally convened.

The grand jury is sitting in the County Court House at St. George and the investigation is being conducted by Assistant Attorney General William T. Moore and Assistant Attorney General William E. Groat, who have been assigned by Governor Roosevelt.

The original charges were brought in the magistrate's court of Staten Island against Henry Klauber, a lawyer. These charges involved the alleged mismanagement of the estate of Frederick William Reynolds. Klauber at one time represented Reynolds's widow, Mrs. Margaret Reynolds, and his daughter, who is now Mrs. Catherine Butler. Klauber retaliated by preferring charges against Louis J. Feinstein, a lawyer, whom he accused of attempted extortion.

Among the witnesses examined yesterday were Mrs. Margaret Reynolds and Mrs. Catherine Butler.

Belmont Record Set by Chestnut Oak; Jockey Hurt as Barrier Fails to Work

Dashes 5½ Furlongs Down the Widener Chute in Sensational Time of 1:02 4-5.

JOCKEY E. WATTERS HURT

His Mount, Recoil, and Perrina Thrown on Australian Barrier — Fails to Work in Opener.

By BRYAN FIELD.

The brilliant speed that Chestnut Oak flashed in the Withers enabled that son of Apprehension and Santry Pass to establish a new track record in the third running of the Speed Handicap at Belmont Park yesterday.

The Speed Handicap was the getaway day feature and the Oak Ridge Stable star easily whipped a field of eight other sparkling sprinters, the nearest of which at the finish was E. M. Byers's Click, two lengths away. William Ziegler Jr.'s Polydor was third, beaten a head by Click, which was a sensation as a 2-year-old, when he went about Maryland cracking sprinting records.

Chestnut Oak came from behind to win and was timed in 1:02 4-5 for the five and a half furlongs down the Widener course, lopping almost two full seconds off Anita Peabody's track record time of 1:04 3-5, which was made in 1927. Last year the best time was 1:05.

Chestnut Oak's mark compares favorably with the North American record of 1:02 2-5 set by Plater at Morris Park in 1902. If you listen to some of the old-timers, who contend that time was not taken as carefully in the old days, they will tell you that Chestnut Oak's performance was the greatest clash they have ever seen, even though he had a strong wind at his back down the chute.

Does Not Favor a Route.

In any event, a sprinter has come over the horizon and Osmand, Polydor and all the other favorite ones had best look to their laurels. Kept out of the Belmont Stakes last Saturday because he was not considered a router, Chestnut Oak showed the keenness of Trainer Johnny Loftus, as he is probably the fastest thing now running up to a mile. His fractional time in the Withers showed what he can do at six furlongs and up and at the end of the Withers mile he was only a few inches behind Blue Larkspur.

Breaking slowly yesterday, he soon came on strong, and half way down the course was traveling a yard to every foot that Click covered. Click was making his season's début.

Polydor was unable to race him down, even though he closed courageously. But Chestnut Oak was able not only to race Click down but to run so far out in front of him that Georgie Fields had the winner going easily at the end.

Chestnut Oak was one of two winning mounts for Fields, as he brought the Fair Stable's Chicatie home first in the mile of the Blue Point Purse. This was a fast-run race also, as Chicatie was timed in 1:36 3-5 to beat Star o' Morn and Coin Collector. Star o' Morn closed resolutely and just failed to get up.

Another mishap to the Australian barrier probably definitely sealed the fate of that device. In the first race eighteen juveniles faced Starter Mars Cassidy and when he had them properly aligned he called "Come on" and sprang the barrier. It failed to rise and the entire field crashed into the mesh of steel, and two of the horses, Perrina and Recoil, were thrown down.

Watters Taken to Hospital

Barrett on Perrina escaped with a few bruises, but Eddie Watters, rider of Recoil, was caught in the stirrups and injured. When Watters's cuts and bruises were dressed no broken bones were found, although he was badly shaken up and may have internal injuries. He was taken to the hospital for examination.

Cassidy said after the race that the electric apparatus had failed to work and that this had been noticed at other times. An element of irony entered the race, for Guilder, the winner, was slow at the break. So tardy was Guilder that Jockey Fermin had time to pull up, clear clear of the melée, and then drive on to victory.

Three horses were practically left. They were Little Nap, Sewing Circle and Wagtail. In addition, bolted across the field from the outside post position and caused further confusion. Laverne Fator pulled him up.

Edify, from the Flying Horse Farm, won the Woodland Steeplechase. Away winging, this fellow never stopped, even though he was the extreme outsider in a field of four. He scored by eight lengths from Lattingtown Stable's Warfalin. Thomas Hitchcock's Devilkin, the odds-on favorite, was third and Sir Sweep brought up the rear.

Devilkin was running a winning race under A. C. Bostwick when he made a bad landing at the water jump, which took so much out of him that he never again a serious threat to Edify.

Ceylon Prince, a 3-year-old gelding, won again in the Bayport Purse at a mile and thus made his score three victories out of his last four races.

TURF SCENE SHIFTS TO AQUEDUCT TODAY

12 Entered in Queens County Handicap, Featuring First Card of 21-Day Meeting.

Twelve horses have been named for the Queens County Handicap, initial feature of the Aqueduct meeting, which begins today. The session will last twenty-one days and it is expected that the quality of the fields throughout will be up to that of the Queens County Handicap, in which some of the best handicap horses in the East are entered.

Buddy Bauer will carry top weight of 119 pounds, two more than the load assigned to Ironsides, which ran well in the Suburban, his last start. But Deacon Hill, which set the pace for the first mile in the Belmont Stakes, also is entered and as the Queens County is at a mile he will be a formidable competitor. Byrd, Mi Vida and Counterbery are other strong contenders which will favor the route.

The race carries $5,000 in added money and was won last year by A. C. Schwartz's Kentucky II. Sortie will carry the Schwartz colors this year and he is sure to be running at the end, although the distance appears to be a little short for him.

Six races will make up the card and one of them is a steeplechase. Aqueduct is the only Metropolitan course except Belmont Park which has a steeplechase course and today's test is at about two miles. Ten have been named, Saorstat, Volunteer, Endicott and Louquer being of the number.

The meeting will include three Saturdays of racing and end on Independence Day. Blue Larkspur, winner of the Withers and the Belmont Stakes, is one of the first flight 3-year-olds which will run at the meeting. Colonel E. R. Bradley's great colt is eligible for the Brooklyn and the Dwyer and is expected to fulfill his engagements in both. These are the two outstanding races of the meeting, although the Brookdale, Shevlin, Broadway and Carter handicaps boast quality and tradition.

The Wide starting gate will get its first trial in the Metropolitan district at Aqueduct. This is a movable stall which is driven to and off the track before and after a race. It was used with success at New Orleans and later in Maryland.

Two 2-year-olds will have plenty of opportunity to show their calibre both in overnight and stake events. The Great American is perhaps the best known Aqueduct feature for juveniles and it will be run on June 22, the same day as the Brookdale Handicap.

The Tremont and the Astoria are other juvenile fixtures for which most of the best youngsters are eligible. The latter is a closing day feature with the Carter Handicap.

Post and Paddock.

Belmont Park's getaway day crowd was one of the largest in several years. The popularity of racing at th big plant of the Westchester Racing Association has been increasing year by year and the tag end of a meeting is now crowded as enthusiastic as when the season is running full blast.

Victor K. Schaumburg, racing secretary, has not yet made a final compilation of figures, but feels sure that the attendance for the past twenty-one days (the duration of the meeting) has been greater than in any previous year. Moreover, Mr. Schaumburg has been pleased with the high calibre of the fields and the great number of horses which were attracted by the liberal purses.

The horse Jack Blener, which crashed through the fence in a race here last week, was more badly injured than at first supposed. He will be retired until the Fall racing.

West Drift, which carried the E. R. Stable silks in the first race yesterday, and only recently been purchased from F. R. P. Randolph. The E. R. Stable also made purchases from Mrs. Herbert Fullitzer, including Tipperary II. Birdie Wrack, Peter and Oddfellow II.

Dr. Freeland's poor showing in the Belmont Stakes was partially explained yesterday when Tom Healey, trainer of Walter J. Salmon's great colt, said that Dr. Freeland had tossed a shoe at about the half-mile post. That's enough to stop any horse.

SILVERDALE LOSES TO ROYAL JULIAN

TRIPLE FOR JOCKEY DUBOIS

He Wins on Dr. Parrish and Royal Julian and Completes Double for Whitehouse on Take Off.

Special to The New York Times.

LATONIA, Ky., June 10.—E. B. McLean's three-year-old colt Silverdale, after winning six races in succession, lost by a neck to Royal Julian in the Hotel Metropole Purse at a mile and seventy yards, today's feature race. It was the third victory in a row for the Whitehouse horse, which covered the distance in 1:41 2-5, just one second over the Latonia track and American record established by Mike Hall in 1927.

Silverdale was held the favorite at slightly more than even odds, and he held the lead throughout until the final fifty yards, where Royal Julian came on determinedly to head the tiring McLean colt. The Chocktaw was third, four lengths back, but a nose in front of Ben Machree.

HOYT YIELDS ONLY 5 HITS

By JOHN DREBINGER.

The Browns offered stout resistance to the onslaughts of the Yankees at the Stadium yesterday afternoon and for a time even threatened to discredit the prevailing belief that they are, in the vernacular of the ball player, first cousins to the world's champions. But relatives will be relatives, and as in the end the Brownies lost, 3 to 2, there is still nothing to show in the records that they are not the first cousins to the champions.

It was the second straight defeat of the current series for the Brownies and the fifth time this season that the men of Dan Howley had been bowled over by the Yankees.

Two triples by Combs upset the Brownies this time and gave Waite Hoyt a well-earned decision over Alvin Crowder. The first of these triples exploded in the fifth inning, up to which time Hoyt and Crowder had remained in a scoreless deadlock. It was a lusty blow to left field that caromed off the grand stand and bounded merrily toward centre field. Some seconds later Robertson boosted a long sacrifice fly to McNeely in right and Combs scored.

Yankees Clinch Contest.

In the seventh Combs repeated the performance with even more satisfactory results as Hoyt had thoughtfully pushed a single to centre just before this and therefore carried home a second run for the Yankees. Then Robertson decided this would be as good a time as any to hit another sacrifice fly and by hoisting a high one to McGowan in centre sent Combs over the plate with what subsequently proved to be the deciding tally.

However, up to this time the Browns had given no indication whatever that a third run would be needed to decide this apparently very peaceful encounter. In fact, one hit, a single by O'Rourke in the fourth, was all the smacking they had been able to do at the expense of Hoyt over the first seven innings.

But in the eighth, the Brownies got a trifle unruly and slipped over a run while scarcely any one was looking. Two of Howley's pinch hitters had failed dismally in opening this round, but Manion singled, Dondero batting for Crowder, singled, and when Lu Blue also singled, a tally was in. Hoyt quickly squelched the next Brownie.

Brown Rally Nipped.

Then came the ninth, in which the Browns scored again, and this time they did it right out in the open where all could see it. Manush, first up, planked the ball squarely into the sacred precincts of Ruthville and this had every one feeling very uneasy excepting Mr. Hoyt, who has never been known to feel uneasy in his life. Hoyt retired McGowan on a fly, held Kress to a foul and fanned Kimsey, who had pitched the eighth inning for the Browns and was now forced to strike out for himself as Howley apparently had run out of pinch hitters.

In all, Hoyt allowed only five hits.

About the only thing to attract any attention whatever to the Browns during the early innings was the fielding of Kress, who turned in two of the best fielding plays of the day. The Brownie shortstop pulled a thriller in the fourth when he collared Durocher's smash to his right and converted it into a double play, and two innings later made Byrd the victim of another dazzling stop and throw.

RUTH GOING AWAY FOR SECLUDED REST

Babe Refuses to Divulge Destination, Insisting He Must Be Left to Himself.

Babe Ruth will leave today for a rest that may last a week or may be cut short of that time. Just where he is going and exactly how long he plans to stay he refused to say yesterday as he watched the game between the Yankees and the Browns at the Stadium. One thing he does want to do and that is get away where no one can bother him.

He had intended going yesterday, having laid all of his plans to slip quietly out of town, but at the last moment Dr. Edward King, who has been caring for the noted invalid, decided that Babe needed one more thorough examination before leaving, so Ruth was whisked off to St. Vincent's Hospital in the morning and there Dr. King and staff physicians gave Ruth a thorough going over.

Afterward Dr. King declared that Ruth had improved greatly and was getting along nicely.

"What he needs now is rest away from folk who are always crowding around to see him and asking him questions and seeking autographs," Dr. King said. "Ruth's cold is responding to treatment and his general condition is excellent. But he will not improve in the right way until he has plenty of rest."

After the examination the Bambino went back to his apartment at 345 Eighty-eighth Street and ate a hearty luncheon and then, following a short rest, took a taxi to the Yankee Stadium and had a talk with the boys in the clubhouse. He packed up a couple of sweaters he wanted and put them aside to take home with him.

"I feel great," said the Babe as he stood in front of one of the Stadium lunch counters and nibbled at a ham and cheese sandwich that was a meal in itself. "All I want is a few days where I can be alone and get my nerves into shape. Then I'll come back and be as good as ever. The doctors tell me that I'm improving daily and I know by that way I feel that I won't be out much longer."

Babe is understood to be headed for an up-State spot where he can have real seclusion. He will be accompanied only by Mrs. Ruth. They will make the trip by automobile, thus avoiding a crowd at a railroad terminal.

REDS REPEL GIANTS SECOND TIME IN ROW

Conquer McGrawmen by 7 to 3 as Benton, Mays and Genewich Fail on the Mound.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 10.—Nothing in John McGraw's right-handed pitching armament could cow the Reds this afternoon. The humble Hendricksmen, who just lately were getting their mail in the National League cellar, subdued our Giants with force and flourish, taking their second straight victory from the men of McGraw by the score of 7 to 3.

It has been nearly three weeks since the Giants lost two straight, the exact dates were May 20 and May 22 and the team was Brooklyn.

But this year the Reds are archfoemen. In the Polo Grounds last month the Reds took two games by overwhelming scores. They broke even in the first two games here, tight ones, both of them. Today the Reds took an early lead and the Giants' efforts to catch them were feeble.

Narrow Escape for Genewich.

Benton, with victories in Chicago and St. Louis in his last two starts, lasted only four innings. Larry ducked for solitude with the score 5 to 1 against him. Carl Mays stayed two innings, allowing only one hit, but it was a hit that drove home a run. Joe Genewich had a narrow squeak in the seventh. He was saved by a double play after the bases became filled with one out. In the eighth, with the bases again loaded with Reds, Genewich walked Critz, so that all three pitchers sent to the mound by McGraw left their marks in the Red column, while 3,636 Ohioans urged McGraw to give them some more pitchers.

Fullis's single and Lindstrom's long double gave Benton a 1-to-0 lead in the first inning. Benton's own tardiness in covering first base on a smash between Terry and Reese in the second was his undoing.

Benton began this round badly by putting Curtis Walker on base with a pass. Purdy slashed one at Terry's glove. Benton did not start for first in time to beat Purdy to that spot. Reese, retrieving the ball, threw to first with Benton three steps away from the bag.

By the time Hogan fished the ball out from a corner of the grand-stand screen Walker was on third and Purdy on second. George Kelly immediately drove a tremendous fly, which Fullis captured near the scoreboard in left centre, sacrificing Walker home and Purdy to third. Ford's roller wiped out Purdy between third and home, but Critz put the Reds ahead with a double to left centre that scored Ford from first base.

May Strikes Out Two.

Jakie May, the Cincy southpaw cross-firer, fanned Roush and Fullis in the third, then opened the local half with a dribble to deep short for a single.

Three more singles by the next three batters put two runs over. The third single was one of the longest ever hit on any ball field. Dressen came up with the bases filled and none out. He drifted a fly that fell safe near the end of the left-field foul line.

The printing on the wall at this point proclaims that the distance from home plate is 339 feet. Dressen's hit struck the numerals on the first bounce, but it counted only a single because Critz stood still near second until he saw that Fullis could not catch the ball. May and Swanson scored on the hit.

Two singles and a force out added the fifth run in the fourth inning. Meanwhile the Giants were having difficulty even getting on base. May's left-handed cross-fire had Ott and Terry all tangled up. Reese was not even able to do that.

Hogan started a rally with a single past Dressen with one out in the fifth. Kaufmann batted for Benton and walked. Roush's infield out advanced both runners. Fullis, who bothered May every time he batted, drew a pass, filling the bases.

Lindstrom's smash between Kelly and Critz was good for two runs, the Giants' last for the day. The left-first baseman slapped the ball into centre field trying to stop it. Hogan and Kaufmann scored. Ott took two swings, then had a third strike called on him.

LIVELY BALL NOT SOUGHT.

Subject Not Considered by National League, Official States.

The National League holds no brief for the lively ball, but can take its home runs or leave them alone, The Associated Press reported yesterday. Harvey Traband, assistant secretary, issued this statement:

"To clear up the misunderstanding which is apparent in press comments on the meeting of the National League club owners at Cincinnati last Friday, the league headquarters desires to make it clear that there was no discussion with relation to adopting a livelier ball.

"It was pointed out at the meeting that the increase in home runs in the National League so far this year could be attributed almost entirely to a half or five hard-hitting players who either were not at the league at this time last year ago or who were not in the game every day, such as Klein, Hurst, Frederick, O'Doul and Ott."

Grove Wins Ninth Game of the Season and Sixth in Row by Victory Over Chicago.

PHILADELPHIA, June 10 (AP).—Lefty Grove won his ninth game of the season and his sixth in a row today by pitching the Philadelphia Athletics to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Former Amateur and Open Champions Eliminated as 28 Qualify in Metropolitan Test.

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Special to The New York Times.

SALISBURY PLAINS, L. I., June 10.—A former open champion and a former amateur king were among the 194 unsuccessful candidates in the qualifying round for the 1929 open championship played on the No. 3 and No. 4 courses of the Salisbury Country Club today.

Cyril Walker, diminutive professional who created a sensation when he emerged as the winner of the 1924 open at Oakland Hills, fell by the wayside in the play-off that followed today's test, while Jess Sweetser, national amateur champion in 1923 and winner of the British amateur title in 1926, took two shots too many in the thirty-six hole qualifying round to give him the second chance that Walker and those others who tied at 157 had to make the grade for the final test which comes at the Winged Foot Club two weeks hence.

Klein 66 for First Round.

Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills professional who holds the New York State open, had the honor of leading the huge field of 222 pros and amateurs who assembled at Salisbury today to do battle for the twenty-eight places alloted to the metropolitan section.

By dint of a spectacular round which produced a 66, tying the No. 3 course record made by MacDonald Smith in the play-off with Gene Sarazen here some years ago, Klein made things so easy for himself that his 80 on the No. 4 course in the afternoon left him leading his closest rival, who happened to be Eddie Driggs, the recently-crowned Long Island amateur champion, by one stroke.

Besides Driggs, who had two well-balanced rounds of 72 and 75 for a 147 total, three other amateurs fought their way into the select circle. George Voigt of North Hills, the low handicap man in the district this year, finished in a tie for fourth place with Clarence Hackney, Atlantic City professional who elected to come here and qualify. Eddie Held and Maurice McCarthy Jr., interscholastic champion, finished a stroke worse and tied with George Heron of Meadow Brook, Tom Kerrigan, Dan Williams and Craig Wood for sixth place.

Heron Scores a 73.

Heron, after taking eighty strokes on the No. 3 course, went out in the wind on No. 4 in the afternoon and brought home the lowest score made over that exacting course today, a 73, which represented perfect golf under the difficult conditions.

Tony Maurro, Rocky Rich, W. L. Fotheringham, Elmer Voight and Gil Nicholls all qualified handily with totals of 153. W. H. Cox had 154 and William Noon and James Johnston had totals of 155, and the last six who passed muster without going through the play-off ordeal were Tom Boyd, A. E. MacDonald, Thomas J. Hughes, August Nordone, Thomas J. Harmon and Jack Sabol.

Harmon, after taking eighty-two strokes on the No. 3 course and jeopardizing his chance of qualifying, finished with a 74 on the No. 4 course.

When the scores of the big field were at last posted it was found that there were eight tied for the two places left open. The eight included Walker, Bill Creavy, John Farrell (not to be confused with Johnny Farrell, who is to defend his title at Winged Foot), Walter Grego, Alex Watson, C. W. Drake, C. Ralph Smith and Don Caruso.

Walker Eliminated.

Smith was not on hand when his name was called and was automatically dropped out. Walker, missing his drive and topping his second shot, took four to reach the green and was eliminated. Creavy, playing a fine bunker shot, got a 4 on the hole, and the other five men continued to the second hole, where Grego pitched his second shot dead to the pin for a birdie 3 and with Creavy joined the successful candidates.

In addition to Walker and Sweetser, who pulled himself out of qualifying by three-putting six of the last ten greens, there were some other notable failures, the one for whom most sympathy was felt being Mike Brady, Winged Foot pro. Mike ventured out on thin ice when he took eighty-two strokes on the No. 3 course this morning, but came up to the last hole with a 3 for a 77 total, which at least would have put him in the play-off.

His second shot was a beauty, leaving him ten feet from the hole, but his putt curled off the line on the last few inches and he was out.

Klein Scores With Putter.

The most useful weapon in Klein's hands was his putter, which kept banging his ball into the hole from all sorts of distances. Starting out with six consecutive pars, Willie finished the last nine holes with three straight birdie 3s, a five-yard putt ending the bottom of the tin on the seventh, his drive reaching the green on the 360-yard eighth and a twenty-foot putt going down at the ninth, giving him a 33.

Three more par holes followed, then another fifteen-footer went down for a birdie 3 on the thirteenth, a thirty-footer for another birdie 2 on the fifteenth and his second shot fell dead to the pin for a birdie 3 on the sixteenth. Two more holes on par gave him another 33 for the last nine.

PUBLIC LINKS MEDAL WON BY BOY OF 16

A 16-year-old high school student, Mortimer Jaffee of Evander Childs, captured the medal in the thirty-six-hole qualifying play of the municipal golf championship with a 68 and a 70 over the Van Cortlandt Park public links yesterday.

Jaffee led the field of forty-five and finished a close race with Joe Farrell, with whom he played, with a two-stroke advantage. Farrell and Jaffee both equaled par of 68 in the morning, but in the afternoon round Farrell needed a 72.

John Assanna finished third with 74—142, leading W. J. Tobin 71—73—144, and Fred Pagano, who was 74—71—145. Some of the veterans included Joe Merola, who qualified among the first thirty-two with 75—74—149, and Joe Sabre, former champion, who has played little golf this season. Sabre returned a 77—75—152. Richard Walsh, the present titleholder, did not compete, as he is no longer eligible for the event.

MRS. ANDERSON 2D WITH 84

Mrs. Federman Registers an 86 for 3d Place—Mrs. Toerge, Titleholder, Gets an 87.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN HEAD, L. I., June 10.—Coming within a stroke of equaling the course record, Miss Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., turned in an 82 to win the qualifying medal of the women's Long Island golf championship today. The 18-year-old girl had only a putt of eighteen inches to sink at the home green to tie the existing mark for the Women's National Golf and Tennis Club links established by a former national champion, Miss Edith Cummings, but she missed it.

Miss Hicks, however, had the distinction of leading the other forty-three entrants by two shots. She started consistently with a 39 for the first half, 3 over par, only to come back by dropping a short here and there to par on the second nine for a 43.

High Wind Hampers Players.

With a high cross wind blowing continuously, the players returned good scores considering conditions. Mrs. J. Laroque Anderson of Cherry Valley was second with an 84. Mrs. Leo Federman, registering from Fresh Meadow, took an 86, which placed her third, the same total with which she won the medal in the tourney last year. Mrs. Norman K. Toerge of Nassau, the present titleholder, followed with an 87, while the other player to break 90 was Miss Rosalie Knapp of the home club, who scored an 89.

So easily did Miss Hicks play that one would never guess by watching her that she was so close to a record round. After a poor start over the first five holes, in which she took a 6 by slicing her drive under a tree, she played her best golf over the next four holes. Holeing a par 4 at the sixth, she accounted for a birdie 3 at the 225-yard seventh, using a brassie to drive the green and then took two putts. She followed this with an eagle 3 at the 411-yard fifth, which is carded as a par 5. Her fine drive, a second with a No. 3 iron to the green and a putt of twenty-five feet scored the 3. A 5 at the ninth gave her a 39.

Loses Several Chances Coming In.

Coming in Miss Hicks lost several chances for a better score. She failed to hold a putt of little more than a foot at the twelfth for a 3, and at the fifteenth she topped her wood shot in the fairway, sent her approach into a trap and took a 6.

Mr. Anderson's 40 represented steady play on the first nine, six of the nine holes representing pars. Mrs. Federman was out in 41, despite a 7 at the third, and had a 45 coming back, which included three 6s.

ALEXANDRIA, June 10 (AP).—"Bad News" Hale, young third baseman of the Alexandria Cotton States League Club, playing his first season of professional baseball, has hit home runs for five successive days.

In the majors Babe Ruth hit seven home runs in five consecutive games with the Yankees in 1921. In 1924 George Kelly had a string of seven in six straight games with the Giants, while Hack Wilson of the Cubs his six homers in five games last season.

Mrs. Bailey and Miss Greenspan Win in Met Tennis Tourney

MISS GREENSPAN ADVANCES AT TENNIS

Gains 2d Round in Women's Met. Clay Court Tourney by Defeating Mrs. Cronk, 6-3, 6-3.

MRS. PRITCHARD BEATEN

Bows to Mrs. Bailey by 6-2, 6-1—Miss Taubele Victor Over Miss Stevens, 7-5, 6-4.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

With an entry of forty-eight players headed by Miss Clara Greenspan, the eleventh ranking player of the country, the women's metropolitan clay court championship started yesterday at the University Heights Tennis Club.

Returning from Boston, where she played on the New York Sears Cup team, Miss Greenspan defeated Mrs. Annabelle Cronk in the first round, 6—3, 6—3. Mrs. Cronk has had no tournament experience to speak of and had reason to be more than satisfied with the six games credited to her. Her lobbing proved an effective checkmate repeatedly to the volleying excursions of Miss Greenspan, although the Hunter College girl would not be denied when the ball came back within reach of her racquet.

Mrs. Bailey Plays Stellar Game.

The surprise of the first day of play was the defeat of Mrs. Elsie Pritchard by Mrs. John E. Bailey, who won by the conclusive margin of 6—2, 6—1. It was the best performance that Mrs. Bailey has turned in in several seasons.

Among the other players to advance were Mrs. Helene Polisk Falk and Mrs. Philip B. Hawk, both of whom were seeded in the draw; Miss Norma Taubele, Mrs. H. H. Walsh, Mrs. Theodore De M. Johnson and Mrs. Richard Ewers. Mrs. Falk allowed Miss Jean Flagler only one game and Mrs. Hawk eliminated Mrs. E. L. MacDonald at 6—2, 6—3, but Miss Taubele had one of the hardest fights of the afternoon against Miss Barbara Stevens, winning at 7—5, 6—4.

Mrs. Walsh defeated Mrs. George B. Stanwix. Mrs. Johnson defeated Mrs. L. Cremonim at 6—3, 6—4, and Mrs. Ewers won in love sets from Mrs. J. Knack. Mrs. J. S. McDermott and Miss Peggy Hill won the only two matches that went to three sets.

Play Resumes This Morning.

Play will be resumed this morning, when Miss Alice Francis will go on the courts, and during the day other ranking favorites will go into action. These include Mrs. Bernard F. Stenz, Mrs. Helen Gilleaudeau Lockhorn, Miss Charlotte Miller and Mrs. Frederick M. Letson. Miss Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., winner of the title last year, is not defending it as she is abroad with Miss Helen Wills.

Miss Wills Throws Away Summons Unopened And Misses Suit Over Eye Shade in Germany

BERLIN, June 10.—Because she threw all the letters sent to her hotel by admirers and petitioners into a waster paper basket unopened, Miss Helen Wills failed to respond to a summons to appear as a witness before a Berlin court, according to the publication Tempo.

The object of the court's desire to see the famous star was the sunshade she wears at tournaments. A number of years ago Herr Bruch, small Cologne merchant, invented and patented a special tennis cap, which he manufactured in such quantities as his small capital permitted. Recently he discovered that a cap was being manufactured in great quantities by a number of Berlin firms, who replied to his complaint that it was an invention by Miss Wills and had been known in the international tennis world for years.

So Bruch started a law suit and Miss Wills must testify in London, where a new summons will be served on her as a special precaution.

ONE CONTENDER COLLAPSES

Garaulile Exhausted by Furious Session of Skating—3 Combinations Tied for Lead.

Another innovation in the realm of sports was introduced last night at Madison Square Garden, a six-day roller skating race getting under way. The race started at 9 o'clock and a crowd of 3,000 persons was on hand.

Sixteen teams, each team comprising three men, are competing. Among the stars are A. R. Eglington, holder of every British record; Joe West, former amateur champion of the world, and Leo Coltrona, Italian champion. Joie Ray, the great distance runner, is participating, and already has been singled out by the fans as a target for their cheers.

The race is conducted along the same lines as a bike grind. One man on each team must be on the track at all times, while his partners rest in bunks at the bottom of the banked track. Sprints are held at 3 P. M., 9 P. M. and 2 A. M.

The race was barely one hour old when the first mishap occurred. Al Garaulile of the mound city team of St. Louis, striving desperately from the start to gain a lap for his aggregation, collapsed after a furious session of skating. He was taken to his bunk, where he was revived, but he did not take part in the first series of sprints.

The field spread out fast, with three teams skating along in a tie for first place. They were the British-American combination of Eglington, West and Jack Woodruff; the Italian-American trio of Coltrona, Cliff Howard and Eddie Krahn, and the Brooklyn team of Murray Gorman, Charles Gregory and Artie Ryder. The combined leaders covered a distance of ten miles in the first half hour of the grind.

DUNDEE DEFEATS GROVE.

Vince Dundee, Baltimore welterweight, shaded Izzy Grove of New York in ten fast rounds at the Newark velodrome last night. Dundee's two-handed attack overcame Grove's countering and in the ninth and tenth rounds he stretched his lead to a clear margin. Grove buckled Dundee's knees in the third with a terrific right hook to the chin. Dundee saved himself from a knockdown by grabbing the opponent. Dundee was stronger at the end. Each weighed 150 pounds.

Freddie Fiducia, Newark, 120 pounds, defeated Al Mason, Newark, 116, in the four-round opener; Jimmy Phillips, 146, Bernardsville, knocked out Al Fehn, 142, Newark, in the third round of a scheduled six

Hildebrandt Tallies Run in Ninth Which Conquers Manhattan Prep, 4 to 3.

The Jamaica High School nine, winner of the Queens Division championship, gained the right to play in the final for the P. S. A. L. title when it defeated Bushwick High School, Brooklyn winner, 4 to 3, before a crowd of 5,000 at Dexter Park yesterday.

Roy Alpert, Jamaica pitching star, held the losers to five scattered hits and struck out ten. He was opposed on the mound by Barkaus, who let down the Jamaica nine with six hits.

Bushwick scored in the first when Stuccemi walked and stole second. Alpert fanned the next three men to face him but the third strike on Hurlburt got past Catcher O'Farrell and Stuccemi scored on the resulting. Two singles and an error permitted another Bushwick runner to reach home in the third.

Jamaica tallied three runs in the third inning when Saffer and Bloch singled and scored on O'Farrell's triple to deep centre. Alpert sacrificed and O'Farrell scored. Two singles, a pass and a sacrifice enabled Bushwick to tie the score in the fifth.

Two errors and a sacrifice enabled Jamaica to score the winning run in the fifth.

Alwell led the Bushwick attack with two singles in five trips to the plate. O'Farrell collected a single in addition to his three-base blow, while Bloch got two singles for Jamaica.

FRESHMAN STARS QUALIFY.

1 Yale and 2 Harvard Trackmen Are Added to Combined Team.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 10.—Two Harvard freshmen and one Yale freshman were added to the combined Harvard and Yale track forces which are to compete against Oxford-Cambridge track team on July 13 at the Harvard Stadium.

Eugene Record of Harvard qualified by defeating Frank Mardulier of the varsity team in a special high hurdle race. Record won handily in 0:15 4-5. Joe Forbes of Harvard won the mile event in 4:21 4-5, while Joseph Uhlein of Yale beat Kuhn of Harvard in the shot-put with a mark of 43 feet 11¼ inches.

BINGHAM IS INVITED.

Asked to Referee Oxford-Cambridge and Princeton-Cornell Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 10.—William J. Bingham, graduate manager at Harvard University, has been invited by Princeton and Cornell to act as referee of the international track meet between the teams of Oxford-Cambridge and Princeton-Cornell at Travers' Island on July 30, it was announced here this evening by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the Princeton Board of Athletic Control.

Mr. Bingham was a Harvard track captain and holder of the Harvard record for the half mile at 1:54 2-5.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

LACOSTE beat Borotra for the Paris singles championship, and Pennsylvania seems to condone Sunday baseball everywhere except in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, its two big league towns, but "that is not the matter I challenge thee for." The argument is on averages, and it came up over a peculiar point.

Some time back French was pitching for the Pirates and was chased off the mound in the fourth inning by the St. Louis team. It was a free hitting game with biting in the clinches and a good deal of riotous running about the landscape. Fred Fussell came in with two out in the fourth and finished that inning for the Pirates. In their turn at bat, the Pirates banged out seven runs and took a long lead. But in the fifth inning Fussell went straight up into the air, and when Donie Bush took a look at his barograph, the altitude was a new American record, and the Pirate lead had shrunk to three runs with enemy runners still clinging to the bases.

Enter B. Grimes, the Lord of Burleigh and just about the best pitcher in the National League this year. He retired the enemy swiftly and allowed but two hits in pitching the last four and a fraction innings. But when he took the mound, the score was 11 to 6, favor the Pirates. Undoubtedly, he saved the game, but did he win it? The official scorer, with law, precedent and a half dozen other things on his side, says "No!" Then who gets it?

Strange as it may seem, in this case the credit for winning goes to Fred Fussell, who lasted but one inning and was making every effort to give the game away when apprehended in that nefarious act.

Decoding the Chart.

It may be that, on appeal, President Heydler of the National League would give a different answer and would brush aside a general rule in order to see justice done in a particular case, but that has its dangers, too. In the long run the general rule probably works out well enough, and the breaks are about even. But the main point is that the averages are often deceitful and must be decoded to get any useful information from them. An X-ray print is valuable only when it is interpreted properly.

Since won-and-lost averages are often misleading, the big leagues also put in an earned run rating which is the real Bradstreet for a manager with an eye to purchase or trade. A good pitcher with a lowly team can't begin to show his worth in the won-and-lost averages, but on the earned-run roster he should be listed somewhere near his true place.

A fair pitcher with a heavy-hitting team has a chance to roll up a fine won-and-lost average on fair to middling pitching, but it takes a sharpshooter like Vance and Walter Johnson to come up with a respectable score with weak backing. When a pitcher is stingy with hits and miserly with runs one season after another, he can be set down as a Grade A flinger with a natural inclination to mislead an innocent batsman.

A Rough Estimate.

If the won-and-lost averages are somewhat beclouded by the fact that some pitchers are with the Athletics and some are with the Red Sox, there is a rough and ready gauge for ordinary effectiveness. It consists in comparing the total innings pitched with the number of hits allowed, and a weather eye should be kept out for such little details as bases on balls.

With the lively ball and the near-by stands, the hit allowance has been steadily rising of late, but a chap who can keep the enemy firing down to an average of one hit per inning over a long stretch can be chalked up as a fairly effective pitcher. Most of the outstanding pitchers do a little better than that, but one hit per inning will entitle a pitcher to board and lodging and something more than $15 per week with any big league club.

George Uhle held to the hit-per-inning gait in running up nine straight victories for the Detroit Tigers. Hoyt and Pipgras are in the hit-per-inning class and so is Red Faber with the lowly White Sox and Walter Miller with the Indians. Lefty Grove has been a bit better than that, and Rube Walberg has the lowest damage rate among the high-class pitchers in the American League. There are those who will tell you that Rube Walberg comes close to being the best pitcher in the Barnard circuit.

In the National League the hit-per-inning pitchers are Carl Hubbell, Red Lucas, Larry Benton (in spite of his bad won-and-lost average), Buzz McWeeny, Jess Haines of St. Louis, Willoughby and Benge of the Phillies, Charley Root, and men of that order. Grimes has yielded less than a hit per inning, and Dazzy Vance has been averaging only about two hits for every three innings pitched.

Fair Enough.

It can be seen that, taking the hit-per-inning pitchers as a class, a manager couldn't go far wrong in sending one of those fellows to the mound. Some of them are far down in the won-and-lost averages at the moment, but the end of the season will find them higher up.

Fielding averages should be dissected or decoded in the same way. The official standing means little unless the total chances and other bits of evidence are taken into consideration. For instance, Travis Jackson rated third among the shortstops in the National League last year, but he led all the shortstops in total chances even though he spent more time than usual on the bench. In other words, Jackson covers extra territory between second and third, far more than the average run-of-the-mill shortstop, and it might be added that the ground balls he fields in that extra territory are harder chances to get than the ordinary hopper.

The true worth of Taylor Douthit of the Cardinals can be found in the total outfield chances he accepts in the course of a full campaign.

Even in the batting averages, which are fairly trustworthy over a full season, there are certain things that should be scrutinized. Making due allowances for the position in which a player hits and the chances of men being on base when he comes up, the "runs batted-in" item is important. It means hitting in the pinches, and the lads who lead in that department are worth an extra helping of pudding at dinner if not another dollar or two in the pay envelope.

Incidentally, Chick Hafey now leads the National League in driving runs over the plate, and Al Simmons holds a similar position in the Barnard loop. Messrs. Hafey and Simmons are much esteemed by their respective managers, which is just as it should be.

ALEKHINE GAINS WITH L. STEINER

ALEKHINE HAS ADVANTAGE

World's Champion Can Play for Draw if He Chooses—Steiner's Victory Comes After 108 Moves.

BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., June 10.—Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris and Lajos Steiner of Budapest, leaders in the international chess masters' tournament and only half a point apart, won their games in the eighth and semi-final round at the Hotel Laraine this afternoon.

As none of the other contestants can reach either of them, the first and second prizes rest between them. They will meet tomorrow in the final round, when the outcome of their individual encounter will determine the victor of the second Bradley Beach congress. Dr. Alekhine, of course, has the advantage of being able to play for a draw, if he so chooses.

Before the eighth round began, Steiner succeeded in winning his game, adjourned from the first round, with A. Kupchik of New York, after 108 moves—the longest contest in this tournament. Eleven hours and fifty-seven minutes were consumed in playing this game. This placed the Hungarian half a game behind the world champion.

Pairings for Eighth Round.

Fifth Board—Abraham Kupchik, New York, vs. Rafael Cintron, San Juan. English opening.

Dr. Alekhine, after getting control of the centre, pushed a king's side attack vigorously. When he finally advanced his king's bishop's pawn to the sixth rank H. Steiner's position became disorganized, as it was impossible to withstand the onslaught of the champion's seven pieces, all of which were working in unison. When a rook behind, Steiner resigned in twenty-five moves.

Bigelow tried hard to stop the winning career of Lajos Steiner, but the latter was at his best and overlooked nothing in finding a good defense to Bigelow's attack. Steiner turned the tables on him and forced his resignation after twenty-two moves.

The next to win was Fox, who found a flaw in Kevitz's combination involving the sacrifice of a pawn. The Canadian won in twenty-nine moves. He tied Kupchik at 4½ points.

Kupchik also placed a point to his credit at the expense of Cintron, who made a good stand against the national federation champion, but was outplayed in the end. Kupchik won in fifty-two moves.

Turover Defeats Marshall.

When play was resumed in the evening Turover defeated Marshall in 55 moves and moved up into third place with a score of 5—3. Marshall, Fox and Kupchik, 4½—3½ each, are tied for fourth place.

The standing of the players:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
L. Steiner	7	1	Kevitz	4	4
Turover	5	3	H. Steiner	3½	5½
Marshall	4½	3½	Cintron	4	4
Fox	4½	3½	Bigelow	1½	7½

The following are the moves in the games between Marshall and Alekhine and H. Steiner and L. Steiner in the sixth round and Kupchik and Alekhine in the seventh round:

COLUMBIA EIGHTS HOLD TIME TRIALS

Varsity, Jayvees Row Against Watch Over 4 and 3 Mile Routes at Poughkeepsie.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 10.—All the crews on the Hudson River except one that will race in the intercollegiate regatta on June 24 went over their respective distances today, paced or unpaced by other crews, but all swinging their sweeps against the clicking of stop-watches in the hands of their coaches.

Ideal rowing conditions prevailed for the most part, and the result was a burst of time trials that filled the day with more rowing activity than the river has seen for a year.

Rich Glendon and the Columbia crews started things at noon when the junior varsity and then the varsity went over three and four miles in solo flights against the watch. Just after midafternoon Coach Welsh shepherded his Navy plebe crew downstream over two miles. Then old Dick Glendon came along with his varsity and junior varsity and Rusty Callow with Penn finished off the day. Callow's was the only old-fashioned time row, one in which the varsity picked up the juniors at the three miles and the freshmen at the two miles.

Olympic Champions Coming.

With these bits of serious preparation out of the way, Poughkeepsie settled back and waited for the arrival tomorrow of an eight that rolled in on special sleeping cars about this time last year on the way to Holland and the highest honors that the world of rowing affords, an Olympic championship. The diminutive pair of coxswains, Ky Ebright, head coach, and Russ Nagler, freshman coach, are bringing their California squad into town tomorrow afternoon.

They are due at the railroad station at 1 o'clock, which gives them a fair chance to be rigged and on the water before nightfall. California will stay in the Vassar alumni house.

Columbia had the same sort of time trials today as those they went through just before the race in 1928—solo races against the watch alone. Two launches came slamming down over the course with the juniors. As soon as they had finished rowing the launches came back again, one headed upstream to bring down the varsity. The freshmen did not go over the course.

Navy Spins Conditioning Events.

Both crews looked well. They went over the course at a fairly high beat, sometimes in the low thirties, and their shells were running along very nicely. The men finished pretty freshly.

The varsity went over the last mile at quite a high clip despite the fact that it had to burrow through the wash of a ferryboat under the bridge and almost had to stop.

The oarsmen were spacing almost a foot even in that heavy water, and afterward shot the boat to thirty-seven or thirty-eight. Glendon declined to give out any time.

The time rows of the Navy were taken more as conditioning events than as real tests against the watch. The plebes, during the first mile of their course, were not getting a very imposing run on their shell and there seemed to be a bit of a check in it. The varsity and juniors rowed pretty high, with the varsity opening up quite a stretch of water down through the middle miles.

The crew followed quite a fair-sized morning workout and old Dick Glendon did not say at the end whether he would make any experimental changes tomorrow.

The water for all of the trials was pretty fair, and Penn, starting late in the evening, rode a fairly good tide downstream. The fleet looked much better than in the last real time row on Thursday of the past week.

The juniors picked up about a half length at the three-mile mark with the aid of their racing start, but they were not able to add to it. Thrasher, stroking the varsity, managed to get the stroke up into the high thirties for the final quarter mile.

They did the four miles in about twenty-one minutes, which is a full minute better than last week and a real improvement.

Callow has lost, at least temporarily, his freshman stroke, Hupfel, who is suffering from a sore throat. His place was taken by Luskey, a lightweight, who has been rowing in the substitute boat.

COLLEGE YACHTSMEN TO COMPETE TODAY

Corinthians of Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell Will Race Off Oyster Bay.

Corinthians from four of the leading universities will have two days on the water, today and tomorrow, when the second annual intercollegiate regatta will be sailed off Oyster Bay with Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Cornell, the latter a newcomer this year, taking part. The regatta will be held under the direction of the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht Club, members of this organization having lent their 8 Class boats to the visiting collegians. C. Sherman Hoyt, who will be in charge of the regatta, has arranged four races, two each day, with a schedule that provides the skippers and crews with a different boat in each race.

Each college will be provided with two boats and the ones which one college uses in one race will be turned over to another college for the second race and so on through the whole schedule. Princeton, winner of last year's series, will not have the services of Arthur Knapp, captain of last year's team, but in his place the Tigers have Rufus Smith, a Long Islander who has been familiar with boats since boyhood. He will command one of the Princeton boats, and Robert Garland, commodore of the Princeton Yacht Club, will be at the tiller of the other.

Roderick Stevens Jr., another young Long Island junior yachtsman, will have the helm of one of the Cornell boats and Carl L. Waagant probably will handle the other.

For Harvard John Valentine will be in one boat, but his crew and also the skipper of the second boat have not been named. J. L. King, commodore of the Yale Corinthian Yacht Club, will head the delegation of Yale yachtsmen and probably Briggs Cunningham will be one of the party.

CREW DRILLS HELD BY YALE-HARVARD

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 10.—Harvard's and Yale's oarsmen resumed practice on the Thames River course today after a day of recreation.

Yale's morning practice was interrupted more than an hour to allow official photographs to be taken. After officials and athletes had posed afloat and ashore, Coach Leader sent the varsity crews downstream together to the mile and a half mark, when they turned and paddled two miles above quarters. The workout consisted mainly of long stretches with racing starts sandwiched in. Yale's freshmen and combination crews followed and also confined their manoeuvres to paddling short distances, with an occasional brush.

Harvard's varsity crews had comparatively light work this morning, covering four miles on the upper end of the course, but this evening Coach Ed Brown had his charges paddle twice that distance. The first varsity started away from Red Top and waited in midstream for the juniors. Then the pair paddled together toward the railroad bridge and the coach divided his instruction between the two crews.

Harvard has had only one four-mile speed test since coming to Gales Ferry. Yale has had two, and in both tests made a better showing than the Cambridge rivals. The conditions for Yale, however, were more favorable than Harvard's, and the New Haven crew not only rowed at a higher beat but also was paced by the junior crew on the last two miles. While the Yale varsity crew at present is looked upon as the slight favorite, Harvard's performance in the four-mile pull upstream Saturday night shows that the crew is a competent one.

Yale's freshman crew was first on the course in the evening. The 1932 boat was followed by the combination outfit, both coaches choosing the upper waters. The crews are not definitely settled, notwithstanding that the dates of their respective races are little more than a week off.

Among the visitors to Yale's quarters was Mrs. George St. John Sheffield, who built the extension to the clubhouse as a memorial to her husband, and Clarence Mandel, dean of Yale University.

There are two mascots in Yale's camp. Coach Leader has brought his $1,000 prize bulldog "Doug" from New Haven, and it is assisted by Head Boatrigger Frank Holmes's intelligent black terrier "Dan."

DUTCH MASTER

ISSUE MADE ON CREEK WHERE HOOVER FISHES

Maryland Commission to Investigate Report It Has Been Closed to Local Anglers.

BALTIMORE, June 10 (AP).—The reported closing to local fishermen of Hunting Creek, running through the Catoctin Furnace Preserve, where President Hoover frequently goes fishing, will be investigated, Sweepson Earle, Maryland Conservation Commissioner, announced today.

The issue was raised by a letter of protest from James E. Solt, resident of that neighborhood, published in a Frederick newspaper. In the letter Mr. Solt said he and other local fishermen had frequently cleared the stream of débris, but that soon after the Catoctin Furnace land was bought by Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President, the stream was posted.

Mr. Earle, announcing a trip to Western Maryland to look into the matter, added that Mr. Richey had been working with the State Conservation Commission and the Federal Bureau of Fisheries to establish a trout nursery in that section. Should this be done, he added, the production of 100,000 trout annually for the sportsmen seemed more important than the closing of one stream.

Odd Lots

The accumulation of capital requires patience and present sacrifice.

By purchasing Odd Lots of high grade securities, it is not necessary to accumulate a comparatively large sum before one's savings can be conservatively and profitably invested.

BONDS

Months of high money rates have depressed bond prices to levels which now make many issues attractive both on a yield basis and for possibility of price appreciation in the event of a trend toward easier interest rates.

In our recently published lists of bond investment suggestions the average approximate yield for 87 issues offered was 5.78%.

Call money moved up to 8 per cent yesterday for the first time since the middle of May, but quotations for the longer-dated time loans on collateral were slightly lower. Possibly the higher demand-loan rate resulted from drawing in of bank resources with a view to the government financing of June 15. If the experience of March is repeated, the $400,000,000 new short loan will have to be taken mostly by cash subscribers; less than $33,000,000 of the $570,000,000 maturing certificates of indebtedness were tendered three months ago in exchange for the new issue. This is the first time since February that the middle of a month has witnessed higher call-money rates than the beginning.

For no visible reason, unless perhaps the mere fact that prices rose last week, yesterday's stock market drifted slowly downward; total transactions being the smallest of any full day since the middle of last August. Declines ranged only between 2 and 4 points for active shares, but practically all of them moved in the same direction. The United States Steel Corporation reported a decrease of only 128,596 tons in unfilled orders during May, whereas the decrease in the same month of the preceding two years had been respectively 455,000 and 408,000. Considering that actual production of steel in May ran a million tons above 1928 or 1927, this comparison throws a striking light on volume of actual consumption. With all the existing pressure of orders, it is evident that the mills are still able to meet requisitions promptly. It is when unfilled orders increase with sudden rapidity, and premiums for early delivery begin to be talked about, that the "hand-to-mouth buying" system will get its test.

The government's June estimate on the growing wheat crop, which was given out yesterday early in the day and not at the close of business, was received by the grain market with a 4-cent break. This was not because the Department of Agriculture's forecasts were unexpectedly large. On the contrary, the official indication of 622,148,000 bushels for Winter wheat was probably somewhat below the average of private estimates. But the government's figure was high enough to revive the trade's calculations of two weeks ago regarding prospective supplies. It is larger by something over 100,000,000 bushels than the official indication for Winter wheat a year ago. If the estimate were to be verified by the harvest, it would mean a Winter-wheat yield not equaled in any year but one since 1920, and only slightly exceeded in that one exception. As a rule, the June forecast underestimates the crop; in four out of the five past years, the actual yield has been fifteen to eighty million bushels larger than the June indication.

No estimate of the Spring wheat yield was given out yesterday. The crop's assigned condition is higher than the average of the past five years, and an average yield might bring the country's total wheat crop again above the 900,000,000-bushel mark. Private estimates of indicated yield have taken wide range, largely because it is not yet known what acreage was put in while prices for wheat were falling. Thus a good deal of uncertainty still remains regarding the difficult problem of supply and demand on the market for the new crop of 1929. The principal effect of yesterday's government estimates was to bring back the speculative wheat market rather sharply to consideration of actualities, after a week in which its imagination had been running a little wild on prospective "government relief."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Talk of fresh credit stringency had a chilling effect on stock market operations yesterday. Before the call-money rate was marked up from 7 to 8 per cent around 2 P. M., Wall Street had received some intimations that there might be a disturbing flurry before June 15. It was dis-quieting rumors of this character which started the selling on the Stock Exchange. There was no wide-open break in any part of the market, but leading industrial and specialty stocks sold off moderately on rather light offerings. Gains which had recorded in certain stocks in the morning were whittled down; elsewhere prices fell below the closing levels of Saturday. The general list was somewhat unsettled at the close, although here and there a feeble rally was attempted. A half-dozen or so stocks held doggedly to the upside, ignoring the general trend. This small group was led by Commonwealth Power, in which the shorts were reported to have taken severe punishment.

Pace of Trading Slackens.

Brokers, with their organizations expanded to take care of 4,000,000 and 5,000,000-share markets, had some misgivings yesterday as they watched the ticker stutter along at little better than a 2,000,000-share pace. The turnover of 2,201,230 shares was the smallest for a five-hour day since the dog-days of last year when, on Aug. 14, the volume fell to 2,188,831 shares. Gloom hung over some of the commission houses, where, it was said, the business done on Saturday and yesterday was not sufficient to meet overhead expenses. Hope was expressed that the present inactivity soon would end.

The Stiffening of Money.

Contrary to general expectation, call money went to 8 per cent yesterday, following the prevailing rate of 7 per cent last week, with banks calling approximately $20,000,000 in loans yesterday. At the close of business the supply of funds offered on call was virtually exhausted. Time accommodations, however, were described as "going begging," the five-month and six-month maturities being quoted at 8 to 8¼ per cent for the first time in a month, with the shorter maturities unchanged at 8¼ to 8½ per cent. The 8 per cent rate yesterday on call loans was the highest since the first week in May.

Steel Tonnage Calculations.

Although Wall Street was not prepared for the decrease of 123,596 tons disclosed in the United States Steel Corporation's statement of unfinished business on May 31, an explanation was offered readily which supported the theory that new bookings last month were at an unusually high rate. Shipments in May, it was brought out, probably established a new high record for that month, amounting to close to 1,600,000 tons, against 1,425,000 tons in April. On the basis of these figures, it was calculated that new orders in May aggregated about 1,475,000 tons, which is a heavy volume for that month. New orders in April were estimated at about 1,440,000 tons.

The International Settlements Bank.

Discussion in banking circles here yesterday, regarding the Bank for International Settlements as set forth in the text of the experts' report printed on Sunday morning, revealed sentiment as practically unanimous in favor of the bank, since it would take the matter of reparations out of political hands and place it on a strictly business basis. With the next move up to Congress, it was pointed out that the bank could function without American participation, although in that case, only under a heavy handicap. Whether or not shares in the bank would be sold to the public was discussed with interest, but under the terms of the plan this detail has yet to be worked out. The bank is seen as a stabilizer which not only will help matters as between Germany and her creditors, but also as between other nations as well.

Worry for Van Sweringens.

With the time within which the Nickel Plate was to divest itself of its holdings of stock in the Wheeling expiring today, there was a good deal of conjecture in railroad circles yesterday as to what the Van Sweringens would do in the situation. The Interstate Commerce Commission ordered the Nickel Plate to divest itself of these holdings some ninety days ago, but the Nickel Plate has contended that its 17 per cent holdings do not constitute control. Two suggestions were made as to the outcome of the situation—that the commission would grant an extension of time in its divestment order or that the Nickel Plate might dispose of its Wheeling holdings by placing them in the Alleghany Corporation, a Van Sweringen-controlled non-carrier corporation.

Selling the German Bonds.

Bond dealers gave consideration yesterday to practical problems attendant on the marketing here of German reparations bonds. One opinion expressed was that, with such an important issue impending, other foreign financing would have to wait unless it was offered at an interest rate sufficiently high to be unaffected by the yield on a later German reparations issue. In the present circumstances, it was said, the German issue would have to bear interest of 6 per cent or more, but it was pointed out also that the allied governments might be in a position to defray their financial needs temporarily while awaiting a better bond market here, and that thus a better interest rate might be obtained than if the German issue was floated too soon. It was said the bonds would meet few legal-list requirements, and that for this reason buying would be from banks and private investors rather than from institutions.

MONEY.

Monday, June 10, 1929.

Stock Exchange call money was firm, a light supply coupled with good demand sending rate to 8 per cent in early afternoon after renewals had been arranged at 7. About $20,000,000 was called. Maturity money for longer dates was easier, quotation for five-months yielding ¼ to 8@8¼ per cent, while short dates were unchanged at 8¼@8½. Offerings were limited, one effect of which was an increase in bidding. Acceptances and commercial paper were unchanged.

GAINS IN LATIN AMERICA

Net Earnings Were $16,594,315—Surplus $5,816,972, Against $5,916,162 in 1927.

The investment account of the American and Foreign Power Company, Inc., increased $177,379,212 in 1928, according to the pamphlet report, to be issued today. The company is the subsidiary of the Electric Bond and Share Company. Total investments at the close of 1928 were $285,065,840, against $108,186,620 at the beginning of the year.

The company is the largest American holder of foreign public utility systems, with properties mostly in South America. It also recently bid for the electric power and light system of the International Settlement in Shanghai, China. Negotiations are now pending for taking over the property about July 1. The value of this investment is not included in the figures given.

Last year the company's holdings in Latin-American countries were increased in Mexico, Chile, Brazil, Argentina, Colombia and Costa Rica. The principal acquisitions were the public utility interests in Chile and Mexico previously controlled by Whitehall Electric Investments, Ltd., of London, and the Argentine holdings of the Atlas Light and Power Company, Ltd.

Gross earnings in 1928 of subsidiaries controlled at the end of the year were $30,112,578, and net earnings were $15,594,315. These were the earnings for parts of the calendar year during which the respective subsidiaries were actually controlled by American and Foreign Power.

The balance of earnings applicable to the common stock, after all prior charges, expenses, reserves and dividends, amounted to $1,528,009, compared with $856,364 for the previous year. The deductions figured include dividends on second preferred stock, Series A, applicable to the period, whether paid or unpaid.

Gross earnings of all companies in the system for the period ended on April 1, including companies acquired since the end of 1928, amounted to about $65,000,000, and net earnings for the system for the same period were $33,000,000. The proportion of these net earnings which would have accrued to the company if they had been controlled for the full twelve months is in excess of $26,000,000.

UTILITY TO OFFER $25,000,000 STOCK

CHANGE OF POLICY IN VIEW

Management to Decrease Investment Operations and Strengthen Position as Holding Company.

Financing involving about $25,000,000 will be undertaken soon by the General Gas and Electric Corporation. The company is planning to market a new issue of 250,000 shares of $6 cumulative preferred stock, which will be convertible into Class A common stock of the corporation.

Full control of this company was acquired this Spring by the Associated Gas and Electric Company. It is today both a holding and an investment company. Although the New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania subsidiaries of the General Gas system have been consolidated with the Associated system in these States, about 27 per cent of General's consolidated assets consist of public utility properties.

These are the Lexington Water Power Company, the Florida Public Service Company and the Broad River Power Company, rendering electric, gas and other utility services to more than 44,000 consumers in important South Carolina and Florida communities.

General Gas and Electric also has investments in the securities of public utility properties, including Associated Gas and Electric, which represent slightly more than half of its consolidated assets.

It is the intention of the management in future to decrease General's operations of an investment company nature and to strengthen its position as a holding company through the purchase of securities representing interest in and control of additional operating utility properties.

Capitalization of the General company and its subsidiaries as of April 30, 1929, after giving effect to the proposed financing, will consist of $44,021,600 of funded debt and preferred stocks, taken at liquidation value, and 33,524 shares of minority common stocks of subsidiary companies; 286,000 shares of General Gas $6, $7 and $8 preferred stocks, 750,612 shares of Class A common stock and 399,091 shares of Class B common stock.

An offering will be made soon by a syndicate headed by the Harris Forbes Corporation and including Lee, Higginson & Co., Kidder, Peabody & Co., Brown Brothers & Co., E. H. Rollins & Sons and Edward B. Smith & Co.

Doremus & Co. Open New Office.

Doremus & Co., advertising agents, announced yesterday the opening of an office at 1,520 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, which will take over the advertising business formerly conducted by the Philadelphia News Bureau.

TREASURY ISSUE HEAVILY OVERBID

Books Are Closed on 9-Month $400,000,000 Debt Certificates Paying 5⅛ Per Cent.

ALLOCATION IS UNDER WAY

Mail Offers Arriving Today Will Be Too Late—Subscription Is Called "Very Satisfactory."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—There was a heavy oversubscription received for the $400,000,000 issue of nine-months treasury certificates of indebtedness offered on Friday morning, paying 5⅛ per cent interest, or one-eighth per cent above the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Banks.

Secretary Mellon announced that the books would be closed at the close of business today. Exact figures could not be obtained at the Treasury, but it was said that the subscriptions were very satisfactory and that details probably would be made available tomorrow.

Subscriptions which fail to reach a Federal Reserve Bank or branch, or the Treasury Deparmtent, before the close of business today will not be accepted, the practice of accepting mail subscriptions received the morning following the closing of the books not being made effective in the current offering. This was because the Treasury had to begin allocation of the subscriptions tonight to distribute the offering in time to meet the June 15 maturities.

In March the Treasury quoted but 4¾ per cent on an issue of $475,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness and this issue was held back until the last moment in the hope that open market rates would break to lower levels. Instead, however, the rate on call money jumped to 12 per cent and total subscriptions to the March issue were only $323,000,000, or but $38,000,000 more than the amount asked.

Since that time there have been reports that industries and banking institutions which in the past have made bids considerably in excess of the amount of the securities they desired, because certificates are rationed to heavy investors, intended to bid only for the total they actually hoped to obtain, if government interest rates were held down. This was one reason why the Treasury jumped the interest rate to 5⅛ per cent on the current offering.

This course has been followed frequently in short-term issues during the period of tight money in recent months, the need for hasty distribution being caused by the face that the Treasury has withheld offerings until the last minute possible, in the hope that conditions in the open market would be more favorable.

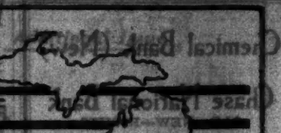
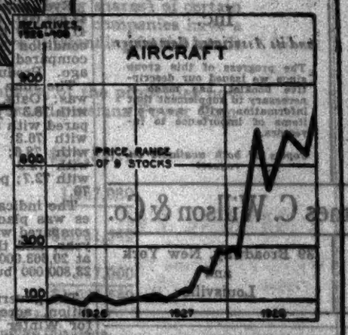
MICHIGAN INDUSTRIAL GIANT





THE WORLD GROWS WINGS

Surmounting limits of time and distance . . . . . making neighbors of nations and continents . . . . . giving wings to transportation.

AS EARLY as 1926 the United States set a record of 6,000,000 miles flown in commerce during a single year, surpassing all other nations. This year aircraft production is placed at three times the 1928 output. Michigan manufacturers of engines and motor parts form one of the major sources of supply for powering these planes.

Michigan contributed the first successful Diesel engine for flying, instituted the first exclusive air passenger service in America, has twenty-one aeronautical manufacturers, while five important Michigan motor companies supply aircraft engines.

Through common stock investments the public participates in the growth of American industry. Careful study and long association with many types of financing place Keane, Higbie & Co., in a position to render expert counsel both to industry requiring new capital and to those seeking sound investments in securities of the Middle West.

WHEAT PRICES DROP AS SELLING SETS IN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 10.—Reports from Washington of possible difficulty in the passage of the farm relief bill, combined with better crop conditions in Canada and Argentina, led to general selling of wheat futures today, with a decline of as much as 4¼ cents from Saturday's finish. The close was on a moderate rally. Net losses were 3½ to 3⅝ cents. Winnipeg was off 3⅝ to 3¾ cents. Liverpool closed ½ penny higher and Buenos Aires was 2¾ cents lower.

There was some export business in domestic wheat, as prices at the Gulf are well above a parity with Argentine grain. Sales of 500,000 bushels of Manitobas were reported at the seaboard. Sentiment is decidedly mixed, and with the favorable outlook for new crops in North America it is felt that it will take either drastic announcements as to farm relief or deterioration in the crops to bring about a material advance. The technical position was greatly weakened by the recent advance of 14¾ to 14¾ cents from the low point, and the large surplus of grain in export countries still remains unchanged.

The visible supply decreased 1,940,000 bushels for the week, and the total is 94,427,000 bushels, against 96,427,000 bushels the previous week and 47,068,000 bushels last year.

Primary arrivals today 1,440,000 bushels, week ago 1,192,000 bushels, last year 712,000 bushels. Shipments 855,000 bushels, week ago 894,000 bushels, last year 402,000 bushels.

Weather conditions over the week-end were decidedly favorable for the corn crop and there was increased pressure on the December, which broke 3¼ cents from Saturday's finish. July was bought early by shorts and by spreaders, who sold wheat and rye, but when the latter buying was completed the near-by future dropped rather sharply. The finish was 2¾ cent to 2⅝ cents lower, with December leading.

Oats closed 1 to 1⅝ cents lower. Rye was 3¼ to 3⅝ cents lower, with trade light.

The spot basis here was steady to ½ cent lower. The visible supply decreased 1,594,000 bushels for the week and is 12,665,000 bushels against 14,259,000 bushels the previous week and 23,327,000 bushels last year.

Report of the Industry for May Shows Increase in Production and Also in Stocks.

Absence of rain west of the Mississippi River, where temperatures were the highest of the season, and a sharp break in wheat influenced the course of prices on the Cotton Exchange yesterday. After an early loss of 10 points or more the market steadied for several hours under an extremely light volume of business, but the action of securities resulting from higher money rates increased selling pressure, during the afternoon and final prices showed a loss of 14 to 16 points on the day.

The figures for May issued by the Textile Association after the close of the market showing sales as 81.5 per cent of production, which was 10 per cent better than during the previous month. Stocks increased 4.3 per cent, while there was a decrease of 11 per cent in unfilled orders at the close of the month.

Washington announced that a report on weevil would be issued at 5 P. M., on Friday, Daylight Saving Time, and as private advices have announced an unusually large number of insects, owing to rainy conditions in the last six weeks, professional operators yesterday covered contracts on the decline. Spot houses continued the buying of July contracts at prices 18 and 19 points under October, which held the list within a range of a few points until the last hour. Then the decline in wheat, an estimate of the cotton acreage and a forecast of the report on the textile business caused liquidation by commission houses, while a loss of a dollar a bale in New Orleans brought selling from that quarter.

FOODS AND DRUGS IN TOBACCO MERGER

ASSETS TO BE $250,000,000

Program Contemplates About 4,500 Stores—Special Drive on Trade-Marked Goods.

A far-reaching combination of food, drug and tobacco store chains, with international ramifications, is being formed by the organizers of the United Stores Corporation, projected holding company for the United Cigar Stores Company, Tobacco Products Corporation, and Union Tobacco Company, it was learned yesterday from a representative of the new corporation.

Announcement of a plan for amalgamating the three tobacco companies into the United Stores Corporation was made on Sunday. It disclosed that the terms on which stock of the three subsidiaries will be exchanged for the stock of the parent company would leave a large portion of the latter's 15,000,000 shares of common stock available for use in acquiring other companies.

The plan of expansion of the directors of the new corporation, if successful, will result in the acquisition of several independent chains of stores, including at least one food chain and at least one large Canadian chain.

Sales Will Be Doubled.

Several hundred stores will be added to the corporation's system, and its retail sales, which at present consist solely of the sales of the United Cigar Stores Company, will be more than doubled.

The total assets of the corporation upon the completion of this program would be at least $250,000,000, compared with assets of $161,000,000 when the initial step—the merger of the three tobacco companies—has been concluded.

Canadian interests, which will be represented on the board of the new company by Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, and R. W. Jameson, recently chairman of the Dominion Stores, Ltd., of Canada, will purchase a large block of stock in the company from Charles A. Whelan and G. J. Whelan, the brothers who have controlled the three tobacco companies for many years.

The Whelans have been eager for some time to take a less active part in the management of their properties. It was said, however, that they would still have a large financial interest in United Stores after disposing of a part of their holdings to Canadian bankers.

Bankers' Names Withheld.

Identified with the Canadians in financing the new enterprise will be several American bankers. While names of the latter were not made public, a spokesman for the company said there was no foundation for the report that J. P. Morgan & Co. were connected with the enterprise.

Indications of the United Stores Corporation's plan to enter the food-retailing field, as well as Canadian merchandising, were contained in the announcement of the names of the directors of the new company.

Of the nine directors already announced, five are heads of large food companies. They are George K. Morrow, who is slated to head the new company and is chairman of Gold Dust Corporation and president of Standard Milling Company and the Best Foods Company, Inc.; his brother, Frederick K. Morrow, director of Gold Dust, Consolidated Bakeries, Flour Mills of America, Inc., and the Bank of Toronto; George M. Moffett, vice president and director of Corn Products Refining Company; Thomas H. McInnerney, president of National Dairy Products, and W. A. Black, president of Ogilvie Flour Mills.

These men, it was said, will direct the company's expansion into the retailing of trade-marked food products. The company already controls United Cigar Stores' chain of 1,200 tobacco stores and, through the United Cigar, the Whelan chain of several hundred drug stores. Expansion in the drug field through acquisition of other chains is expected. In addition, the company will enter the luncheonette chain field more extensively through the addition of lunch counters to many of the United Cigar stores.

The company's expansion in chain-store merchandising will be directed largely by Mr. Jameson, who is slated for the position of executive vice president, it was said. Mr. Jameson has had thirty years of experience in the chain-store business in Canada, merchandising food and other products. He resigned recently as chairman of the board of Dominion Stores, Ltd.

When the program has been completed it is expected that United Stores Corporation will control about 4,500 stores in this country and Canada.

Schulte-United 5 Cent to $1 Stores.

Schulte-United 5 cent to $1 Stores, Inc., report sales for May totaling $1,290,620, an increase of 31 per cent over sales for April. Total sales for the first five months were $4,606,339.

In addition there will be outstanding in the hands of the public $272,500 purchase money mortgages of the Company and $300,000 of funded debt and preference stock of subsidiary companies.

Security: These Bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by a first mortgage on all fixed properties of the Company now owned and to be presently acquired, subject to $272,500 of purchase money mortgages. Based upon an appraisal by Messrs. Victor A. Dorsey and Company and plus subsequent capital expenditures to April 30, 1929 and expenditures for properties to be acquired in connection with present financing, the fixed properties subject to the mortgage have an estimated reproduction cost new including going concern value, less depreciation, of not less than $22,000,000.

The Company also owns all the outstanding common stocks (except Directors' qualifying shares) of certain subsidiary companies which are not pledged under the mortgage, the properties of which companies have a value, appraised as above, in excess of $2,000,000. These subsidiary companies have outstanding in the hands of the public $300,000 of funded debt and preference stock.

Earnings: The following is a statement of earnings, as reported by the Company, of the properties now owned, including those to be acquired in connection with present financing, by Texas-Louisiana Power Company and subsidiaries for the twelve months ended March 31, 1929:

Operating Expenses, Maintenance, Taxes (except Federal Income Taxes) and Prior Charges	1,867,080
Net Earnings applicable to Interest, Amortization of Bond Discount, Depreciation and Federal Income Tax	$1,751,549
Annual Interest Requirements on First Mortgage Six Per Cent Gold Bonds, Series A, (including this issue)	717,000

Net earnings as shown above were more than 2½ times the amount required for annual interest charges on the First Mortgage Bonds to be presently outstanding, including this issue.

Purpose of Issue: The proceeds of this financing will be used to reimburse the Company in part for construction expenditures, for the acquisition of the properties of Texas-New Mexico Power Company and/or for other corporate purposes.

Management: The Company (subject to the control of its Board of Directors) is under the control of General Water Works and Electric Corporation through ownership of all its outstanding common stock. The properties are operated and supervised by men of long and active experience in public utility activities.

Three-Year Convertible Seven Per Cent Secured Gold Notes

Dated February 1st, 1929 Due February 1st, 1933

Principal and semi-annual interest (February 1st and August 1st) payable at the office of the Trustee. Coupon Notes in denominations of $1,000 and $500. Registerable as to principal. Redeemable as a whole or in part on any interest date, upon thirty days' published notice, to and including August 1st, 1930, at 105 and accrued interest, and thereafter and prior to maturity at 101 and accrued interest. Interest payable without deduction for that portion of any normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of two per cent. Refund of certain State taxes upon timely and proper application, as provided in the Trust Agreement.
The Century Trust Company of Baltimore, Trustee.

The Company: The Ohio Kentucky Gas Company, incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, owns 45 producing gas wells and controls through lease the gas and oil rights in approximately 45,000 acres of land in Boyd, Greenup and Lawrence Counties, Ky., Wayne County, W. Va., and Lawrence and Scioto Counties, Ohio. The Company is now drilling additional wells and constructing gathering lines and pipe lines connecting with the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation System which serves a large part of the States of Kentucky, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Markets and Production: The United Fuel Gas Company, an important subsidiary of Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation, has contracted to purchase for a period of 15 years terminating December 31st, 1943, all gas which can be produced and delivered from approximately 15,000 acres of land of the Ohio Kentucky Gas Company located in Boyd and Greenup Counties, Ky., and Wayne County, W. Va., during the winter periods, without limitation as to amount, and will take during each summer period 50 per cent of the amount taken during the preceding winter period. It is estimated that by 1930 production from that portion of the acreage covered by the contract will be at the rate of 12,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day during the winter period.

The earnings from this contract alone as estimated by Messrs. Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee, Geologists and Engineers, New York City, are more than sufficient to amortize all of the Company's outstanding mortgage indebtedness prior to maturity.

Security: These Notes, in the opinion of counsel, will be a direct obligation of the Ohio Kentucky Gas Company and will be secured by pledge with the Trustee of an equal principal amount of General Mortgage Seven Per Cent Gold Bonds (Convertible), due February 1st, 1939.

The properties of the Company, including working capital and funds deposited in escrow for extensions and developments, have been estimated by Messrs. Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee, New York City, to have a value of $2,648,954 which value, after deducting $1,500,000 principal amount of outstanding First Mortgage 6.50 Per Cent Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, represents more than $2,250 for each $1,000 Note.

Earnings: Messrs. Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee have estimated that for the first three years of full operation beginning January 1st, 1930, average annual Net Earnings, after operating expenses, maintenance, taxes (not including Federal Income Tax), interest and average fund sinking fund on outstanding First Mortgage Bonds, will amount to $346,566, as compared with maximum annual interest requirements of this issue of $35,000. This estimate does not include earnings which may be derived from more than 28,000 additional acres of land controlled by the Company in Lawrence and Scioto counties, Ohio and Lawrence County, Ky., which are not included under the United Fuel Gas Company contract.

Conversion: These Notes are convertible, at any time on or before the redemption thereof, into a like principal amount of General Mortgage Seven Per Cent Gold Bonds (Convertible) of the Company, due February 1st, 1939. Each $1,000 General Mortgage Bond is convertible at any time prior to redemption into 60 shares of common stock of the Company if such conversion is effected on or before February 1st, 1931; 50 shares if thereafter and on or before February 1st, 1935; and 40 shares if thereafter and on or before February 1st, 1939. Each $500 Bond will have proportionate conversion privileges. Proper adjustment will be made for accrued interest. The terms of conversion of the Notes and the General Mortgage Bonds are more fully set forth in the circular describing this issue.

Management: The Ohio Kentucky Gas Company, upon completion of developments under the supervision of Messrs. Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee, will be managed by the Union Management and Engineering Corporation, which corporation is also directing the operations of other gas properties serving a population estimated to be in excess of 600,000.

Gas reserves, valuation, estimated earnings and other engineering features have been reported upon by Messrs. Brokaw, Dixon, Garner & McKee, Geologists and Engineers, New York City. Legal matters are under the supervision of Messrs. Chapman and Cutler, New York City; Messrs. Kenna, Earhart and Rovercomb, Charleston, W. Va.; and Messrs. Martin & Smith, Catlettsburg, Ky. These Notes are offered for delivery when, as and if issued, subject to the approval of counsel and acceptance by us. Initial delivery may be made in the form of Trustee's Receipts or temporary Notes exchangeable for definitive Notes upon notice.

SAYS BANKS FAIL TO AID BILL MARKET

Editorial Asserts Customers Are Lost Through Competition—Larger Volume for New Season Seen.

The failure of most of the large banks of the country to go to the assistance of the American Acceptance Council in its campaign, which was started six months ago, to broaden the scope of the acceptance market, is criticized in the leading editorial of the current issue of the council's bulletin published yesterday. Although some interior banks have made substantial purchases, it is said results as a whole have been disappointing, particularly in view of the fact that of the $2,500,000,000 of bills marketed since the first of the year the market has had to lean heavily on foreign purchases of dollar acceptances, now totaling more than $500,000,000.

Says Banks Cut Into Market.

The bulletin calls special attention to the practice of many banks in regularly selling bills to their corresponding banks from their own portfolios at the dealers' buying rate, thus cutting through dealers to customers who would otherwise come into the open market. Such practices, it is said, are growing and if continued may seriously affect the future of the bill market.

"When on Dec. 12 it was agreed that the Federal Reserve System should reduce its volume of bill holdings the total outstanding volume was only slightly below the $1,200,000,000 mark. Of this amount the Federal Reserve Banks held for their own account $894,000,000, or about 45 per cent. On May 29 the system reported holdings for its own account of only $117,000,000 out of a total estimated volume of $1,080,000,000, or about 11 per cent. Thus, while the total volume of bills has dropped approximately $205,000,000 since mid-December, the Federal Reserve banks have reduced their holdings by $477,000,000, leaving $272,000,000 to be accounted for.

"Bills purchased by the Federal Reserve System for the account of foreign correspondents have increased from $284,000,000 on Dec. 12 to $385,000,000 on May 29, a gain of $101,000,000, which leaves more than $170,000,000 that must have found lodgement in the outside open market. Again the foreign investor comes into the picture and takes from this amount probably not less than $80,000,000, which leaves only about $90,000,000 that can actually be called increased sales to American banks and others.

Foreign Investors' Holdings.

"Total holdings of foreign investors through private bankers and others and not reported in the Federal Reserve statements are now estimated to be about $175,000,000. Even if we grant that foreign central banks will continue to carry large balances in this country and we assume that as long as our bill rates are anywhere near their present high level these balances will be drawn on for bill investments, it does not at all affect the responsibility of our own banks to a bill market, congested at all times with the acceptance obligations of the very banks that are only occasional buyers.

"The large banks in New York and elsewhere have constant use for funds and must aim to secure the largest rate return, but there is a growing belief in some of these banks that a portfolio of prime bills, even if the yield is comparatively low, is a good thing for a bank to have on hand. This is notably true with the private bankers and the New York branches of foreign banks whose total holdings are now more than seven times the holdings of all the New York City national banks and trust companies combined.

"We shall soon come to the beginning of a new acceptance season with a prospect of a greater volume of bills than ever before and a breaking year. The seed which has been sown should bring dealers a good return in increased sales and access to a greater buying clientele, but in any event they should be allowed to have the benefit of every bill transaction that the banks can turn their way."

UTILITIES CONTINUE AS CURB FEATURES

Southeastern Power and Penn-Ohio Edison made sharp gains on the Curb Market yesterday, but there were also substantial losses in the utilities group and in the market as a whole advances were offset by recessions.

Southeastern Power closed up 10 points and Southeastern Power warrants closed up 10½ points. Penn-Ohio Edison closed up 9¾ points and the warrants gained 3 points. The B warrants, however, lost 4½ points. American Superpower B closed down 13 points.

Other features were Aluminum Company up 4 points; Associated Gas, down a point; Bristol Meyers, down 2¼ points; Federal Water A, down 2¼ points; Grigsby Grunow, down 2¾ points; Lerner Stores, up 3½ points, and Standard Power & Light, up 5¾ points.

FOREMAN BANK EXPANDS.

Raises Capital From $5,000,000 to $6,000,000—Plans Branch Here.

Stockholders of the Foreman National Bank of Chicago at a special meeting voted to increase the capital stock from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 by the issuance of 10,000 shares of $100 par value each. The new stock will be offered to present shareholders at $900 a share on the basis of one new share for each five now held. Of the proceeds of this financing, $100 of each share will go to capital account and $500 to the capital of the Foreman Securities Company, the bank's security affiliate.

According to Harold E. Foreman, president of the Foreman banks, the securities company will engage in the wholesaling and retailing of securities on a large scale, replacing the present bond department of the bank. According to present plans, a branch will be established in New York City and in other financial centres. The securities company will move into its enlarged quarters in the Foreman National Bank Building, 33 North La Salle Street, about July 1.

ERIE BANKS TO MERGE.

Security Savings and Trust and People's Unite—Third to Join.

Special to The New York Times.

ERIE, Pa., June 10.—A merger of the Security Savings and Trust Company and the People's Bank and Trust Company of Erie was announced today by Robert J. Moorhead, president of the Security Savings, who will be president of the merged institution. E. W. Nicheris is to be chairman of the new board. The Eighteenth Street branch of the People's Bank will be continued.

H. C. McAughan, vice president and executive head of the Erie Trust Company, today made the following statement, which he refused to amplify: "The Erie Trust Company announces that the Security Savings and Trust Company, with the approval of the directors of the People's Bank and Trust Company, has acquired options from the Downing interests and other owners of their stock." It was said in financial circles that a merger of all three banks would be completed this week.

DOWNTOWN OFFICE FOR HARRIMAN BANK

Reversing the policy of other banking and commercial institutions which follow the "uptown trend" of business in opening new houses and branches, the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company is expanding southward and will open an additional banking house next Monday, June 17, in the Chamber of Commerce Building, 59 Liberty Street, it announced yesterday. The bank said the new offices would not be "a mere branch."

"It is the intention," the statement read, "to make the downtown banking house of much greater significance, as the directorate of the bank includes many names identified with important mercantile houses, prominent Stock Exchange firms and financial interests in the Wall Street district and adjacent neighborhood."

The Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, which up to the present has had only one office, has leased quarters on the ground floor and basement of the Chamber of Commerce Building.

J. L. Turner, until recently cashier of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, and for many years connected with that institution, has been elected vice president and cashier and will have charge of the downtown offices. When the Liberty Street institution is opened it will have a staff of twenty-five or thirty and the staff will be enlarged as expansion warrants.

While the officials would not state definitely that the opening of the offices in the Wall Street district marked the bank's entrance into branch banking, they admitted that it was logical to expect that branches might be opened, but the bank had no sites in mind at this time, they added.

The announcement, giving reasons for the move, continues:

"The uptown movement of trade and finance, while it consists in large part of branch houses, nevertheless is composed, in no small measure, of new establishments. Downtown real estate has not suffered any loss, and rental demand for expansion as well as for new business is active. The Wall Street neighborhood remains a centre for lawyers, great industrial corporations, insurance, shipping, railroads, jewelry, leaf tobacco, leather and many other important commercial interests which the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company designs to serve."

The Harriman National Bank and Trust Company was founded on March 20, 1911, as successor to the Night and Day Bank and was known then as the Harriman National Bank. Joseph W. Harriman, president, was a member of the group that organized it. It operates at night as well as in the day for the convenience of depositors who are night workers or who otherwise find day banking hours inconvenient.

The capital and surplus of the bank total about $2,500,000 and its deposits about $40,000,000.

On Prudential Insurance Board.

Robert H. Bradley, treasurer of the Prudential Insurance Company of America since Jan. 1, 1928, was elected a vice president at a meeting of directors yesterday. He started with the Prudential in August, 1918, as assistant manager of the bond department.

SUES BANKERS FOR $150,000

Seckendorff Demands Commission in $15,000,000 Wardman Financing

A suit for $150,000 commissions on the sale of $15,000,000 worth of securities of the Wardman Hotel and other realty holdings in Washington was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Theodore W. Seckendorff against the investment banking houses of Halsey Stuart & Co., A. B. Leach & Co., William R. Compton & Co., Hambleton & Co. and Rogers, Caldwell & Co.

The plaintiff alleges that in November, 1926, he brought to the attention of Rogers, Caldwell & Co. information as to the financing of the Wardman properties and negotiations were then begun by this company and others to arrange the financing.

Mr. Seckendorff says that it was agreed that as commission he was to receive 1 per cent of all the securities purchased by the bankers in connection with the financing, and that subsequently the other defendants became associated in the enterprise and that all are now liable to him. He alleges that in September last the defendants offered the $15,000,000 of Wardman securities for sale to the public.

"WALL STREET and WASHINGTON"
by JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE
Princeton University—Author of "Stabilization of Prices"
"Book of the hour", "A vivid analysis of a living issue"
HERE is a conflict of titanic proportions with the Federal Reserve Board and a group of radical senators on one side and the greatest financial district on earth on the other.
The issues in this struggle are the right of Wall Street to be master of its own destiny and the right of the Federal Reserve Board to dictate the course of stock prices and member bank credit practice . . . i.e., arbitrary control of the rediscount rate.

UNFILLED ORDERS FOR STEEL DECLINE

Unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation at the end of May totaled 4,304,167 tons, showing a decrease of 123,596 tons from the 4,427,763 tons on the books on April 30. The decrease was somewhat larger than anticipated. It is said that there would probably have been an increase if consumers had not been clamoring for deliveries, with the result that shipments were very heavy. Shipments in May established a new high record and are estimated at about 1,600,000 tons. This compares with 1,425,009 in April and 1,450,000 in March. Allowing for a decrease as reported, new business last month must have been about 1,475,000 tons.

It had been freely predicted in Wall Street that operations would come down sharply with the beginning of May, but the urgent needs of consumers kept production at a high rate and the total now on the books assures active operations for some time.

The United States Steel Corporation has entered June with much more favorable conditions than existed in the past two years. The outlook is considered encouraging because practically all the business now on hand is considered "firm" and not subject to cancellation. It has been this fact that has helped the United States Steel Corporation and many other units of the steel industry to establish a new high production record in May.

Movements were irregular in the over-the-counter market yesterday. Bank and trust company shares turned quiet after a fairly strong opening. Insurance shares were slightly easier. Industrials, chain stores, bonds, communication issues and sugar stocks were quiet.

Among the bank and trust company issues, gains were shown by Chase, Park new, Lefcourt Normandie, Midwood, Sixth Avenue and Murray Hill. There was an easier tone to Hibernia Trust, County, Bank of New York and Trust, Times Square, American Union, City and Chatham Phenix.

In the insurance section, losses were marked against Aetna Life, Providence-Washington, National Fire, City Home, Aetna Fire, Springfield and Niagara. Declines in the industrial group were checked against Technicolor. Central Distributors common, Smith Corona Typewriter and others.

H. C. Bohack common and J. C. Penney new were the leaders among the chain store stocks showing declines. There was a better tone to I. Miller common and preferred and New York Merchandise common.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Financial Statements Issued by Industrial and Other Organizations.

Railway Express Agency.

The Railway Express Agency, Inc., formed by the railroads to acquire the business of the former American Railway Express Company, issued its first monthly report of earnings yesterday. Its contract with the railroads covers operations for substantially all lines for twenty-five years and provides that it shall collect the express revenues and other income incident to its operations, disburse for its expenses, taxes, interest and charges, and pay the remainder, called "rail transportation revenue," to the railways.

Charges for transportation of the agency in March were $24,942,061 and other revenues and income $340,056, making total revenues and income $24,982,108, against $20,818,228 earned by the American Railway Express in February. Rail transportation revenues or payments to carriers under express privileges, after expenses, taxes, interest and other deductions of the agency, were $13,806,128, there being no comparable total in the American Railway Express statement. Net income of American Railway Express was after express privilege payments to the railroads, but these payments are now included as rail transportation revenues paid directly to the carriers.

UNITED CORPORATION EXTENDS HOLDINGS

The United Corporation now owns a small minority in the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, it was learned yesterday. The former company was organized early in January, by Morgan, Drexel and Bonbright interests to acquire minority holdings in large utilities on the Eastern seaboard. The latter was formed last month by the Bonbright group to obtain substantial holdings in other utility systems operating in the South and Middle West.

United Corporation's interest in the newer holding company was acquired through an exchange of certain small holdings in Southeastern Power and Light Company, Commonwealth Power Corporation, and Penn-Ohio Edison Company in accordance with the private offer made to owners of such shares. For this reason, United Corporation's ownership of stock in Commonwealth and Southern is small.

Market reports that the United Corporation's offering of rights, through which it will derive about $42,500,000, was for the purpose of increasing its investment in Commonwealth and Southern, were erroneous, it has been pointed out, as there would be no object to be gained by such a transaction. Both companies are owned by approximately identical interests and in their expansion will undoubtedly take in additional properties rather than invest in each other, it is said.

Reports that a substantial short interest was trapped in Commonwealth Power yesterday appeared to be confirmed by the action of the stock. Opening at 179¾ and sagging to 175, the stock rose sharply to 206, a gain of 33 points, and ended at 198, up 18 points on the day. Shorts had difficulty in covering, it was reported.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

PARIS REPORTS NEW BUYING

Early Weakness on German Boerse Followed by Some Recovery—Potash Shares in Demand.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 10.—The Stock Exchange showed improvement in most departments today, with the biggest volume of business since the election took place. British funds were comparatively firm despite the weakness of sterling exchange, which declined to $4.84 27-32. The 4 per cent funding loan was an exception, falling ¼ to 87¾.

Anglo-American securities behaved erratically as a result of Saturday's fluctuations in Wall Street. His Master's Voice Graphophone hardened to £17⅝, but Radio Corporation took a sharp decline of $5 to $84. Columbia Graphophone declined ¼ to £13¼. Marconi's Wireless was strong, rising 6d to 76s 6d. Leading tobacco shares improved, while motor issues showed more confidence in the new government's intentions regarding the automobile tariff. Oils were buoyant on the eve of the Governors' meeting in the United States to deal with the conservation of oil supplies. Anglo-American Oil rose 1-32 to £3¼ and Anglo-Persian rose 5-32 to £4 21-32. Rhodesian Coppers also were booming, with the public flocking to buy shares. Rhodesian Anglo-American advanced 3-32 to £17⅛, while Roan Antelope gained 7-32 to 22⅝. South African mine shares were in strong demand. De Beers advanced ¼ to £13¾.

Money was plentiful in Lombard Street, with fresh over-night advances offered at from 4 to 3¾ per cent. Discount rates were steady in a quiet market. The Bank of England announced the sale of £10,230 in bar gold.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 10.—The Bourse opened strong today, remained so throughout most of the session and moderated only slightly toward the close. New buying brought interesting advances. Coal shares showed strong resistance, while there were irregularities in the chemical group. Rio Tinto closed at 70.90.

French rentes showed little change, closing as follows: 3s, 74.40; 1918 4s, 89.25; 1920 amortizable 5s, 106.50; 1925 4s, 99; 1926 4s, 103.70; 1927 amortizable 6s, 109.50.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 10.—The tendency on today's Boerse was uneven. After a firm opening, which was attributed mainly to the satisfactory monthly report of the Reichsbank, the market began to decline. Hugenberg's American interview and the meager result of the Reich's internal loan—300,000,000 marks issued for subscription and only 177,170,000 underwritten—were declared responsible for the weakening tendency. In the second hour the situation improved and several specialities reached again the highest quotations of the session, which toward the close, however, were not wholly maintained.

Among the favorites were again potash shares, Salzdetfurth, Rhenish and Westphalian electric shares, Bemberg and Sloehr in the artificial silks group, and Daimler and Bavarian Motor Works.

The Secretary (Mr. A. H. Hewett) read the Notice convening the Meeting.

The Chairman then addressed the Shareholders, as follows:

In presenting the Report and Accounts for the past year you will naturally expect me to say something as regards the progress of this business.

In view of all the encouraging reports appearing in the Press as to the recovery of prosperity in the Oil business, nothing would please me more than to tell you to-day that this Company had been able during the past year to return to a full measure of participation as to profits.

Under the conditions prevailing in the U. K. Markets during 1928, however, that was not possible, and we shall have to wait at least another year for a satisfactory financial return.

The trouble has been that the World has had too much Oil to sell. In this country, the regular and more than adequate supplies from the usual sources, supplemented by a flood of pipelines from Texas, have forced the selling prices of Kerosene and Motor Spirit below the replacement costs in the World's Markets, and all Companies have shown heavy losses on those products. Fortunately for this Company, owing to long term Contracts made with Suppliers, this situation was greatly relieved. Aside from Kerosene and Motor Spirits, the other Products, such as Gas Oil, Lubricating Oil, General Merchandise, etc., show a small profit, which, together with revenue from miscellaneous sources, makes up a Credit total of £452,093, 10s. 2d. for the year. This, while much better than a year ago, is not what we expect to earn from our very large turnover, nor shall we be satisfied until it is greatly improved upon.

as per the Balance Sheet.

No Interim Dividend was declared last December on the 1928 business—the outlook was too uncertain; but it is now proposed to pay as Final Dividend for that year of 1/6 per share, free of British Income Tax. This is equal to 7½ per cent., and will be payable June 8th next upon presentation of Coupon No. 37. After paying the Dividend the balance remaining in the Surplus Fund will be £1,423,902, 1s. 3d.

The Gold Notes Outstanding were reduced last July to the extent of £2,000,000, leaving a balance of £2,000,000, which will be paid in July next.

The Debenture Stock remains the same.

THE COMPANY'S BUSINESS.

As regards the business itself, the volume continues to increase in practically all departments.

The subsidiary Companies have all done well except those marketing Motor Spirit, where competitive conditions have made it impossible to show profits. These conditions, however, have been considerably improved since the beginning of March, when prices were restored. This is partly the result of a trading and purchase agreement made by this Company with the Naphtha Syndicate of Series Rijnsk, on behalf of ourselves and the other National Companies. By this Agreement the Russians confine their business at the U. K. to definite quantities, and are restricted from further quantities of Fuel Oil, Gas Oil and Kerosene for this market. The arrangement is one that should operate to the advantage of all concerned, and have enabled U. K. prices to be restored to more nearly the World's parity.

Our sales of other products, such as Lubricating Oil, Gas Oil, Merchandise, etc., have been satisfactory and shown a profit. The sales of Ethyl Petrol are now on the increase. The sales of Oil-consuming devices for the year reached the remarkable total of over 400,000 Oil Heaters—all British, made in our Birmingham factory. In addition, we sold over 50,000 Valor Perfection Cookers. This result is in spite of keen competition from other sources.

Motor Lubricating Oils.—For over 40 years this Company has been the largest Importer and Distributor of Lubricating Oils to this Country, but the sales have been confined entirely to some 600 separate Oil Jobbers and Blenders, who have again sold direct to consumers.

These Anglia Lubricating Oils have been maintained consistently at the highest basis of quality possible, and the Company's reputation with its wholesale customers has always been most satisfactory.

Owing, however, to the development of the sales of Motor Oils to Garages by our principal Motor Spirit competitors, your Directors feel that this Company should protect its Motor Spirit trade by also distributing Motor Oils to Garages.

This step has not been taken lightly, but as a result of the above competition, which has resulted in the diversion of some of our Motor Spirit business to competitors. This cannot be allowed to continue.

Beginning almost at once, therefore, "Pratts Standard Motor Oils" will be distributed to motorists everywhere through all the principal Garages in the country, and the facilities offered and the goods supplied will be of the highest quality.

THE FUTURE OUTLOOK.

Looking into the immediate future, it is hoped by a stabilisation of the production of Crude Oil throughout the World, that the flooding of our markets with Motor Spirit, Kerosene, Fuel Oil and, in fact, of all Petroleum products in excess of the consumption capacity of those markets will be stayed. To this end strenuous efforts have been made by the American Petroleum Institute to limit the production of Crude Oil.

The idea in the first instance is to limit production to the needs of the Refineries and not for Storage. There is already one hundred million tons of Petroleum Products above ground, which is double the amount required for any emergency, while this extra investment of Capital, and the resultant losses by evaporation, make it a costly business. The Sherman Anti-Trust Law has prevented any agreement among the Crude Oil operators themselves, but the Governor of the State of California showed the way out, by appointing a Commission to study the safeguarding of the natural resources of the State in Natural Gas and Crude Oil—and, as a result, the Oil Operators were told what they had to do, and they are doing it.

The States of Oklahoma and Texas followed suit, so that to-day the producing activities of the larger Companies in America are under control. The temporary increases in a particular field should not interfere seriously with this plan, and it is hoped that the smaller men will follow.

If this co-operation fails, then the alternatives may spell ruin to all concerned, for by wasting the present natural resources of the country, together with the cost of deeper borings and the search for new deposits, it may well result that Crude Oil will cost many times what it is costing to-day, with a possibility of a real shortage as well. Fortunately, the large producers outside the United States, in Venezuela, Colombia, Roumania, Persia and the Far East, are also working along similar lines, and with gratifying results.

The American Export Association has also been formed with the object of limiting exports from the United States to the quantities exported in 1928, plus any natural increase. This plan should ensure ample supplies for all needs and will not require any excess of refining or production. As a result, distress cargoes will not be forced on the market, prices will be stabilised, and, by correcting irregularities and withdrawing allowances, the result will be the making of more profit. It is not expected, however, that prices for export will be appreciably increased. The foreign markets will then be based on these stabilised export prices, plus charges and a fair profit.

This is the plan in brief, and when you consider that the 1928 basis all round is to be taken as a standard, there cannot be any great harm done to any one, including the Consumer, while a more protected under a stabilising plan than by spectacular and erratic changes in prices or uncertainty as to supplies.

From all the above, you can see that those responsible for the welfare of the Oil industry are sparing no efforts to establish it for the future on a sane, safe and fairly profitable basis with a broad outlook that means rationalisation and not demoralisation.

The Chairman then moved that the Report and Accounts as presented be approved. Mr. C. Hamilton Wilson, Vice-Chairman, seconded the motion, after the Chairman had asked for questions.

The motion was put to the Meeting and carried.

The retiring Directors were re-elected. Mr. J. Wilkie Frye, for many years in charge of the Company's Lubricating business, has been made a Member of the Board.

A Vote of Thanks to the Staff was then proposed and accepted, after which the proceedings terminated.

APPRAISERS REPORT ON WEST SIDE PLAN

Revised forms of agreement between the city and the New York Central Railroad, covering the "enlarged plan" for improvement of the west side riverfront, together with a final report of appraisers showing a balance of $5,940,147 in the city's favor in the exchange of properties and property rights involved in carrying out the plan, were considered by the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate yesterday and restored to the calendar for further consideration Thursday.

The board has already formally approved the "enlarged plan," along the stretch from St. John's Park to Spuyten Duyvil, but in the signing of the agreement with the railroad must be preceded by formal approval of the appraisals. The beginning of work under the plan must, in turn, await the signing of the agreement, which may not take place before the Fall.

The appraisal, revised in accordance with changes made in the "enlarged plan" before that was adopted by the board, credits the city with $9,884,093 for property to be turned over to the railroad and allows the railroad $3,943,946 for property to be acquired by the city.

The appraisal figure does not include a city credit of $302,453 and a railroad credit of $282,409 for property rights required for elimination of grade crossings in Manhattanville under a Transit Commission order of Dec. 9, 1924, not a part of the plan, but to be made the subject of an accounting later.

In a report outlining the most recent changes in the proposed agreement, Arthur S. Tuttle, consulting engineer of the Board of Estimate, declared that the city's share of the cost of both the crossing elimination and the public improvement features of the plan will be reduced below previous estimates.

The new agreement allows additional sidings to the railroad across Tenth Avenue between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets and across Fifteenth Street, but vacates permanent rights and easements which the railroad might otherwise acquire in Twelfth and Thirteenth Avenues between Twenty-seventh and Thirtieth Streets, provided certain rights claimed by the road in Eleventh Avenue prove to be unauthorized.

TO UNIFY TRAFFIC CONTROL.

Seven New Units Planned in Brooklyn as Part of Centralized System.

The city will install seven additional units of traffic control for Brooklyn, Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, announced yesterday. He said these units were part of a projected borough-wide scheme to unite the entire network of Brooklyn's chief highways under one centralized traffic control system. The cost of the seven new units will be about $25,000, Mr. Goldman said. They are as follows:

Along Throop Avenue from Lorimer Street to Halsey Street, to be put into operation within ten days; along Sixth Avenue from Flatbush Avenue to Twenty-third Street, in operation within two weeks; along Bushwick Avenue from Highland Boulevard to De Kalb Avenue; along Eastern Parkway from Nostrand Avenue to Broadway; along Coney Island Avenue from Church Avenue to Ocean View Avenue; along Ocean Avenue from Third Avenue to Greenwood Street and along Sixty-fifth Street from Sixth Avenue to Dahill Road, the latter to be in operation in five months.

ROADS TO POOL FREIGHT.

I. C. C. Authorizes Plan of Northern Pacific and Soo Line for Ore.

For the first time in the Northwest the Interstate Commerce Commission has authorized a pooling of freight by two railroads, it was announced yesterday by the Northern Pacific Railway. The Northern Pacific and the Soo Line on April 18 asked permission to pool ore shipped from the Cuyana Range in Northern Minnesota to the docks at Superior, Wis.

The plan, which will be put into effect as soon as possible, involves $12,000,000 of property. An annual saving of $325,000 will be effected under this arrangement, according to evidence submitted at the hearing. Only iron ore and coal moving between the mines on the range and Superior will be affected. Both companies will continue to furnish the public the same service as before. To carry out the plan the railroad yards on the range at Superior will be enlarged at a cost of $250,000.

The futures market on the National Raw Silk Exchange was dull yesterday, only fifty-five bales changing hands. Prices advanced from 1 to 6 cents, largely on reports that the Japanese cocoon crop would show a smaller increase than had been expected.

RUBBER FUTURES DROP.

Speculative Selling and Lower London Cables Affect Market Here.

Crude rubber futures on the Rubber Exchange were under pressure yesterday, speculative selling by a prominent Wall Street trader and lower cables from London and the Far East combining to lower the list 40 to 60 points at the opening of trading. The selling led to a lively market throughout and sales rose to 995 contracts, compared with 7 lots on Saturday. July dropped to 20.30 cents, a net loss of 70 points from Saturday's final price. Dealer interests joined in the selling in the afternoon, but chiefly sold the distant months, sending September to 20.90 and December to 21.40, both down 60 points. Some recoveries were effected in the final hour, buying support coming from trade interests.

London closed barely steady; spot and June, 10¼d; July-September, 10⅝d; October-December, 10⅞d; January-March, 11¼d, spot being nominal and the futures bid down 3-16d to 5-16d for the day. Singapore reported the market there stagnant, 1-16d to 3-16d lower. London stocks of rubber increased 98 tons to 31,635, while Liverpool supply rose 108 tons to 4,750 tons.

SENATOR SMOOT HITS CIGARETTE CAMPAIGNS

Moves to Put Such Advertising Under Food and Drug Act Regulations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—Taking exception to advertising campaigns to promote the use of cigarettes, Senator Smoot, Republican, of Utah, offered in the Senate today a resolution to include tobacco and tobacco products within the scope of the food and drugs act.

His resolution also would amend the food and drugs act so that claims made for food and drug products in any advertising medium subject to Interstate Commerce Commission control should be under the same regulation as is applied to labels on containers. Senator Smoot, whose State produces large quantities of sugar, denounced the effort of cigarette manufacturers to divert users of sweets to cigarettes.

"Not since the days when public opinion rose in its might and smote the dangerous drug traffic," said Mr. Smoot, "not since the days when the vendor of harmful nostrums was swept from our streets, has this country witnessed such an orgy of buncombe, quackery and downright falsehood and fraud as now marks the current campaign promoted by certain cigarette manufacturers to create a vast woman and child market for the use of their product."

Mr. Smoot said he was not questioning the use of tobacco by adults. "I rise," he said, "to denounce the insidious cigarette campaigns now being promoted by those tobacco interests whose only god is profit, whose only bible is the balance sheet, whose only principle is greed.

"I denounce the unconscionable, heartless and destructive attempts to exploit the women and youth of our country in the interests of a few powerful tobacco organizations whose rapacity knows no bounds.

"Whatever may be said of tobacco as a moderate indulgence, it is clear that the issue raised before the country in some of the current cigarette campaigns is the issue raised by urging excessive cigarette smoking by flaunting appeals to the youth of our country, by misrepresenting established medical and health findings in order to encourage cigarette addiction."

LEDERER MUST PAY $5,286 TO CUSTOMS

Rudolph Lederer, Chicago broker, who arrived yesterday from Europe on the Hamburg American liner Albert Ballin with his wife and their daughter Ruth, will have to pay $5,286 in duties and fines for merchandise purchased abroad valued at $1,900, which he failed to declare.

A search of Lederer's baggage by customs agents revealed handkerchiefs, neckties, scarfs, lingerie and other articles undeclared, secreted in the lining of coats, as well as in coats that were being worn.

Mrs. Ector Orr Munn of 17 East Ninetieth Street, daughter of the late Rodman Wanamaker, who was to have appeared at the Custom House yesterday afternoon to pay $10,400 for failure to declare wearing apparel valued at $5,200 when she arrived aboard the Paris on June 4, did not appear. The six trunks and the strong box containing jewelry valued at $450,000 are still being held at the Appraisers Stores.

WILL OPEN FOURTH STORE.

Special to The New York Times.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, June 10.—The Strouss-Hirschberg Company, department store operator, today completed plans to open its fourth store, which will be in New Castle, Pa. The company within the last year purchased stores in Flint and Pontiac, Mich.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. plan to enlarge their retail store here and to establish retail stores in Warren, Ohio, and New Castle, Pa.

Increases Output of Wide Sheets.

The Otis Steel Company has started operations of its two recently widened sheet mills, increasing the production of wide full-finished sheets from 18,000 to 36,000 sheets weekly. The expansion was made to meet a demand for automobile body sheets up to 67 inches wide, making possible the stamping of a body from two or three sheets instead of six.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—Six per cent for the best names. Saturday—Six per cent for the best names. The quotations are for four to six months' paper.

Retail Financing in Lull.

Something of a lull has developed in important retail financing, reflecting both stock market conditions and the approach of the Summer period, it was pointed out yesterday. Seasonal interest in retail merchandising securities, it was added, shows a greater variance than in other types, attention usually corresponding with the periods of most active retail business. The belief was expressed that large flotations of new issues, some of which have been "in the air" for some months, will be held off until the Fall. By that time it is also figured the credit situation will be more favorable to successful marketing.

Fall Styles Please Buyers.

What they have learned thus far of Fall lines of ready-to-wear, particularly dresses, has pleased the representatives of resident buyers here. Early stimulation is likely to result from the changes which feature the new offerings, it was said yesterday. The advance styles are not extreme, but are credited with possessing an element of newness that will mean much in their salability. Both resident buyers and retailers have complained in recent seasons of too much sameness and lack of novelty in the early offerings made.

Cloth Output Exceeds Sales.

Production of standard cotton cloth during May was 3.8 per cent less than in April and sales during May were 81.5 per cent of the output, according to statistics compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York. The figures for May cover a period of five weeks. Stocks on hand at the close of last month increased 4.3 per cent above those at the beginning of the month while unfilled orders on May 31 were 11.1 per cent less than they were on May 1. The comparative yardage totals for the two months follow:

	May.	April.
*Stocks on hand	357,230,000	342,391,000

Novelty Trend Strong in Lamps.

Indications are that modified modernistic effects will again come in for considerable attention in Fall lines of table and floor lamps. Use of pottery, metal and artistic figure bases and motifs will be marked. A trend also of considerable interest is that toward greater use of indirect lighting for the home, featuring floor types which throw the light upward. Color effects in shades will be developed to harmonize with the greater use of the ensemble theme in home decoration. Reading lamps are noted in various forms, one instance, being a modified Colonial lamp combined with ash tray.

To Confer on Men's Wear.

Styles and colors for men's clothing and furnishings for Fall will be the subject of a joint conference to be held during the last week of this month under the auspices of the Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association of New York State. The meeting has not been definitely set as yet, Joseph Danerbirsch, president of the association, said yesterday. In attendance at the conference will be representatives of the woolen mills, manufacturers of men's furnishings and accessories and retailers. The meeting is the first of its kind under the auspices of the furnishers' organization.

Fall Silk Outlook Improves.

While most of the immediate demand in the silk trade is for merchandise for sales purposes, interest is steadily growing in Fall offerings, lines of which are now quite complete. With the absorption of seasonal stocks, market conditions are improving and the outlook is held somewhat better than it was at this time. Indications are that volume business will be done in satin face crêpes and Canton crêpes. Interest in velvets is no longer confined to the transparent and metallic types, but has broadened to include panne constructions.

Offer Rug for Air Travel.

Passenger rugs for the use of those traveling in cabin airplanes are now being produced by foreign rug manufacturers and are appearing in the New York market. These measure 40 by 46 inches as compared with the standard 60 by 70-inch steamer rugs but are made of the same materials and have been in use on the large foreign airlines for some time. Those brought here can be had with either fringed or leather bound borders.

South Buys Linen Suitings.

A flurry of orders for linens for use in the manufacture of the better class of golf knickers and for dress suits has furnished the principal feature in an otherwise quiet field during the last few days, according to those in the trade yesterday. The orders are principally from manufacturers in and about Baltimore and New Orleans and are intended to meet requirements of the southern sections of the country. Sales of linen knickers for golf have not met expectations among manufacturers in this section of the country, it was added.

Burlap Shipments Higher.

Shipments of burlap from Calcutta to North American ports during the month of May totaled 95,000,000 yards, according to cable advices received yesterday from Calcutta by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc. Shipments consigned to the East Coast totaled 84,000,000 yards and those to West Coast ports, including Canada, totaled 11,000,000 yards. The total shipped to this continent last month was nearly 6,000,000 yards higher than for the month of April and about 2,000,000 yards above the figures for May, 1928.

Gray Goods Continue Quiet.

Conditions in the gray goods market here yesterday were quiet, with mills refusing orders in most instances where a shading in price was sought. Sales of 38½-inch 64-60s in small lots at 7 3-16 cents were recorded, however, in spite of an inclination on the part of the mills to insist upon 7¼ cents. Orders for such goods at 7¼ cents went unfilled. Bids of 6 cents for 38½-inch 60-48s were ignored, but there were some small sales at 6¼ cents. A price of 6 cents was paid for 39-inch 68-72s. Sheetings were without feature.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Park Avenue provided a deal of a somewhat unusual character yesterday when the twelve-story cooperative apartment house at 405 Park Avenue, northeast corner of Fifty-fourth Street, was bought from the tenant-owners by the General Realty and Utilities Corporation. The owners from whom the house was bought were Joseph P. Cotton, H. Hobart Porter and Katherine Porter, Evalina Dixon Stevens, Bayard C. Hoppin, Victor Harris, William E. Franklin, John H. Towne, Edith B. Beale and W. C. Hand.

The buying corporation will get possession of the property in 1932 and in view of the changing conditions on the avenue south of Fifty-ninth Street, it is believed that an improvement of a different nature will eventually occupy the site. A short distance below the property the new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel is to be built on the block between Park and Lexington Avenues, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Streets.

The 405 Park Avenue building covers a plot 100 feet on the avenue by 90 feet on the street. F. V. Calder & Co., and Brett & Wyckoff were the brokers in the transaction.

In the upper east side section, the three old five-story apartment houses at 52 to 56 East 106th Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, were purchased by Joseph J. Lese from the 52-56 East 106th Street Corporation. The property is 75 by 100.11 feet, and is opposite a plot fronting 200 feet recently assembled by Amos R. E. Pinchot.

Mr. Lese has been an active operator in that area of the city, having recently bought and sold the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and 108th Street, 100 by 150 feet. Plans are being made to improve that corner with a fifteen-story apartment house. Lesser & Altmayer was the broker in the deal, while the selling corporation was represented by Cyrille Carreau.

The two five-story tenements at 2,231-2,233 Second Avenue, 50 by 80 feet, between 114th and 115th Streets, have been purhased by Pellgrino Mule from the Bajo Realty Company. Louis Lustig was the broker.

The Holland Court, an eight-story elevator apartment house at 315 West Ninety-eighth Street, 75 by 100.11 feet, adjoining the north corner of Riverside Drive, has been transferred by the 315 West Ninety-eighth Street Company, to the Sadyar Realty Company, 291 Broadway.

Mrs. L. Garatti purchased 106-108 Mulberry Street, 50 feet from the corner of Canal Street, in the Holland Tunnel section, from Judge J. Palmieri, who bought the property in 1904 and then improved it with a six-story new law tenement. Saverio Bonglorno negotiated the sale.

CAPITAL RETURN IS MADE.

First Two Units of Tudor City Pay 10 Per Cent of Stock Cost.

Prospect Tower and the Manor, the first two units of Tudor City, have paid off 10 per cent of their original capital, in addition to regular semi-annual dividends at an annual rate of 6 per cent, according to an announcement in the current issue of The Voice, published by the Fred F. French Companies, developers of Tudor City. The two structures, opened in the Fall of 1927, were well rented immediately and have remained so, according to Fred F. French, head of the organization.

Mr. French announced in 1926 the purchase of seven acres on Prospect Hill, comprising most of the property between First and Second Avenues and East Fortieth and Forty-fourth Streets, for a new community. The structures since erected have been financed by stock issues involving returns of principal and participation in profits thereafter.

Thirty-eight lots in Teaneck, N. J., auctioned last Saturday by Major William Kennelly, brought a total of $79,900. The lots are on Teaneck Road, opposite the Town Hall, and on Cedar Lane, near the West Shore Railroad station. Inside lots on Cedar Lane sold as high as $3,550 each, while inside lots on Teaneck Road brought $4,200 each. The sale attracted buyers from Paterson, Hackensack, Union City, West New York and Bogota, as well as local residents. Among the purchasers were Rudolph Olsen, Samuel Punnano, John F. Carroll, Oscar A. Klemm, Adolph Schlosbohm and Mrs. M. Hocksher.

This property was purchased about nine years ago as a site for the Commonwealth Hotel. The structure was never erected and in May, 1925, Joseph P. Day sold the property at public auction for the benefit of creditors to John Geross, on a bid of $2,640,000.

Today the property is valued at about $4,000,000. The structure planned by Mr. Geross is estimated to cost about $10,000,000.

HECKSCHER BUYS SITE FOR HOME IN FLORIDA

Special to The New York Times.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., June 10.—August Heckscher has purchased eight acres of land on Anastasia Island at St. Augustine as a site for a Winter home. The purchase was made by Mr. Heckscher while he was on a business trip here last week and work was started on the residence today, with occupancy set for Dec. 15.

The land, just across the bay from the business section of St. Augustine, was acquired from Mrs. Mary Shaw, who had held it for many years. Considerable improvement and landscaping of the land surrounding the home is planned.

Recent legislative acceptance of a road site running along the Atlantic coast to his $500,000 beach holdings near by has brought new interest in the property and it was reported that Mr. Heckscher has been planning to build an exclusive hotel adjacent to his $100,000 beach casino.

Anastasia Island is a slender strip of land extending along the Florida coast for a distance of about ten miles. Its northern extremity is just across the bay from St. Augustine.

"I am building a modest Winter home on a spot I selected because it is out of the centre of population and in a quiet location," he said. "The house will be of an attractive bungalow style, just the kind of a place one would expect to find there. There will be a swimming pool, too. I expect to spend two or three months of each Winter at the place."

Reports from St. Augustine to the effect that Mr. Heckscher was considering building an exclusive hotel on some of his beach properties near by were met with the response in his office that "no definite plans for such an improvement have yet been made."

AWARD DECLINE CONTINUES.

Local Construction Contracts Slump Further During Week.

A further decline in construction contracts in the metropolitan area is indicated by last week's award total, $14,544,300, which is considerably below the preceding week's aggregate and the total for the corresponding week last year, according to Dodge reports.

Last week's aggregate included $6,361,700, or 44 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $3,881,500, or 27 per cent for commercial buildings; $2,384,200, or 16 per cent, for public works and utilities, and $510,900, or 4 per cent, for educational projects.

Since Jan. 1 $520,355,800 worth of contracts have been let for new building and engineering work in the metropolitan area. This is a daily average of $3,912,400, against a daily average of $5,307,900 during the first half of last year.

New work reported in contemplation during the past week reached a total of $11,959,600, being one of the lowest weekly records of projected work reported in this territory during the past eighteen months.

The structure will be an important addition to the numerous banking houses in the immediate Pennsylvania zone area. According to the architects, Walker & Gillette, who are designing the new building, it will be twelve or sixteen stories in height.

The plot is about 40 by 60 feet, now occupied by two old four-story buildings known as 442-444 Seventh Avenue and 201 West Thirty-fourth Street. Demolition work will begin this month. The new building will serve as the Pennsylvania branch of the National City Bank, the bank occupying the lower floors and the upper stories being leased as general offices.

The property, owned by Hattie Lillienthal and others, was leased a short time ago for eight, four years by the Burnee Corporation, operating the Nedick orange juice stands, which has sold its lease to the bank. Existing leases on the old buildings expired June 1, making it possible to start building operations at once.

BUYS APARTMENT SITE.

As a site for a seven-story apartment house in the Dyckman section the Halley Construction Company, Ernest P. Halley, president, has purchased the northeast corner of Nagle Avenue and Sickles Street, a large plot extending through to Hillside Avenue.

The property fronts about 216 feet on Nagle Avenue, 225 feet on Sickles Street and 222 feet on Hillside Avenue, taking in the northerly Sickles Street block front. It is two blocks south of Dyckman Street.

The apartment house, which is to contain about 450 rooms, is being designed by Edward Weck, architect. William Henry Barnum & Co. made a loan of $475,000 on the project, which will involve about $1,000,000.

Jacob Goodman purchased from the Lawyers Mortgage Company a three-story and basement dwelling at 24 West 129th Street, on a lot 22 by 100 feet. The brokers were Katz & Baratkins.

Operator Buys in Hudson Street.

Harry H. Jackson, operator, has purchased from Louise Henretta Holzderber of Montclair, N. J., the three-story business building with stores and apartments at 579 Hudson Street, opposite Abingdon Square. The property, which is on a plot 21 by 74 feet on the west side of Hudson Street, 50 feet from the southwest corner of Bank Street, has been in the seller's family for more than sixty years. It is opposite the site assembled by Bing & Bing for a $25,000,000 apartment and hotel development. The broker in the sale was J. Scott.

Adds to Lexington Av. Holdings.

Howard C. Forbes has purchased the brownstone dwelling at the northeast corner of Ninety-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue from Franklin Benkard and his sister, Mrs. Reginald Rose, who inherited the property from their father. The lot is 20 by 95 feet. Mr. Forbes is building an apartment house at the southwest corner of Ninety-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, on a site assembled last year through the Leonard S. Gans Company, Inc.

WESTCHESTER DEALS.

Old Mamaroneck Holding Bought for Improvement.

A Mamaroneck parcel which has been in possession of the Hanford family for more than fifty years has been acquired by a New York Builder who plans to erect a four-story business building on the site, according to Douglas L. Elliman & Co., the brokers. The plot fronts 100 feet on Boston Post Road, 75 feet on Beach Avenue and 125 feet on Tompkins Avenue, facing the Soldiers and Sailors' Monument. Demolition of a house which has been on the property for about a century is to begin today. Population figures compiled by the Westchester County Sanitary Sewer Commission are said to show Mamaroneck as Westchester's fastest growing town.

Ira M. Schley sold to Harriet C. Keller a dwelling of six rooms and bath at 21 Lawrence Place, Pelham Manor. The site, 80 by 100 feet, adjoins the Hutchinson River Parkway. James R. Murphy, Inc., was the broker.

A new dwelling in the Brook Manor section of Pleasantville has been sold by the developers through L. J. Phillips & Co. and the William R. Dowd Associates. The structure is on a one-third-acre plot which formerly was part of the David P. Hays estate.

The Reed Company sold a seventy-acre parcel at Tarrytown with approach from Broadway. It adjoins the country estates of Willard S. Burrows, Alfred McEwen, H. K. Browning and Mrs. Finley Shepard, and is one of the highest points in the locality. The purchaser plans to build a year-round home for his occupancy. The property was held at $170,000, according to Kenneth Ives & Co., the brokers.

COAST REALTY AUCTIONED.

Belle Harbor Corners Bring $7,125 at Rockaway Sale.

Two Belle Harbor corners brought $7,125 each at an auction of improved and vacant business and residential parcels along the Rockaway coast which Joseph P. Day offered last Saturday. One of the buyers was Dr. I. J. May, who acquired the five-lot parcel, 100 feet square, at the northeast corner of Beach 141st Street and Cronston Avenue. The adjoining parcel at the northwest corner of Beach 140th Street and Cronston Avenue was disposed of at the same price to Frederick P. Kandel.

The Lenmark Realty Company, Inc., was the buyer of the northeast corner of Beach 140th Street and Newport Avenue. The price was $7,250. A plot 60 by 100 feet on Beach 141st Street, near Newport Avenue, was knocked down to Jeannette F. Schener for $4,455. Owen H. Monaghan was the buyer of a plot 60 by 100 feet on the east side of Beach 139th Street, near the ocean, for $6,000. QUEENS.

QUEENS SEWER ASSESSMENTS

Why Worry About What Don't Touch You?

MANY people imagine that if they move into Queens County they would be sunk by the sewer assessments that they have been reading about. And the unknown thing always has its terror!

Get it clear that that famous $16,000,000 assessment roll that we have heard so much about will be levied on the property benefited. Property outside of the zone will not have a part of the assessment put on it.

Property at Jamaica-Hillside is mostly outside the zone. A portion of the property near Hillside Avenue will have a small assessment. This is where we are building our houses in the park that we call

HILLSIDE PARK EAST

On any house that you buy from us in this zone, we will pay the sewer assessment, if any be levied on it! Furthermore, we have just contracted, at our own expense, to build a sewer for our own use, to connect up with the City system, so that buyers of houses from us at HILLSIDE PARK EAST may find a sewer in and no assessment to pay for it.

Come to the property and talk to our representative about the sewer question.

We have ten types of beautiful solid brick dwellings. They range in price from $11,500 up to $16,500. In addition to the sewer that we are having built, they are supplied with water, gas and electricity and they stand far above the low lands of Queens so as to have natural drainage, moving air and views. It is truly a delightful place to live in.

Take train to Queens Village Station and then the bus (write us for tickets). Or go out Hillside Ave. through Jamaica to my property office at 214th St., or inquire at 67 Liberty St., N. Y. City, to see the plans, photos, maps, prices and booklet illustrative of the Park.

President Hoover's Summer Playground

WILL sell all or any part of this old historic estate in the heart of the Blue Ridge Mountains, 55 miles from the District Line, comprises 2,500 forested acres. The old manor house is eloquent of the more spacious hospitality of an older day with its 14 high-ceiled rooms. It still contains the original hand-carved woodwork and certainly a historical gem. Immediately adjoining the manor building, there is a wonderful natural park, 20 acres in extent, surrounded by a non-climbable fence with big oak trees and fresh-water lakes where trout and other game fish rise to the sportsman's fly in satisfying size and quantity, and pure crystal-clear springs. On this tract is a mile and a half of the famous Hunting Run trout stream that has been leased for the fishing rights to Lawrence Richey, for President Hoover's term of years.

Glimpses of deer that will feed from your hand, and of quail may be had through the branches of the trees. Twenty miles of bridle paths wind through the forest.

An interesting historical relic on the estate is an old furnace where cannon and cannon-ball were cast for use in the Revolutionary War and where the castings were made for Ramsey's first Steamboat. Plates for the Monitor of Civil War fame were also made at this place.

The old English boxwood on the farm of the estate is conceded to be the prettiest in Maryland. It has been growing since Revolutionary times and is priceless. Altitude ranges from 500 to 1,800 feet, assuring Maine weather during Summer days.

This property is an ideal playground for a man of means and a lover of nature. Aside from that, its present low price and other factors should greatly enhance its value within a few years. Catoctin is easily the show place of Maryland.

SEEKS $7,500 PAID TO INSANE VETERAN

This Showed His Release Had Been "Unfortunate," Court Asserts—Case Comes Up June 18.

Because Emanuel B. Cohan, a lawyer at 51 Chambers Street, while committee of the property of Andrew Traulko, an insane war veteran, paid more than $7,500 of government pension money to Traulko after he had been improperly declared sane and released from the Manhattan State Hospital, the lawyer is facing a demand by the United States Veterans' Bureau for repayment of the entire sum, it was learned yesterday.

The case, to be heard on June 18, follows an investigation by Edward R. Rayher, the Appellate Division referee entrusted with examining the accounts of the committees of incompetent persons. It also follows a decision by the Appellate Division upholding Supreme Court Justice Levy in vacating orders granted in 1921 and 1922 after Traulko had been declared sane and permitted to collect the pension and compensation payments held for him. These orders had been obtained by the Attorney General's office, representing the State Hospital Commission.

The investigation disclosed that after Traulko had been declared sane the second time and had been deported to Russia by the State Hospital Commission, he returned to this country, and a quarrel in an east side speakeasy Traulko stabbed a policeman and was sent to the Matteawan Hospital for the Criminal Insane, where he is still confined. The petition upon which Justice Levy set aside the orders and adjudged the ex-soldier insane was made by Abraham N. Levy, who had been substituted as committee for Traulko after the facts as to his mental condition had been ascertained. Levy asserted that $7,500 alleged to have been turned over to Traulko by the former committee had been "squandered or dissipated."

If the Appellate Division decision upholding Justice Levy is affirmed by the Court of Appeals, Mr. Cohen will be compelled to repay the money for the benefit of the insane man.

Mr. Cohen declared yesterday that he had turned over all the money received and got only $250 for his services, and that in consenting twice to have Traulko adjudged sane he had merely acted on instructions from the Attorney General's office.

The decision of Justice Levy setting aside the two orders which relieved Mr. Cohen from making an accounting on the ground that he had given the money to a man who had been declared sane and got a general release, asserted that the action was taken on the consent of the Attorney General. Mr. Cohen as committee and the bonding company which had given a bond for the committee. The court said that the Attorney General's consent "was certainly unfortunate, particularly in the light of subsequent events which finally resulted in the committing of the incompetent to Matteawan after he had stabbed a policeman." Justice Levy further said:

"As there was no proper foundation for the orders adverted to, the committee should not have been discharged without an accounting. The practice which prevailed in the office of the Attorney General in respect to a matter as grave as this cannot be said to meet with commendation."

Charles D. Newton was the Attorney General at the time of the discharge of Traulko, but the matter was mainly in direct charge of Abraham J. Lifton, employed as special investigator of State hospital matters and persons confined in asylums. Lifton declared in an affidavit submitted to Justice Levy that there had been nothing irregular in the case, although the new committee charged that the statements resulting in the discharge of Traulko "tended to deceive the court," and alleged that from 1910 to the time he was committed to Matteawan Traulko had always been insane. It was also alleged that the petitions on which the Attorney General's office instituted the proceedings for the discharge of Traulko were based on Traulko's own declaration that he was sane, and also failed to disclose that Traulko had never been discharged from the Manhattan State Hospital as improved or cured.

POORHOUSE ELOPERS BACK.

Westchester County Home Treats Pair, 59 and 63, as Problem.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., June 10.—A bride and a bridegroom returned to the Westchester County Home at Mount Pleasant yesterday to learn that though marriages may be made in heaven they are not encouraged in the poorhouse. They were Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jennings, who eloped on Saturday to Yonkers and were married by a Justice of the Peace. Jennings, a painter by trade, is 59 years old. Mrs. Jennings was formerly Mrs. Nellie Dede, a widow. She is 63.

When Jennings arrived at the poorhouse with his first wiffe, a year ago, they were assigned a room in the married quarters. Mrs. Dede then had been living there three years. Three months ago the first Mrs. Jennings died. Soon after there were rumors of a romance between Jennings and Mrs. Dede. But Superintendent Roy D. Bailey ignored them. There had never been an elopement from the poorhouse before.

Now the question arises: Shall Mr. and Mrs. Jennings be assigned a room in the married quarters? Mr. Bailey is sympathetic. But if he relents, he pointed out, other marriages are sure to follow. What will the county officials say? Their objection, Mr. Bailey explained, is a "social" one. He questions the right of a man to marry when he cannot support a wife.

Biancamano Has New Captain.

The Lloyd Sabaudo liner Conte Biancamano arrived yesterday from Genoa via Naples and Gibraltar with 411 passengers. She was under the command of a new captain, George Cavaleni, who is 58 years old and started his sea career 39 years ago in sailing vessels. He is a Deputy Sheriff of Bronx County under appointment of Sheriff Lester W. Patterson.

To Introduce Pullman in England.

An improved train service between Plymouth and London has been added by the Great Western Railway of England for the benefit of passengers on the transatlantic liners. A new-type Pullman car will be attached to the special boat train, marking the introduction of the Pullman car in England by this railway. The boat train will also be much faster, making the Plymouth-London trip, a distance of 227 miles, in less than four hours.

R. W. Stewart Gives $200,000 For Library at Coe College

Special to The New York Times.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, June 10.—Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, deposed chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, today gave $200,000 to Coe College, his alma mater, to erect a library as a memorial to his parents, who settled in Cedar Rapids when it was a frontier village.

He intimated that if the amount was not enough he would give more.

While it was founded by Presbyterians, the college is non-sectarian now. The directors accepted the gift by unanimous vote. The college conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity on the Rev. Robert H. Morris of Haddonfield, N. J.

FRENCH SHIP VISITORS MUST HAVE PASSES

Line Moves to Ease Congestion on Departing Vessels—Sailing Hours Are Changed.

Overcrowding of piers and express liners of the French Line at sailing time resulted yesterday in an order under which after July 1 persons will be admitted to ships on sailing nights only on passes issued at the office of the line to passengers for their friends.

The line also announced a change of sailing time for the Ile de France, France and Paris, from midnight to 7 P. M. to permit passengers' arrival in London the afternoon of the fifth day after sailing instead of late at night. Tidal conditions will govern the exact hour of sailing under the proposed schedule, which will become effective Aug. 1.

Visitors to French Line ships sometimes total 2,000 in a single night. The new system will be effective only on sailing nights and visitors will be welcomed at other times as in the past.

$800,000 BID FOR 8 SHIPS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—A bid of $800,000 for purchase of the eight steel cargo vessels of the Gulf-West Mediterranean Line was received by the Shipping Board today from the Tampa Interocean Steamship Company of New Orleans, the present managing operators of the service.

The only offer received, it was referred to the Merchant Fleet Corporation. The bid was at the rate of $14 a deadweight ton, the ships being of 7,825 tons each, and the bidder agreed to maintain the line for a minimum period of five years.

It is said the line will be required to provide twenty-four outward voyages a year, of which not less than twelve shall be monthly sailings from New Orleans, and, whenever cargo offerings warrant, from Texas ports with the privilege of calling at other ports on the Gulf and South Atlantic Coast as well as Cuban ports.

These voyages will be to Portuguese, Spanish and North African points west of Algeria and north of and including Casa Blanca. Twelve monthly sailings will also be required from a Texas port.

4 ESCAPE FROM CAMP DIX.

Military Prisoners Overpower Sentries—Two Caught by Police.

Special to The New York Times.

WRIGHTSTOWN, N. J., June 10.—Four military prisoners serving three-year terms for desertion overpowered two sentries, beating one and kidnapping the other, and escaped from Camp Dix this afternoon. State police captured two in a stolen automobile several hours later nine miles from here, between Jobstown and Mount Holly. The other two, still at large, were said to be armed with a rifle and a blackjack. The escapes were made in pairs, almost simultaneously but from different points in the camp.

It was evidently planned to include other prisoners, military authorities believe. The first pair, Privates John Osborne and Phillip Delvich, knocked down their sentry, Private Earl D. Coates, with a blackjack while they were working on the camp grounds under his supervision. Shortly afterward two other prisoners, Private Carter Watson, negro, and Private Lovie Wilson, white, surprised Private Edward Allmek, their sentry. At the bayonet-point of a rifle Osborne forced Allmek to walk five miles through the woods to Juliustown, where they jumped into an automobile which belonged to Rev. Lee Kaufman of Jobstown. Releasing Allmek, they discarded his rifle at a safe distance and drove away.

A general alarm had been sent out throughout Burlington County by the military authorities, and State Police Sergeant Hausling and Trooper Campbell, patrolling the roads, came upon Osborne and Delvich, who surrendered without a struggle.

AGED RECLUSE STRICKEN.

Found Helpless in East Side Cellar, He Is Taken to Bellevue.

The disordered cellar of the vacant six-story tenement at 318 East Third Street lost yesterday its tenant of three years' standing, a blind and deaf recluse who was so secretive that no one in the neighborhood knew his name. The children had nicknamed him Pasia, the Polish word for woman, because he earned his living scrubbing floors and washing windows for housewives.

For the past six months the elderly man had rarely been seen in the streets. Yesterday curious neighbors entered the cellar to find Pasia helpless on the floor.

He was removed to Bellevue and lodged in the psychopathic ward. The records at the hospital describe him as "an unknown man, about 65 years old, 5 feet 5½ inches tall, weight about 200 pounds." His clothing included a ragged black suit, shoes, white socks and a collarless blue and white shirt.

Eastern Prince Arrives Here Today.

The motorliner Eastern Prince, second of the sister ships being built for the Furness-Prince Line passenger service between New York and the East coast of South America, is scheduled to reach New York today and dock at Pier 74, North River. She will sail June 22 for Rio de Janiero, Montevideo, Santos and Buenos Aires. Her gross tonnage is 11,200, her length 517 feet, and beam 65 feet. She is built to maintain 16 knots.

TO TRY MAIL PICK-UP ANEW.

Second Leviathan Test at Sea Planned for Tomorrow.

The attempted pick-up of mail from the United States liner Leviathan by a cable attached to an airplane, which was postponed Friday by weather conditions and damage sustained by the Chapman plane, is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon if a suitable plane is available.

The ship will sail at 5:30 P. M. from Pier 86. About three hours later the plane, carrying a bag of mail, will leave, attempting to depart the bag on the ship and take away another bag that will be placed on special apparatus on the liner.

The damaged Chapman plane will not be tried again, nor is it known just what plane will be substituted for it. Observers on the Leviathan who made the trip to Europe and return to witness what was to be a historic experiment in aviation reported yesterday that the plane which went out near Nantucket to pick up the mail was never in sight of the ship.

CITY DEFERS ACTION ON UNIFIED TRANSIT

RECAPTURE RIGHT INVOLVED

Consideration of Proposal to Raze 6th Av. Elevated Also Is Put Off.

By deferring until its next meeting consideration of the rapid transit unification plan submitted to the Board Estimate on July 12, 1928, the Committee of the Whole virtually destroyed yesterday any chance of obtaining from the State courts before late Fall a declaratory judgment on the validity of vital features of the plan. These points are the city's right to recapture leased subway lines, its power to resort to taxes to meet deficits from unified operation and the tax-exempt status of securities to be issued by a board of transit control.

The B. M. T. in conferences with the Board of Estimate, the Board of Transportation and the Transit Commission, demanded, among other things, that these points be ironed out before it would commit itself to the scheme in the absence of special legislative enactments such as the Untermyer transit control bill, which failed of passage in March. At one of the recent conferences the Board of Estimate was urged to approve the plan, at least conditionally, so that issues might be framed so as to present a proper case as a basis for getting a declaratory judgment.

Although Mayor Walker has the authority to call a special meeting before the Committee of the Whole resumes its sessions in September, it is not considered likely that he will do so. The postponement of consideration of the Untermyer plan was approved yesterday without discussion.

The committee's action gave rise in transit circles to a report that efforts to obtain a declaratory judgment might be dropped and that no other effort would be made next Winter to obtain passage of the Untermyer bill. Whether this plan will gain headway if it was said, would depend in some measure upon the decision yet to be handed down in the I. R. T. seven-cent fare case by the Federal statutory court. Should that tribunal decline to retain jurisdiction of the case, throwing all issues into the State courts, it was said, there would be an excellent prospect that the Untermyer bill would be able to overcome the I. R. T. opposition, which was generally credited with causing its defeat this Spring and in 1928.

The proposed condemnation of the Sixth Avenue elevated line from Trinity Place to Fifty-third Street and Ninth Avenue, will not be further considered by the Board of Estimate until September, when the Board of Transportation, to which was referred Borough President Miller's plan for removal of the structure, is expected to make a preliminary report. Another matter which went over to the Fall was the request of the Board of Transportation for advice regarding the purchase or rental of new quarters. Purchase or rental of the old New York Life building across the street from the board's present location at 62 Lafayette Street, or of the Excelsior building at the southwesterly corner of Canal and Centre Streets was suggested in a communication submitted by Chairman John H. Delaney.

AT SAKS-FIFTH AVENUE

"We moderns" give O. G. the woman's vote

They know what they like—these "moderns"—as Saks calls its family of urbane patrons. They can tell a Chanel frock from its Broadway "twin" in the wink of an eye. They know when a turban has the Agnes flair—without looking at the name tag. Try to sell them something else, and see!... So it was a jury with a sixth sense for quality that passed its verdict when 404 Saks "moderns" made the "concealed name" cigarette test. In every part of the store certified public accountants offered shoppers the 4 leading cigarettes with the brand names covered up. "Simply smoke them and decide which one tastes best," they said. "The idea is not to guess the brands—but to choose the one that's most pleasing—to you."... Did "we moderns" decide it? By a landslide! OLD GOLD received 28% more votes than any other brand!... There was no favoritism about this taste-test. It was scrupulously fair to every cigarette involved. OLD GOLD won on sheer taste-appeal alone—on its honey-like smoothness—the gift of Nature's silkiest and finest tobacco—the selected leaves from the heart of the plant.

We hereby certify that on April 22 to 24 inclusive we conducted a "concealed name" test of the 4 leading cigarette brands among 404 smokers at Saks-Fifth Avenue, and that the following is a complete and accurate summary of the results:

BRAND	NUMBER OF FIRST CHOICES
OLD GOLD	129
Brand Y	101
